

your base instincts purely animal in nature, you master at a greater scale your mental sphere (thoughts related) and you have the strong impression of being the Master of your life!

I must precise that thoughts come from diverse sources that I may divide into two fundamental groups totally contrary to each other! They are thoughts from Divine Sources (God and all other Perfect Beings) and Thoughts from Non Divine Sources (so Imperfect Sources, going from Relative Imperfect Good to Perfect Evil)!

The origin of thoughts may be manifest or non-manifest beings (human or non-human: Divine Spirits, common human spirits, elemental beings, demons, devils...).

What is important to retain (in part) is that you also are a source of thoughts; thoughts that you yourself influence yourself thereby, thoughts that reach out to other beings even as you also receive of their thoughts! Pay therefore keen attention to your thoughts for they greatly influence others phenomenally!

As for the Fundamental Philosopher, he must strive to see that the state of mind induced by the application of the technique of Phase 3 becomes natural to him! Otherwise impossible to go far in his Adventure, venturing further will be impossible!

6- On the Necessity of the Non Consumption of Flesh

After having come to know the Truth (the Fundamental Spiritual Philosophy) at a certain level of living as a Fundamental Philosopher, it became Necessary to conform my nutritional pattern to that in harmony with It.

I was still an avowed flesh eater, avowed lover of the delicacies of the flesh-based diet, I really loved eating meat in particular.

Earlier on, I had heard about vegetarianism but had always discarded it quickly, calling it “senseless”, saying “If flesh were not to be eaten, why did God create animals?”

Out of caution, I ceased consuming flesh and eggs immediately. I wanted to understand clearly (personally), and so directing myself to God, I'd say "Father, I want to clearly understand why flesh eating is contrary to my Path of Life as a Fundamental Philosopher. Thanks!". Days passed, yet I remained extremely constant in my expectation of explanations, usually gazing into the sky from our terrace.

One evening, I was on my way to buy some fruits somewhere close by, and was nearing this mango tree in our street that I have passed by countless times without paying any special attention to it, then I felt this strong feeling to slow my pace. It then was as if a voice were speaking in my ears, telling me to slow down. I did. Then it began to speak in a tone very calm but strong "Look at this mango tree, observe it!". I observed and noticed it had mangoes yet to be ripe. "Look under the tree!". I looked and saw hens and their chicks. "Back to the mango tree!". I refocused on the mango tree itself. "What would happen to these mangoes if when ripe, they are not picked?". They will become overripe, and no longer edible will be thrown away. "Then, they sort of die!". Indeed! "Look at those hens and their chicks!". I refocused my attention on them. "If nothing happens to these, no fatal illness, no fatal accident, no killing, they would live to their full life span, just like human beings. These, being souls just as human beings also are, have need of life experiences just as human beings do, in order to mature. They must not be killed for food! He who kills them for food and he who eats of them, is guilty of shortening the life experiences of these souls!". Then it ceased. I had fully understood! Fruits and vegetables are meant to be eaten, as long as they be edible; otherwise they rot and die, perish! Men should feed themselves of these, whose fundamental purpose of existence is to serve as food for mankind! Animals are not meant for food, because if left to live, they are liable of living to their full life span like human beings. Therefore, they should not be eaten! He who kills (for food) and he who eats of them is guilty before these souls and Divine Justice!

I recalled that in the Books of the Torah (the Bible), in Leveticus 17: 10-14, where Moses was relating the Laws of God concerning the "Sanctity of Blood" after having previously spoken about animals to be eaten and those not to be eaten, said that one should not eat of their blood (of course those allowed to be eaten) because in their blood is their Life. [These are one of those Bible passages that I cite as proof that God, Truth is not to be found in the Bible and that at most, only traces of Him are liable to be found in it owing to the fact that the sayings themselves are contrary to that which it exhorts as practice].

I observed from memory that, no matter how much meat is to be washed (or dressed as otherwise said), there is no way to extract all its blood and every trace of it. Take a piece of flesh (meat for instance), wash it as many times as you wish in water, you will surely always find traces of blood in the water no matter how many times you wash it.

If therefore, the life is in the blood and the blood flows in all the body bringing and sustaining life, then surely, it is impossible to eat of the flesh without eating of the blood. Hence, to eat flesh, is to eat blood!

Dear Moses received the Law yet failed to understand it and I am certain that if God, Father, ever passed such Laws to Moses, indeed, it must have been as a trial of the strength of his intellectual abilities on the ground of Ethical Love! Moses failed to perceive the subtle contradiction between the Law he received from Father concerning the consumption of animals and the non-consumption of their blood.

