SĀṆKHAṆA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

SĀÑKHĀYANA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.

The Grīhya-sūtra ascribed to Sāñkhāyana, which has been edited and translated into German by myself in the XVth volume of the Indische Studien, is based on the first of the four Vedas, the Rig-veda in the Bāshkala recension\(^1\), and among the Brāhmaṇa texts, on the Kaushitaka. Its reputed author, whom we ordinarily find called by his family name, Sāñkhāyana, had the proper name Suyaṅga. This we may infer from the lists of Vedic teachers given in different Grīhya texts where they describe the Tarpana ceremony. Though in these lists the order of names varies very much, yet the two names Suyaṅga and Sāñkhāyana are constantly placed side by side, so that this fact alone would render it probable that they belonged to the same person. Thus we read in the Sāñkhāyana-Grīhya IV, 10 = VI, 1:

Kaholam Kaushitakim, Mahākaushitakim, Suyaṅgām Sāñkhāyanam, Āsvalāyanam, Aitareyam, Mahaitareyam.

Here we have grouped together the two Brāhmaṇa authors (with the fictitious doubles, the great Kaushitaki, the great Aitareya) and the two corresponding Sūtra authors belonging to the two chief branches of the Rigveda literature; first comes one Brāhmaṇa author (for Kahola Kaushitaki is one person) with the Sūtra author connected with him, then the second Sūtra author and the corresponding Brāhmaṇa teacher.

In the Sāmbavya-Grīhya (Indische Studien, XV, 154) the corresponding passage runs thus:

Gārgya- Gautama- Sākalya- Bāhravya- Māndattavya

\(^1\) See IV, 5, 9.

The same Gṛihya still more explicitly bears witness to the name of Suyagūa Sāṇkhāyana, by adding at the end of the list from which these names are quoted the following words: Suyagūa Sākhāyanaḥ [sic] tri[pya]tu, i.e. 'May Suyagūa Sāṇkhāyana satiate himself (with the water offering).'

In the Ārvalāyana-Gṛihya III, 4, we read:

Kaholam Kaushitakam Mahākaushitakam Paingyam Mahāpaingyam Suyagūaṃ Sāṇkhāyanaṃ Aitareyam Mahaitareyam.

We may also quote here a Kārikā given by Nārāyana in his great commentary on the Sāṇkhāyana-Gṛihya (I, 1, 10):

Atrāraṇiḥpradānam yad adhvaryuh kurute kvakīt matam tan na Suyagūaṃasya, mathitam so 'tra nekkhati.

It would perhaps be hazardous to claim for the author of this Kārikā the authority of an independent witness, for very likely he may have derived his knowledge from the lists of teachers which we have quoted before. But at all events the concordance of the three Gṛihya texts furnishes a proof which, I think, cannot be set aside by another testimony which we must mention now. At the end of the Kaushitaki-Āravyaka (Adhyāya 15) we find a Vamsa or list of the teachers by whom the knowledge contained in that Āravyaka is supposed to have been handed down. The opening words of this list run thus:

'Om! Now follows the Vamsa. Adoration to the Brahman! Adoration to the teachers! We have learnt (this text) from Gunaṃkhyasāṇkhāyana, Gunaṃkhyasāṇkhāyana from Kahola Kaushitaki, Kahola Kaushitaki from Uddālaka Āruṣi, &c.'

It is a very natural supposition that the author of this list intended to begin with the name of the Doctor eponymus, if we may say so, of the Śūtras of his school, and then to proceed to name the Doctor eponymus of the Brāhmaṇas, and after him the more ancient teachers and sages. But whether the author of this passage really supposed this Guṇākhyāna Śāṅkhāyana to be the author of the Śāṅkhāyana-sūtras, or not, we shall be justified in following rather the unanimous statements of the texts previously quoted, and in accepting in accordance with them, as the full name of our Śūtrakāra, the name Suyāgāna Śāṅkhāyana.

INTRODUCTION.

The Grīhyā-sūtra which has been here translated presupposes, as all Grīhyā-sūtras do, the existence of the Śrauta-sūtra, with which it is intimately connected and which is referred to in the Grīhyā in several instances.¹

Here the question arises whether the Grīhyā-sūtra was composed by the same author to whom the authorship of the Śrauta-sūtra belongs, so that the two texts form together, and would, in the conception of their author, be intended to form, one great body of Sūtras, or, on the other hand, whether the Grīhyā-sūtra is a later addition to the Śrauta-sūtra. On this question I have ventured, in the preface to my German edition of Śāṅkhāyana², to offer a few remarks which, however, I feel bound to say do not seem to myself quite decisive. I there pointed out that the Grīhyā-sūtra contains a few aphorisms which we should rather expect would have found their place in the Śrauta-sūtra, if the two texts were composed by the same author and on a common plan.³ But, apart from the possibility that in a work of such considerable extent as that collection of Sūtras would be, such trifling incongruences or irregularities might very easily escape the attention even of a very careful author, there is still another objection that may be urged against the inference drawn by me from such passages. It can be shown⁴ that the Grīhyā texts which we possess are based to some extent on one common original, from which they have taken verbatim, or nearly verbatim, a certain number of aphorisms. Thus if we were to suppose that Śāṅkhāyana,

² Indische Studien, vol. xv, pp. 11, 12.
³ The Sūtras with reference to which I made that observation are I, 8, 14; 14, 13–15; II, 15, 10. Comp. Śrauta-sūtra II, 7, 12; IV, 21.
or whosoever the author of this Gṛihya-sūtra may have been, found the aphorisms on which I once based my argument, in that original text, this would explain the occurrence of those passages in a portion of the great body of Sūtras different from that in which we should expect to meet them. Now several of the passages in question recur identically in other Gṛihya texts, so that we may infer indeed that they are taken from that lost original, and we have no means to judge whether the other similar passages are not taken from it also. I believe, therefore, that the opinion which I once pronounced regarding the relation in which the two Sūtra texts stand to each other, cannot be vindicated, and that it is better to leave that question unanswered until perhaps further discoveries throw a new light on it.