Yet, was it not the same Moses that received the Tablets of the 10 Commandments from Father upon the so-called Holy blazing Mountain; commandments among which it was said “Thou shall not kill!”? Notice that it says not “Thou shall not kill men” but “Thou shall not kill” implying that this is a general law applying to all forms of life!

I have ceased since that fortunate eve to consume any flesh (never) nor whatsoever it has been immersed into (save a very few number of times and now no more) nor any flesh related product in general! I recommenced eating eggs, they are not of the flesh category; and whosoever has followed me keenly can clearly see why.

Many individuals become vegetarians fully or temporarily for health purposes or body regime out of love for the welfare of their body or for strict medical reasons! This is good!

The ideal would be to turn to this diet out of Infinite Love for animals foremostly! As for me, I have repented and sincerely demanded forgiveness from all these in whose killing I have participated!

Now I live in a state of Infinite Love towards them all! This Love so makes it that never does flesh consumption tempt me!

I prefer considering myself a “Non-consumer of flesh” than a “Vegetarian”. The quality of the sound of the former and the profound meaning it evokes, sounds more interesting to me!

No offense to those yet to be in this same nutritional pattern as me. No! When their conscience will come to no longer tolerate the crime of their nutritional pattern, they’ll do away with it. I perfectly respect the free will of all, even as Father does!

7- The Tree Of Knowledge

One day, while remaining as usual strongly focused on Father, the image of a Tree with an infinity of branches, stems and leaves came to my mind. I just intuitively said to myself that this must be the Tree of Knowledge. Each branch symbolizes a field of Knowledge and each stem with its leave, a particular division of this field. I then thought and said that if my purpose were to attain all Knowledge indeed, this means that it will be required that I painstakingly study most diligently, each leave of this Tree until appropriating all the Knowledge it has to offer, moving from leave to leave; such should be the first possibility to reach me. I heartily laughed at the thought, mocking it! This will require an infinite existence also; whereas, this purpose must be attained in this lifetime!

I then said to myself that if Father be the Source of all Knowledge, knowing that every tree has its source, its root, then the wisest act would be to dig until one reaches the root, then fill oneself totally of it! God, Father (being hence the Root of all Knowledge), then it's best to begin digging into the "Ground" with one's fingers, however painful it be, going from depth to depth until one reaches this Father-Root, fills oneself of Him and then one would become Full of the Knowledge of All Things, shortening so enormously one's Quest of All Knowledge!

Grosso modo, behold the Tree of Knowledge!

Opinion on divers topics judged well sensible by many

1- Concerning couples-related problems

The origin of couple-related problems lies in religious beliefs so unintelligently enforced as the Divine norm! Error! They are nothing but moral rules of men. And it should be well known that moral norms are in general hardly in harmony with Divine Ethics due to the grand Ignorance of men about Them. I judge totally contrary to Divine Ethics the forbidding of cohabitation before marriage. It totally lacks Wisdom in nearly all cases and though they say it be to prevent “sins”, those that impose it without critical examination commit a greater crime! By avoiding that sins be committed, they cause even more, causing hence greater evil! I ask of you that you examine this for yourselves and you will find out that if you want to get to know as much as possible the true personality of your partner, it’d be obviously necessary to observe him as closely as possible and as continually as possible. Otherwise, how can you say if the person be not fooling you, making you believe what he is not, pure hypocrisy? Under a common roof, you’ll have more chances of evaluating him, judging the conformity of his words and acts! He’ll be unable to hide his true personality from you for you will see it manifest itself distinctly through his acts, unconscious acts!

You may now perceive why the rate of divorce is so high on a global level!

While pondering over these divers problems of couples from the viewpoint of Wisdom, I came to perceive that the primordial factor of failure of couple relationships is one well more profound than the former! It has to do with the compatibility of the life philosophy of each party! On this ground, I came to define the following relational psychotypes (as per couples):

- The “++ --“ psychotype

By “- -“, understand “Totally Incompatible to ++”!

In such a relational psychotype, the life philosophy of one is totally contrary to the life philosophy of the other. The two philosophies have nothing in common!

Such a relationship, is most logically, destined to fall apart, with an utmost margin of accuracy of prediction, and this at a very short term!

I admit that such cases must be extremely rare!

- The “++ -+“ psychotype

By “- +”, understand “Partly Compatible to ++”!