For the reconstruction of the correct text of the Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya, and occasionally also for its interpretation, it is of considerable importance that we possess, besides the Devanāgarī MSS. of the text and of the commentaries, a South Indian MS. written in the Grantha character (MS. Whish 78 in the library of the Royal Asiatic Society, London) which contains a Gṛihya based on that of Sāṅkhāyana and following it, during the greater part of the work, nearly word for word. It is designated in the MS., at the end of the single Adhyāyas, as ‘Kaushitaka-Gṛihya.’ It therefore professes to follow the teaching of the same Brāhmaṇa which is adhered to also by the Sūtra school of Sāṅkhāyana. A metrical commentary, which in the MS. follows after the text, names in its opening Sloka a teacher Sāṃbavya as the author of this Sūtra. The Sloka runs thus:

Natvā Kaushitakākāryam Sāṃbavyam sūtrakṛittamam gṛihyam tadiyam saṃkshipya vyākhyaśye bahuvismṛitam.

(‘Having bowed to the most excellent author of Sūtras, to Sāṃbavya, the Ākārya belonging to the Kaushitaka school, I shall compose a short commentary on his Gṛihya, which has been forgotten by many.’)

The name of this Sāṃbavya does not occur among the teachers enumerated in the description of the Tarpana ceremony, neither in Sāṅkhāyana IV, 10, nor in Āsvalāyana III, 4; but in the list of the Sāmbavya-Gṛihya itself it is found (see above, p. 4); and besides it seems to me also to be mentioned in Āsvalāyana-Gṛihya IV, 8, 24, in which passage it will scarcely be considered too bold to conjecture Sāmbavya instead of Sāmvatya.

INTRODUCTION.

Though the MS. of the Sāmbavya-Gṛihya is very confused, and full of blunders of all sorts, yet it deserves to be attentively studied by all scholars who are accustomed to look, if not in theory yet in practice, on the agreement of a few Vedic text MSS., or of a few Indian commentaries, as if it had a claim to an unassailable authority to which European Orientalists would have no right to deny their faith. In the Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya a number of passages are found in which corrupt readings or perverse explanations are supported by all the Sāṅkhāyana MSS. and by all the Sāṅkhāyana commentaries, and if, by a rare and fortunate chance, the Sāmbavya Grantha MS., which is unaffected by the blunders of the Devanāgarī MSS., had not been discovered in the south of the peninsula, these readings and explanations would seem to rest on the unanimous agreement of tradition. Perhaps it seems unnecessary to dwell on this point, for very few Orientalists, if any, would be prepared to assert that Indian tradition is infallible. But when looking over many of the editions and translations of the Vedic texts, even such as have been published in the last years, one finds plentiful occasion to observe that in hundreds of passages tradition has been practically treated, by scholars of very high merit, as if it had an authority not very far removed from infallibility. A case like that of which we have to speak here, in which a whole set of MSS., and occasionally also of commentaries, can be tested by a MS. of a nearly related text, written in a different character and in a distant part of India, will strengthen our belief that we are right in judging for ourselves, even if that judgment should oppose itself to such authorities as Nārāyana or Rāmakandra or Gayarāma.

Perhaps it will not be out of place to add here, as an illustration of these remarks, a few observations on one of the passages in which the rejection of the traditional Sāṅkhāyana reading, together with the traditional Sāṅkhāyana explanation, is confirmed by the Sambavya MS., though no doubt, even without the aid of that MS., we ought to have formed the right conclusions for ourselves. At Sāṅkhāyana II, 4, i. 2. the traditional reading is:

Mama vrate hridayam te dadhāmi mama kīttam anu kīttam te astu | mama vākam ekamānā gushasva Brihaspatish tvā niyunaktu mahyam iti | kāmasya brahma-karasyāsāv iti.

Sāṅkhāyana is treating here of the Upanayana, or the initiation of the student who is received by a teacher and intends to study the Veda with him. The teacher on that occasion is to pronounce the Mantra which we have just transcribed, and which translated into English would run thus:

‘Under my will I take thy heart; after my mind shall thy mind follow; in my word thou shalt rejoice with all thy heart; may Brihaspati join thee to me.’ ‘Of the Brahmakārya of Kāma (or lust), N. N.’

The MSS. give the end of the passage as we have printed it above, kāmasya brahmakāryasyāsāv iti. This Nārāyana explains in the following way. Brahmakārya here means the observances which the student has to keep through certain periods of time before the different texts which he has to learn can be taught him. First comes the Sāvitrī verse, for which he prepares himself by observing the sāvitra vrata; this lasts either one year, or three days, or the Sāvitrī can also be taught him immediately (see chap. 5, i–3). Then follows the sukriya vrata, of three days, or twelve days, or one year, or any other period of time according to the teacher’s pleasure (chap. 11, 10); by this vrata the student is enabled to study the main portion of the Veda. Finally come the sākvara, vrātika, a upanisha da observances, each of which has to last one year, and which refer to the different parts of the Ārañyaka (see chap. 11, 11 seq., and the sixth book). Now the formula of which we treat here refers principally to the sāvitra vratas. The teacher announces to the student how long he has to keep that vrata. He says (Sūtra 1), 'May Brhaspati join thee to me (Sūtra 2) for a brahma-kārya (i.e. a vrata) of such and such (kāmasya) a time (one year, three days, &c.), N. N. 1.' Kāma (the pleasure) would thus stand here as an expletive which was to be replaced in each single case by the indication of the real space of time that depended on the teacher's pleasure ('... niyunaktu mahyam sāṃvatsarikasya tairātrikasya vānvakshikasya vā sāvitrasya brahma-kāryasyāmukāmukasarmann iti vākyasaṃyogo gne-yah'). The same should take place at the corresponding forms of Upanayana which had to precede the entrance of the student upon the suktiya, sākvara, &c. observances. This is the explanation of Nārâyana, with which Rāmadandras and all the other commentaries agree. It will scarcely be necessary to observe that the singular use of kāma, on which this traditional explanation rests, is neither in accordance with the meaning of the word, nor supported by any parallel texts. So, even before I had the opportunity of collating the Sāmbavya MS., I had no doubt that the system of the Vratas has nothing at all to do with our Sūtra, and that its text should be made intelligible by a slight alteration touching only the quantity of the a in two syllables, by writing, Kāmasya brahma-kāryasyaṁ asāv iti (thou art the Brahma-kārīn of Kāma, N. N. 1), as we read in Āśvalāyana I, 20, 8, kasya brahma-kāryasyaṁ, prānasya brahma-kāryasya. Afterwards I found that the Grantha MS. of Sāmbavya gives the very reading which I had conjectured.

Passages like this are not very rare in the Grihya-sūtras. In the other Sūtras we are not in the same favourable position of possessing a MS. which enables us, as the Grantha MS. of Sāmbavya does, to test their text.