I am certain that this is the psychotype of most relationships (of course that of the nature of our discussion here, couples)! The life philosophy of one is in part compatible to that of the other. That allows one to logically infer the existence of a certain number of points common to the two philosophies.

There are risks, threats, very potential risks; and because we prefer to lack Wisdom by indolence, refusing to apply oneself to the undertaking of a critical analysis of our situation, in a strategic manner, one begins lurking at the defects of the other and then crisis begin!

It is better to concentrate on the common points of the philosophy of one and that of the other, making it a strength, a sure foundation, and progress on this basis. Generally, in such cases, one will note that the life philosophy of one is more sound in Wisdom than that of the other. However, risks remain existent and frequently, that are linked to the fact that one of the two individuals (the one whose life philosophy is less sound in Wisdom) fails to even try to upgrade himself or herself, upgrading his or her own life philosophy, that it may be more in the likeness of that of the other that is Wiser (at least), well more weighty in terms of results (from the standpoint of the welfare of the couple and their household), this kind of couples tend very strongly to end up in a divorce in a medium or long time range!

This sort of relationships are much well worth trying, if and only if it is well probable, judging from an analysis of factual potentials, especially on the part of the person whose life philosophy is Wiser, that the other partner is promising in terms of personal development! I mean, if the individual has a strong tendency to unceasingly striving to upgrade himself or herself!

- The “++ ++“ psychotype

You must have inferred that this is the ideal! The two partners have exactly the same life philosophy, the same life purposes! Their harmony, synergy, synchronicity, are so enormous, that they so perfectly comprehend themselves even without a word! One commences a sentence and the other knows intuitively where the former is heading! They pursue their growth in Wisdom together, uniting more and more and attaining ever-increasing degrees of bliss. Their life as a couple glows of bright colors and its beauty is manifestly and grandly unspeakable!

The sole threat here, and I should mention this, is that of one partner, during the course of their common evolution, decides out of his or her free-will, to adopt a new philosophy, more or less contrary to the other! This threat is very minimal! Yet if it so happens, it brings them down to Psychotype 2 or worse, Psychotype 1.

It is Necessary that I also point out that it is very possible that a couple relationship of type Psychotype 2 transforms itself into one of the type of Psychotype 3.

Note: The sad thing with men is that due to their indolence, few of them are capable of taking the time to examine themselves in order to come to define their life philosophy. Therefore, when interrogated towards this end, many would say nonchalantly “My Life Philosophy!!!??? Do I have one? And besides, what do I know about it?” The clear and veritable answer is that everyone has his or her own Life Philosophy even if one seems to know nothing precise about it! For the profound observer, defining the Life

Philosophy of someone is an easy task! It is sufficient to pay keen attention, and critically, to the thoughts of the person through his or her words and acts! Even simpler, just ask the person to tell you about him or herself without letting him know the purpose of the question; otherwise, many may switch personality, setting you on a false route! Men are actors. It is most Natural to them, and among us all humans, women have a greater advantage in this regard!

- The sexual aspect of Man

I'd avoid proceeding to a scientifico-logical demonstration of the crime of religions concerning what they call "Fornication". Yes, from the viewpoint of Divine Ethics, there is such a sin as this, but rest assured that it is as usual totally contrary to how religions in general, define it!

I'd just say that the sexual aspect is inherent to Man and is the manifestation of his basic animal aspect! Many are incapable of resisting this natural aspect that they submit themselves to it and go doing just like cocks! Man is in part an animal, it is well understandable that it be like this! Before becoming a human being, a human being as defined by his physical distinctions, he was once an animal! Logically, it is comprehensible that he manifests such instinctive behaviors similarly to animals. Just one thing, he has to strive to cease being under their submission (submission to these instincts)! He should come to find a way of acting in a manner towards them, in order to master, at least sufficiently, this aspect of himself!

Actually "fornication" is nothing else but the immoderate undertaking of sexual relationships void of every trace of Love and founded on the quest of an egoistic satisfaction of ones desires and personal pleasures; this way, the other is non else but a means of satisfying one's own sexual cravings! It is contrary to Love! It is a capital crime against oneself, then towards the other, it's a sin! And is sin, all that is contrary to Love; Love that we know characterizes itself by sincere concentration on the happiness of the other, devoid of every trace of egoism, caring, tender! Your happiness will come consequently to that of the other!