We cannot conclude these introductory remarks without speaking of the later additions tacked on at the end of the original body of the Sāṅkhāyana-Grihya-sūtras1. There are unmistakable indications that the fifth and sixth books are later additions. The fifth book is designated as a pariṣiṣṭa in a Kārikā quoted by Nārāyaṇa:

1 Comp. the remarks in my German edition of Sāṅkhāyana, Ind. Studien, XV, 7.

pariṣiṣṭād āvasathyे pārvanātikrame karukh
Vaisvānaraḥ āgnaye kāgnaye¹ tantumate tathā.

('According to the Parisóżha, if one of the half-monthly sacrifices has been omitted, a mess of rice should be offered on the sacred domestic fire to Agni Vaisvānara and to Agni Tantumat.')

The passages of the 'Parisóżha' here referred to are the two first aphorisms of V, 4:

'Now if a half-monthly sacrifice has not been performed, one or the other of them, then a mess of rice (is to be offered)—

'With (the words), "To Agni Vaisvānara svāhā! To Agni Tantumat svāhā!"'

There are, besides, several passages in which Nārāyaṇa himself mentions the fifth book under the designation of Parisēshādhyāya.² And even if we had not the authority of the Kārikā and of Nārāyaṇa, the contents alone of the fifth book would raise our suspicion against its genuineness. The matter ordinarily treated of in the Grihya texts is brought to an end in Adhyāyas I–IV; in the fifth book we find diverse supplementary additions on points discussed before; rules, which no doubt would have been given at their proper place, had the fifth book been composed at the same time, and by the same author, as the preceding books.³ Besides, we find different prāyāṣkītta oblations treated of, and a description of two ceremonies which are mentioned, as far as I know, in no other Grihya-sūtra, but belong to the rites frequently described in such works as Purāṇas, Parisóżhas, and later Dharma texts: the consecration of ponds or wells (chap. 2), and the consecration of gardens (chap. 3).

There can thus be little doubt as to the secondary character of the fifth book. And this alone suffices to furnish an important argument in favour of the same view with regard to the sixth book also. This view is furthermore supported by the opening invocation in that book, addressed to Brahman and to a number of mythological beings and Vedic sages and teachers. It is evident that by such an invocation this book is characterised as a separate treatise, presupposing of course the main body of the Sāṅkhāyana-sūtras, but not forming part of it in the same sense in which, for instance, the second or the third Adhyāya does. The object of that treatise is the exposition of the ritual connected with the study of the Rahasya texts. The sixth book, composed no doubt by a later adherent of the Sāṅkhāyana school, returns, in fact, to, and enlarges on, matters that have already found their proper place in the original Grīhya-sūtra at II, 12, and partly also at IV, 7.

SĀŃKHĀYANA-GRĪHYA-SŪTRA.

ADHYĀYA I, KHANDA 1.

1. Now henceforth we shall declare the Pākayāgas.

2. When (a pupil) is going to return (from his teacher), let him keep that fire (as his domestic fire) on which he has put the last piece of wood (as required by the regulations for a student),

3. Or (he should keep) his nuptial fire.

1, 1. The ceremonies to be treated of are defined here as the Pākayāgas (i.e. oblations of cooked offerings) just as in the opening sentence of the Pāraskara-Grīhya they are called grīhya-sthālipākās. This is indeed the most characteristic form of offerings belonging to the domain of the Grīhya ritual, though it would not be correct to state that the Grīhya-sūtras treat exclusively of sacrificial ceremonies of this kind.

2. As to the duty of the Vedic student of putting every day a piece of wood on the sacred fire of his teacher, see below, II, 6, 8, and compare the Grīhya-samgraha-pariṣiṣṭa II, 58. According to a Kārikā given by Nārāyana, and the Karmapradīpa (I, 6, 13), the prescription of this Sūtra regarding the time for the kindling of the sacred fire refers exclusively to the case of vāgdāna (betrothal). Comp. also Dr. Bloomfield’s note on the Grīhya-samgraha-pariṣiṣṭa I, 76 (Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, XXXV, 560). In the Kārikā it is stated that if the betrothed girl dies after the fire has been kindled, but before the marriage, the sacrificer is not to forsake his fire, but to marry another girl; if he cannot find a bride, he should make the fire enter into himself according to the rules given by Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhya V, 1, and himself become uttarāsramin, i.e. enter one of the two final Āṣramas.
Some declare (that the domestic fire should be kindled) at the time of the division of the inheritance.

Or that after the death of the householder the eldest one himself (should kindle it).

(It should be kindled) on the day of the new moon of the month of Vaisākha or on another (new moon day).

Some say (that the fire should be kindled) according to the (sacrificer's) wishes under the (corresponding) constellation.

He should light his fire at one of the following places, viz. in the house of a Vaisya who is rich in

5. Nārāyana: 'If the fire has not been kindled at the time stated above, then, after the householder . . . i.e. the father, even if he should not have performed the ādhibhāna, or the elder brother has died, the eldest son (or the son who after his elder brother's death has become the eldest), after he has performed the Sapindaśkarana (for the dead father or brother; see below, IV, 3, and the ninth chapter of the Parisishā [book V]), even if he has not divided the inheritance with his younger brothers (so that the time stated in the fourth Śūtra would not have arrived), should kindle the fire himself, i.e. without an officiating priest (ṛtvig). . . . Or the Śūtra should be divided into two; prete vā grhaapatau (or after the death of the householder), and svayam gyāyān (the eminent one himself), i.e. of Brāhmaṇas, Kṣatriyas, and Vaisyas a gyāyān, which means a most eminent person, a Brāhmaṇa, performs the Pākayagñās himself; for the two other castes the Pākayagñās have to be performed through an officiating priest: this is the meaning of this svayam (himself).' I have given this note of Nārāyana as a specimen of the entirely arbitrary and obviously misleading explanations which are unfortunately so frequently found in this author, as indeed in most of the other Śūtra commentators. As to the true meaning of this svayam I still adhere to the explanation which I proposed in my German edition of the text (p. 118), that in case no division of the inheritance takes place, the sacred fire should be kindled on behalf of all the joint-proprietors, but that only the eldest brother should act personally (svayam).

8. Or, 'at (the fire of) a person rich in cattle, in the house of a Vaisya,' &c.? The commentators (see p. 118 of the German cattle, at a frying-pan, or (at the fire of) one who offers many sacrifices.

9. Some say that (the fire should be fetched from one of the above-mentioned places) in the evening and in the morning.

10. The inauguration (of the fire) by an evening offering should be learnt from the Adhvaryus, according to (my) teacher.

11. In the morning he shall offer a full oblation with a verse sacred to Vishṇu, or silently.

12. The time for setting it (i.e. the domestic fire) in a blaze and for sacrificing on it has been explained by (the rules given with regard to) the Agniḥotra.

Edition) differ as to whether in purupāra-viśkula one or two alternatives are contained, and it is interesting to see that the Sūtra authors themselves differed in this respect; Pāraskara (I, 2, 3), when declaring from what place the fire should be fetched, speaks of the house of a Vaiśya rich in cattle; Āśvalāyana, on the contrary, who in the Gṛhya-sūtra does not expressly treat of the kindling of the domestic fire, in the corresponding passage of the Śrauta-sūtra (II, 2, 1), gives the rule that the dakṣīṇāgni is to be fetched 'from the house of a Vaiśya or from a rich person.'

9-11. I now differ from the opinion which I pronounced in my German edition with regard to the relation in which these three Sūtras stand to each other. I think they ought to be understood thus: 9. Some teachers say that the fetching of the fire from its yoni, as taught in Sūtra 8, ought to be done twice; in the evening, so that the fire, after the necessary rites have been performed, goes out, and then again in the morning. 10. But my (the author's) teacher (comp. as to ākāryāh, Kātyāyana's Śrauta-sūtra I, 3, 7; Professor Garbe's note on Vaiśāna-sūtra 1, 3) is of opinion that the fire should be fetched only once, and that with this fire the ceremonies which are taught by the Adhvaryus are to be performed in the evening (see, for instance, Kāty. IV, 7. 8, which passage is paraphrased here by Nārāyaṇa). 11. In the morning (according to the same teacher, not, as I once understood this passage, according to the eke referred to in Sūtra 9), a full oblation is to be offered, &c.

12. Śrauta-sūtra II, 6, 2 seq.
13. And 'invested with the sacrificial cord,' &c., all these rules, as far as they are applicable, should be applied (here also) in consequence of the unity of the ritual.

14. With regard to this they quote also (the following Słoeka):

15. 'The kinds of Pākayagñas, the kinds of Haviryagñas, and again the kinds of Soma sacrifices, 'Twenty-one by number, these are proclaimed to be the kinds of sacrifice.'

Khanda 2.

1. At the end of the sacrificial acts (follows) the distribution of food to Brāhmaṇas.

2. Voice, (pleasantness of) form, age, learning, moral character, (right) conduct are the qualities (required in the Brāhmaṇas who are to be invited thereto).

13. Srauta-sūtra I, 1, 6. 7: yagñopavitt devakarmāni karoti, prādhanāvittī pitryāni, &c. The unity of the ritual of course means the unity of the two great domains of the Srauta and Gṛhya ritual.

15. With regard to the twenty-one kinds of sacrifice compare, for instance, Gautama VIII, 18-20; Max Müller, Z.D.M.G. IX, p. lxxiii; Weber, Indische Studien, X, 326. The seven kinds of Pākayagñas are the Ashvakā sacrifices (see below, III, 12 seq.), the sacrifices offered at each Parvan (I, 3), the Srāddha (or funeral) sacrifices (IV, 1, seq.), the sacrifice of the Śrāvaṇī full moon (IV, 15), of the Ágrahāyaṇī (IV, 17 seq.), of the Kāitrī (IV, 19), and of the Ásvayugī (IV, 16). The seven Havis sacrifices (belonging, as is the case also with the third division of sacrifices, to the Srauta ritual) are the Agnyādhyeya, the Agniḥotra, the sacrifices of the full and new moon, the Ágrayama, the three Kāturmāsya sacrifices, the Nirūdhaparabandha, and the Sautrāmanī. The seven kinds of Soma sacrifices (of which the more ancient texts mention only three or four saṃsthās, see Weber, Indische Studien, IX, 120) are the Ágnishoma, the Atyagnishoma, the Ukthya, the Shodarin, the Atirātra, the Aptoryāma.
3. Learning, however, outweighs every (other qualification).

4. A learned one should not be passed over.

5. 'The threefold (knowledge, viz. that) which refers to the deities, that which refers to the Âtman, and that which refers to sacrifice,

'(Handed down) in the Mantras and in the Brâhmaṇa: this is called learning.

6. 'A performer of the sacred rights, a man who has studied (the Veda), who is old in learning and devoted to austerities:

'He who gives food (even) once to such (a Brâhmaṇa), hunger will not befall that man any more.

7. 'Whatever deity he may wish to satiate at any sacrifice,

'Destining it to that (deity) in his mind, he shall give (the food) to a person like that.

8. 'An oblation deposited in a person like that will never miss its way to the deity;

'Treasure of men, vessel of gods (in which they receive what is given to them) he is called.'

3, 1. Most probably this rule should be divided into two Sūtras, so that atha dārsāpūrṇamāsau would stand as the heading of the chapter; comp. below, chap. 18, 1, atha āturthākarma; chap. 24, 1, atha gātakarma, &c.

2. 'If this is expressly stated, the oblation is to be made in night-time; for instance, at the Vâstospathiya ceremony it is stated, "The tenth oblation of the Sthâlipâka, to Agni Svishākriit at night" (see below, III, 4, 8).' Nârâyana.
top of the great trees, that is the most auspicious time for all kinds of sacrifices, unless there be a special rule.

3. With a genial mind, clean, on a pure, protected spot, having cooked a full, thin mess of rice, he offers that cooked oblation to the deities of the festivals of the new and full moon, distributing it in the due way.

4. In the oblations of cooked food the acts of taking (the intended oblation), of putting it down (near the fire), and of sprinkling it (with water) are performed with regard to the deities of the (respective) Mantras.

3. On vighaṇa, which I have translated thin, see the note in the German edition, pp. 119 seq.

The deities of the festivals of the new and full moon (i.e. of the rites which in the Srauta ritual correspond to that taught here) are, at the full moon, Agni and Agniṣṭoma, at the new moon, Agni, Vishnu, and Indrágni, who are preceded in both cases by Agni and Soma as the deities of the two āgyabhāgas (see below, ch. 9, 7), and followed by Agni Svishṭākrit. For more detailed statements see Hillebrandt, Das altindische Neu- und Vollmondsopfer (Jena, 1879), pp. 102 seq.