Therefore, the sexual aspect of Love is nothing else but a Natural act of synergy of two bodies uniting in a tender mental atmosphere, tintured of Pure Intentions (no egoism) and reciprocal Love. It's Ideally like this! People have no need to be married to experience such Natural Bliss! Every other is sinful and the threats in terms of influence of one's well being is enormous!

Before undertaking any sexual intercourse with anyone, take the time, I pray you, to observe the other person in order to ascertain a certain level of morality in this person. Rushing into immediate satisfaction of one's pressing sexual impulses with someone unknown is a cause of various sorrows in the life of many! Actually, during a sexual intercourse, not only bodies merge but also the inner energies of the individuals. At the same time the bodies merge, the energies also merge and there is this phenomenon that I call "Summing-Balancing" that takes place at the unawareness of the two participants! This means that the energies of these individuals, no matter their Ethical qualities are summed then divided into two equal homogeneous parts, that each one of the two receive in equal quantity and quality! If your partner is of sound Ethical qualities, very well; otherwise, VERY WELL too! After all, you'd be satisfied with your having satisfied your sexual impulses, isn't it? !!! Pathetic creature, do you now see how you take unintelligent risks liable to soiling your destiny, bringing you so much sadness that you know not where they're from! Well, here's one source!

Men generally know nothing of what Love is! Today you fall in love with person A, then afterwards (however the time-span), you find out you are no longer in love with A. You break up with him, just to fall in love with B, and again, only to find out subsequently that you no longer are in love with B. Then, the cycle repeats itself all again! And however indolent, pathetic, unintelligent (it matters in no way whether you have all the PhDs in the world), you fail to question yourself seriously and reconsider this ever fleeting sentiment you call "Love". It is love, truly, no doubts, but a FALSE one! The True Love is purely Natural, it is in no wise different in nature from the Love you have for Nature, if it so be you Love Nature!

In all truth, the true Love is that more or less similar to Divine Love! Tell me, does God fall in love? Obviously, no! He is just Loving, He is always in a state of Love! An Infinite Love for all His Creation and mankind particularly, no matter what they do of their free will, no matter what they think of Him or do to His Creatures!

I hope you have well understood. One should never fall in love but rather, always be in a state of Unconditional Love! And were one to fall in love, the ideal is to authentically fall in Love with God! If you are in Love with God, then no doubts, you will Love all His Creatures! And if you claim of yourself that you Love God and yet manifest hatred towards any of His Creatures (even Lucifer or Satan or whoever else, whatever your reasons), then you are fooling yourself, your Love is not True, hence null in Authenticity!

The more you aspire to becoming Divine Love like Father, striving to develop it Naturally, merging it with the Divine Wisdom that Father progressively shares with you, the more you will grow in Love! Having come to the End of the Adventure as a Fundamental Philosopher, you will become Perfect Divine Love like Father!

I am still yet to be Perfect, so it logically follows that my Love is forcibly imperfect, for Perfect Love requires Perfect Wisdom! I can however say that I live in a state of Infinite Love, Loving All Infinitely! It is therefore impossible that I fall in love with anyone, simply because I am always in a state of Infinite Love towards All! My Love for a human being, for instance, is in no wise different from my Love for a tree! Yet, there is an exception! My Love for that lady that will become my spouse is forcibly different! Why! Because, you see, my Love is equal towards All, and it is a unitary Love! You may be questioning yourself saying, what, is he delirious or what? No, in no way my dear brethren! You see, an Ideal Spouse, according to me, is the sum of three persons in one. Talking about persons, evoke personalities!

An Ideal Spouse = Sister (From the Universal viewpoint, since we are all Children of God) + Mother (she stands as a second mother, from the mundane viewpoint)

+ Companion (she is your life partner, so more than a friend, sharing ideally the same Life Philosophy as you or something well close!)

I hope you understand this now clearly! Know that it is only a matter of status! Love should be without dependencies (save on God), no matter its nature!

Consistent efforts and immense battles were required of me in order to become all that I am now and what I am becoming more and more: an individual striving to show himself Perfect in all things, just as His Father Is. Jesus said “Be ye perfect even as your Father in Heaven is Perfect!”. More than two years ago, I’d ponder over this saying, how can this be! I had striven enormously to be perfect in Love but had failed ceaselessly! Today, not only do I know it is a Reality Accomplishable but also do I know the process to attain Total Divine Perfection; and this thanks to the Fundamental Spiritual Philosophy that I spent years seeking until Father judged me ready for it!

Father, I am Infinitely Grateful to You for all, Infinitely Grateful!