4. For instance, the taking of the portion of food destined to Agni should be performed with the Mantra: Agnaye tvā guṣṭaṁ grihṇāmi, &c. A number of ceremonies common to the Sthālīpāka ritual and to the ordinary ritual of Āgya oblations, such as the stewing of Kura grass round the fire, the ceremonies regarding the Pavitras (strainers), &c., have to be supplied here from the Āgya ritual given below (ch. 7 seq.); this may be looked upon as an argument in favour of our conjecture which will be stated in the preface (vol. ii of the Grhyya-sūtras), that our text, as probably is the case also with the Pāraskara-sūtra, is based on an original, the opening sentences of which are preserved to us in Sāṅkhī, I,
5, 1–5=Pāraskara I, 4, 1–5, so that the first chapters of Sāṅkhā-yana, and among them the exposition of the festivals of the full and new moon, would have been prefixed to the original commence-

5. And the rules about the portions to be cut off (from the sacrificial food, are valid).

6. But before the sacrifices of the new and full moon one should make offerings to the deities of the Anvārambhāntya ceremony.

7. The time for the new moon sacrifice is not elapsed until the full moon, nor that for the full moon sacrifice until the new moon.

8. And some say that the morning oblation may be made at the time of the evening oblation, in the case of danger.

9. But the time is fixed, as at the Agnihotra an expiation has been prescribed for him who has neglected the time.

10. At the two daily oblations one should use as sacrificial food either rice or barley or grains.

11. In case these are not at hand, other (sorts of sacrificial food are) not prohibited.

12. Some say that if he uses grains, he should wash them.

13. With the other (kinds of food) no such preparation takes place.

6. The Anvārambhāntya-ishā is the sacrifice taught in the Srauta texts which is to be performed before the sacrificer for the first time offers the Dârṣrapūramâsa sacrifice. See Weber, Indische Studien, X, 330; Hillebrandt, loc. cit., p. 185. The deities of this ceremony are Agnīvishṇu, Sarasvati, and Sarasvatī.

7. Comp. the expiatory sacrifice prescribed in the Parīshâna book, V, 4.

8. The text here passes over from the two monthly sacrifices to the two daily ones, which correspond to the Agnihotra of the Srauta ritual.

15. And after both silently to Pragâpati.

KHANDA 4.

1. When he has risen in the morning and has sipped water, let him daily repeat his recital.

2. (This consists of, or is accompanied by, the following texts:) the two verses, ‘To-day, god Savitar’ (Rig-veda V, 82, 4-5); the hymn, ‘Go away, Manasaspati’ (X, 164); the hymn, ‘Right and truth’ (X, 190); the verses, ‘Look down, ye Âdityas,’ to the end of the hymn (VIII, 47, 11-18); 14, 15. These are the same deities who are worshipped also at the Agnihotra.

4, 1. The Paddhati of Râmañjâra understands svâdhîyâyaṁ adhyâyâta as a prescription to perform the daily Brahmayâgña (comp., for instance, Ârvalâyana-Grîhya III, 2; Âpastamba I, 11, 22 seq.), which consists in the recitation of portions of the Veda; the hymns and verses stated in Sûtra 2 are, according to the same authority, to be repeated immediately after the recitation of the svâdhîyâya (‘svâdhîyâyanantaram’). Nârâyana, on the contrary, considers that the svâdhîyâya prescribed in Sûtra 1 consists of those very hymns and verses which are indicated in the second Sûtra. As to the Brahmayâgña, he says that the kā at the end of the second Sûtra may be referred to it (‘the word kā means that texts procuring a long life, such as Rig-veda I, 89, should be murmured, or an injunction of the Brahmayâgña is intended’). At all events it is very difficult to believe that the recitation of the texts stated in this chapter should be quite independent from the daily Brahmayâgña. About the performance of the Brahmayâgña in our days comp. the note of Professor Bühler, Sacred Books of the East, vol. ii, p. 43.
the verse, ‘O Indra, the best treasures’ (II, 21, 6); the verse, ‘The swan dwelling in purity’ (IV, 40, 5); the verse, ‘Adoration to the great ones’ (I, 27, 13); the verse, ‘What we fear, Indra’ (VIII, 50, 13); the verse, ‘And of the sleep’ (I, 120, 12); the verse, ‘He who says to me, O king’ (II, 28, 10); the hymn, ‘Let glory be mine, Agni’ (X, 128); and the five verses, ‘Bliss may create for us’ (V, 51, 11 seq.).

This Sûtra and the following ones down to the fifth are identical with Pâraskara I, 4, 1–5; it seems to me that we have here before us the opening Sûtras of a lost text from which this passage has been copied both by Sàňkhâyana and Pâraskara. the wooers (whom he sends to the girl's father) when they go away, the verse, 'Thornless' (Rig-visitors to the west.

7, r seq. Here follows a description of the sacrifice which is to be performed when the girl's father has declared his assent (pratisrute) to give her away in marriage: this is the general model for all Grihya sacrifices.—'Varo guhoti,' Nārāyana.

in Sūtra 7, there are four indicated in accordance with the doctrine of that Parishṭhā and of Gobhila himself, which are stated to be sacred to Prārthiva, Pragāpati, Indra, and Soma, while the line turned from south to north is sacred to Agni.

8 seq. Here are indicated the chief oblations of this sacrifice (anyā āhutayaḥ pradhānabḥūtāḥ, Nār.), or the āvāpa (the insertion, Śūtra 12) which comes between the standing introductory and concluding oblations.

11. Nor in the standing oblations, according to Māṇḍūkeya.

12. The place for the insertion is the interval between the Mahāvyāhṛītis, the general expiation, and the oblation to Prāgāpati.

11. See chap. 8, 13.

12. This Sūtra prescribes where the āvāpa, i.e. the special characteristic offerings of each sacrifice, is to be inserted between the regular offerings that belong to the standing model. The same subject is treated of in the Srauta-sūtra in the two rules, I, 16, 3 and 4: 'Whatsoever is offered between the two Ṭīgya portions and the Śvishākṛīt, that is called āvāpa; this is the chief part (pradhāna) (of the sacrifice); the other (oblations) are subordinate thereto (tadāṅgāni).' The position of the āvāpa among the other oblations is indicated by Pāraskara in the following rule (I, 5, 6): 'Between the general expiation and the oblation to Prāgāpati, this is the place for the āvāpa.' (The word vivāhe at the end of this Sūtra seems to me to belong not to this rule, but to Sūtra 7.) Our Sūtra is identical with that of Pāraskara word for word; only instead of sarvaprayāyaskītta, as Pāraskara has, we read here, mahāvyāhṛītisarvaprayāyaskītta. This means, I believe, that the āvāpa, preceded and followed by the Mahāvyāhṛīti oblations (comp. below, I, 12, 13), should be placed between the Sarvaprayāyaskītta and the Prāgāpatya oblation. The oblations made with the Mahāvyāhṛītyayas are four in number; the corresponding formulas are: bhūta śvāha, bhūva śvāhā, śvāha śvāhā, bhūr bhūva śvāha śvāha (comp. below, chap. 12, 12). The Sarvaprayāyaskītta (general expiation) consists of two oblations, one with the three Mahāvyāhṛītyayas, the other with the verse ayās kāgīne, quoted in the Srauta-sūtra III, 19, 3, and in Āṣvalāyana's Srauta-sūtra I, 11, 13. (On the Sarvaprayāyaskītta in the Srauta ritual, compare Hillebrandt, Neu- und Vollmondopfer, p. 166.) The Prāgāpatya oblation is performed with the formula Pragāpataye śvāha. The discussions of Nārāyana on this Sūtra (see p. 125 of the German edition) evidently fail to bring out the true meaning of the text; according to this commentator the oblations follow each other in this order: the two Āgyabhaṅgas, the principal oblations (pradhānāhutayāḥ), the Śvishākṛīt, the four Mahāvyāhṛīti oblations, the two Sarvaprayāyaskītta oblations, the Prāgāpatya oblation. Finally we may mention the corrupt form in which the corresponding passage of the Sāmbavaya-sūtra is pre-
13. If the oblation consists in Āgya, let him seize the Kusa blades in his left hand with his right hand at their points and with the left at their roots, and let him wet their points (with Āgya) in the Sruva, the middle and the roots in the Āgya pot;

14. In the oblations of cooked food, however, the points in the Sruṅk, the middle in the Sruva, the roots in the Āgya pot.

16. And has put on (the fire) three pieces of wood,

17. (Water) is sprinkled round (the fire) as stated above.

18. Oblations for which only the deities are indicated, but no texts prescribed, are to be made merely with the word Svāhā, ‘To such and such a deity svāhā! To such and such a deity svāhā!’

8. Then follows the distribution of food to Brâhmanas.

KHANDA 12.

1. The bridegroom, who has bathed and for whom auspicious ceremonies have been performed, is escorted by happy young women, who are not widows, to the girl’s house.

2. To these he shall not behave unobsequiously, except where forbidden food or a transgression is concerned.

3. Having obtained their permission, he then gives her the garment with (the verse), ‘The Raibhi was’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 6).

4. The ‘king Pratyânîka’ has given origin to a very curious misunderstanding in the Sâmbavya-Grihya and its commentary; see p. 127 of the German edition.
4. With (the verse), 'Mind was the cushion' (ibid. 7) he takes up the salve-box.

5. The verse for the anointing is, 'May the Visve devâs anoint (or, unite),' (ibid. 47.)

6. 'As this (has protected) Saët the beloved one, and Aditi the mother of noble sons, and Apâlâ who was free from widowhood, may it thus here protect thee, N.N.!'—with these words (the bridegroom) gives her into her right hand the quill of a porcupine (and) a string of three twisted threads,

7. With the verse, 'Shape by shape' (Rig-veda VI, 47, 18) a mirror into the left.

8. Her relations tie (to her body) a red and black, woollen or linen cord with three (amulet) gems, with the verse, 'Dark-blue and red' (Rig-veda X, 85, 28).

9. With the verse, 'Full of honey the herbs' (Rig-veda IV, 57, 3), (the bridegroom) ties (to her body) Madhûka flowers.

12, 5. On the ceremony of 'salving together' (samañaãgana), comp. Pâraskara I, 4, 14; Gobhila II, 2, &c. Professor Stenzler is certainly wrong in translating Pâraskara's samañaãgayati by 'heisst sie beide zusammentreten' (according to Gayarâma's explanation, sammukhikaroti). It is clear from Sâñkhâyana, that a real anointing of bridegroom and bride took place. This was performed, according to Gobhila, by the 'audaka' (this seems to be the same person that is mentioned in Pâraskara I, 8, 3), of whom it is said, pâñigrâham (i.e. the bridegroom) mûrdhades e 'vasiâkatì, tathêtarâm. Nârâyana, on the contrary, in his note on our passage, says that it is the bridegroom who anoints the eyes of the girl with the verse quoted. But the word sam-añgana, and the obvious meaning of the whole rite, make it rather probable that both were anointed, and that this was done by a third person.

6. Comp. below, chap. 22, 8, where the use of a porcupine's quill is prescribed at the simantonnayana ceremony; and see chap. 22, 10.

10. At the wedding one cow, when the Argha ceremony has been performed; in the house one cow: these are the two Madhuparka cows.

11. (The bridegroom) makes the girl sit down behind the fire, and while she takes hold of him he makes three oblations with the Mahávyáhráthis.

10. As to the meaning of arhayitvā I differ from the opinion of Náráyana (see his note on p. 127 of the German edition), who takes gām as the object of this verb (gām arhayitvā págayitvā mātā rudrānām ity rikam gapitvā [comp. Páráskara I, 3, 27]). The real meaning of arhayati is, to perform the Argha ceremony for a guest. Evidently in this Sūtra two different occasions are stated on which the Argha reception, eventually with the killing of a cow, should be performed; firstly, the bridegroom should be so received in the house of the bride's father; secondly, when the newly-married people have arrived at their own house, an Argha reception should there be offered to them, perhaps, as the commentaries state, by the Âkārya.

11. According to Náráyana it is the Âkārya who performs the rite prescribed in this Sūtra; Rámáčandra, on the contrary, refers it to the bridegroom, which seems to me right. Comp. Gobhila II, 1.

In Sánkháyana's description of the wedding ceremonies the point at which the bride passes over from the paternal power into that of her new husband is not expressly indicated. Páráskara (I, 4, 15) clearly indicates it (pitrá Prattám ádáya), and in the Párisišhá of the Ásvaláyana-Gríhya this act of handing over the girl is treated of in detail (I, 22). On this depends the description in the Prayogartha, fol. 69; comp. also Colebrooke's Miscell. Essays, I, 210. The Paddhati of Rámáčandra does not fail to mention the kanyápradâna, but I do not think that the succession of the different rites is stated there correctly. According to the Paddhati the bridegroom goes to the house of the girl's father, and there, after the madhuparka has been offered, the bride is given over to him; he then (labdhavadhúkañ) goes (chap. 12, 1), accompanied by young women, to the kautukágára, where the ceremonies described in chap. 12, 3 seq. take place. Páráskara, on the contrary, describes the handing over of the garments, the anointing, &c., as preceding the giving over of the girl, and indeed it is scarcely possible to see in the acts of dressing, adorning the girl, &c., in which both the bridegroom and her relations...
12. A fourth (oblation) with (the three Mahâvyâhrâties) together is to be understood from this rule.

13. In this way, where no express rule is stated, in all sacrifices that procure happiness, one is to sacrifice before and afterwards with these same (Mahâvyâhrâties).

Khandâ 13.

1. 'Be queen with thy father-in-law,' with this verse (Rig-veda X, 85, 46) her father or brother sacrifices with a sword's point on her head, or with the Sruva, standing while she is sitting, with his face turned to the west, while her face is turned to the east.

2. 'I seize thy hand for the sake of happiness' (Rig-veda X, 85, 36), with these words (the bridegroom) seizes with his right hand her right hand with the thumb, both hands being turned with the palms upwards, he standing while she is sitting, with his face turned to the west, while her face is turned to the east.

3. And when he has murmured the following five verses,

4. (He continues thus,) 'This am I, that art thou; take part, anything but preparatory performances that precede the decisive moment. The sacrifice, on the contrary, which the bridegroom performs, according to chap. 12, 11, in common with his bride, seems to presuppose that he has already received her from her father; and the ceremonies described in chap. 13, the pâñigrâhayana, the pronouncing of the Mantra, chap. 13, 4, which reminds one of the Roman formula ubi tu Gaius, the seven steps—all that should be understood not as intended to establish the power of the husband over his wife, but as presupposing that power and showing an exercise of it.

13, 4. Nârâyana states that here four Brâhmanas should repeat D 2 that art thou, this am I; the heaven I, the earth thou; the Rik art thou, the Sâman I. So be thou devoted to me.

‘Well! Let us here marry. Let us beget offspring. Let us acquire many sons who may reach old age.’

5. (The Âkârya) fills, with the words bhûr bhuvah svakh, a new water-pot,

6. Throws into it (branches) with milky sap and leaves, of a tree the name of which is masculine, together with Kusa grass,

7. And gold, according to some (teachers),

8. And hands it over to a student who observes silence.

9. They should walk round this Stheyâ water, (placed) to the north-east, so that they turn their right sides towards it.

the Stûryâ hymn (Rig-veda X, 85) to the bride. That, according to Sânkhâyana, that hymn is recited at the wedding, is clear from chap. 14, 12.

6. Sakshîrânt sapalâsânt sakusân. Nârâyana’s commentary divides sa kusân, and refers sa to the Âkârya. But this sa would be superfluous, and the substantive to which sakshîrân and sapalâsân are to be referred, is, as both the nature of the case and the corresponding passages show, sâkhân and not kusân. Comp. the Srauta-sûtra IV, 17, 5: palâsasâkhâm sapalâsâm nikhâya, and a passage concerning the very rite here described, Âsvalâyana-parishishâ I, 24: audumbaryârdhayâ (read, ârdrayâ?) sâkhayâ sapalâsrayâ sahiranyapavitrayâ sadûrvâpavitrayâ. The MS. of the Sambavya-sûtra has sakshîrân palâsân sakusân.

9. ‘The Stheyâ water has to be so placed that when the bride and the bridegroom walk (their seven steps, see chap. 14, 5 seq.), their right sides are turned towards it.’ Nârâyana. Comp., regarding the Stheyâ water and its bearer, the Grihya-samgraha-parishishâ II, 26. 30. 35.
10. And after (the Ākārya) has placed a stone towards the northern direction,
11. (The bridegroom) makes her rise with the words, 'Come, thou joyful one,'
12. And makes her tread with the tip of her right foot on the stone, with the words, 'Come, tread on the stone; like a stone be firm. Tread the foes down; overcome the enemies.'
13. He then leads her round the fire so that their right sides are turned to it,
14. And gives her a second garment with the same text (chap. 12, § 3).
15. Her father or brother pours out of a basket fried grain mixed with Śamī leaves into her joined hands.
16. The spreading under, the sprinkling over, and the second sprinkling over (are done) with Āgya.
17. She sacrifices those (fried grains).

KHANDA 14.

1. 'This woman, strewing grains, prays thus, "May I bring bliss to my relations; may my husband live long. Svāhā!"'—while the husband murmurs (this) text, she sacrifices standing.
2. (All the ceremonies,) beginning from the tread-

17. I believe that the words forming this Sūtra, tāṇī guhoti, are taken from the same lost old Grīhya text which Sāṅkhāyana has followed word for word also in I, 5, 1–5 and elsewhere. This is made probable by the comparison of Pāraskara I, 6, 2. The author of our text, while literally adopting the words of his original, has not quite succeeded in welding them together with his own statements; thus the sacrifice of grains is treated of in this Sūtra and in the first Sūtra of the next chapter, as if there were two different acts, while indeed it is one and the same.
14, 2. The treading on the stone is prescribed in chap. 13, 12.
ing upon the stone, (are repeated) in the same way for a second time,

3. And in the same way a third time.

4. Silently, if they like, a fourth time.

5. (The Ākārya?) makes (them) step forward in a north-eastern direction seven steps (with the words),

6. ‘For sap with one step, for juice with two steps, for the prospering of wealth with three steps, for comfort with four steps, for cattle with five steps, for the seasons with six steps. Friend be with seven steps.’

7. (The Ākārya?) ‘appeases’ those (foot-steps) with water.

8. With the three Āpohishākhyā verses (Rig-veda X, 9, 1–3) he wipes (them) with the Stheyā water,

9. And sprinkles it on their heads.

10. (The bridegroom then) says, ‘I give you a cow.’

11. Let him give something to the Brāhmaṇas each time at the Sthālīpākas and other rites;

12. To him who knows the Sūryā hymn the bride’s shift.

5, 7. According to Nārāyana it is the teacher who makes them walk the seven steps; the Paddhati says that the bridegroom or the Ākārya causes her to do so. Comp. Pāraskara I, 8, 1; Āsvalāyana I, 7, 19, &c.

9. Probably we should read mūrdhanī (acc. dual), not mūrdhāni. Āsvalāyana has śirasī. Of course the heads of both the bridegroom and the bride were sprinkled with water; comp. Āsvalāyana I, 7, 20, &c.

12. The Sūryā hymn is Rig-veda X, 85. Comp. the note above on chap. 13, 4.
13. A cow is the optional gift to be given by a Brāhmaṇa,
14. A village by a Rāganya,
15. A horse by a Vaisya.
16. A hundred (cows) with a chariot (he gives to a father) who has only daughters.
17. To those versed in the sacrificial rites he gives a horse.

KHANDA 15.

1. The three verses, 'I loosen thee' (Rig-veda X, 85, 24), when she departs from the house.
2. 'The living one they bewail' (Rig-veda X, 40, 10), if she begins to cry.
3. The wife then smears the axle of the chariot with clarified butter with this (verse), 'They feasted, they got drunk' (Rig-veda I, 82, 2), 13–15. These Śūtras, treating of the fee for the sacrifice, are identical with Pāraskara I, 8, 15–18. Apparently they are taken from the same lost original from which several identical passages in the Śūtras of Pāraskara and Sānkhāyana seem to be derived (see the notes on chap. 5, 1; 13, 7). They stand rather out of place here, for they return to the same subject which had already been treated of in Śūtra 10, though in that Śūtra, as very frequently is the case in our text and in similar ones, only the case of the bridegroom being a Brāhmaṇa has been taken notice of.

16. Comp. the passages quoted by Professor Stenzler on Pāraskara I, 8, 18. Nārāyana has the following note: 'To a duhitṛimat, i.e. to the father of a girl who has no brother, he shall give a hundred cows and besides a chariot, in order to destroy the guilt brought about by marrying a girl who has no brother.' Possibly we should here emancipate ourselves from the authority of the commentators, and explain duhitṛimat 'he who gives his daughter in marriage,' the bride's father. Comp. Ápastamba II, 11, 18; II, 13, 12; Weber, Indische Studien, V, 343, note 2.

15, 3. Probably the use of this verse on this occasion rests on the assonance of its opening word akṣaṇ and aksa (rathākṣa).
4. And with the two (verses), 'Pure are thy wheels,' 'Thy two wheels' (Rig-veda X, 85, 12. 16), of the two wheels the first with the first (verse) and the second with the second (verse),
5. And the two bulls.
6. After (the wife?) has put, with this (verse), 'In the box of the wheel' (Rig-veda VIII, 80, 7), a branch of a fruit-bearing tree into each of the holes destined for the pins,
7. Or, if (such branches) are (already) fixed, has recited (that verse) over them,
8. They then harness the two bulls with the two (verses), 'Harnessed be thy right one' (Rig-veda I, 82, 5–6), (the bridegroom) reciting the half-verse, 'White the two bulls' (Rig-veda X, 85, 10), over them when they have been harnessed.
9. Now should any part of the chariot break or burst, let him take the girl to the house of one who keeps the sacred fires,
10. And repair (the damage) with the verse, 'Cover thyself with the Khadiras' (Rig-veda III, 53, 19).
11. A knot with the verse, 'Him like a horse' (Rig-veda X, 143, 2).
12. He then murmurs the five verses, 'May prosperity give us' (Rig-veda V, 51, 11–15).
13. 'Adorned with Kimsuka flowers' (Rig-veda X, 85, 20), when she mounts the chariot;
14. 'May no waylayers meet us' (ibid. 32), at a cross-way;
15. 'Which the woman's' (ibid. 31), near a cemetery;
16. The half-verse, 'O tree with thy hundred branches' (Rig-veda III, 8, 11), he mutters near a big tree;

17. 'The good protectress' (Rig-veda X, 63, 10), when she ascends a ship;

18. 'Carrying stones' (Rig-veda X, 53, 8), when she crosses a river;

19. Optionally (he) also (murmurs the same verse, if that is done) with the harnessed chariot;

20. 'Up may your wave' (Rig-veda III, 33, 13), at deep places (in the river);

21. And (at such places) let her not look out.

22. The seven verses, 'Here may delight' (Rig-veda X, 85, 27 seq.), when she has reached the house, omitting the verses already employed.

Khanda 16.

1. 'A bull's hide'—this has been declared.

2. On that hide the husband makes her sit down and sacrifices, while she takes hold of him, four obligations (with the following formulas),

3. 'With god Agni, with the earth-world of the worlds, and the Rig-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svāhā!

'With god Vāyu, with the air-world of the worlds,

16, 1. In chap. 15, 22 it is said that the bride arrives at the house; in 16, 12, that she enters the house. Probably we are to understand, therefore, that the sacrifice prescribed in this chapter, Śūtras 2 seq., is performed before the house, like the Vāstosh-patiya karman (below, III, 4). The words, 'has been declared,' refer to the Srauta-sūtra (IV, 16, 2), 'Having spread a red bull's skin, with the neck to the north or to the east, with the hair outside, behind the fire, they sit down,' &c.

2. On anvārām bha comp. the quotation in the note on chap. 11, 2.
with the Yajur-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svâhâ!

‘With god Śûrya, with the heaven-world of the worlds, with the Sâma-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svâhâ!

‘With god Kandra, with the world of the quarters (of the horizon) of the worlds, with the Brahma-veda of the Vedas: therewith I appease thee, N. N., svâhâ!’

4. Or, ‘Bhûk! What harm dwells in thee, bringing death to thy husband, death to thy husband’s brother, that I make death-bringing to thy paramour, N. N., svâhâ!’—thus the first (of the before-mentioned formulas) may be joined with the first Mahâvyâhṛiti, the second with the second, the third with the third, the fourth with (the three Mahâvyâhṛitis) together.

5. With (the verse), ‘With no evil eye’ (Rig-veda X, 85, 44), let him besmear (her) eyes with Âgya salve.

6. (The bridegroom,) having touched the ends of her hair with the three (verses), ‘How may us the resplendent one . . . ’ (Rig-veda IV, 31, 1–3),

7. And having quickly recited the four verses, ‘And those divine medicines’ (Rig-veda VIII, 18, 8), at the end (of that text) with the word svâhâ (pours out) the remainder on (her) head.

8. Here some place a boy of good birth on both sides, in her lap, with this (verse), ‘Into thy womb’ (see below, chap. 19, 6),

8. It should be noted that the verse â te yonîm is quoted here only with the Pratika, while its full text is given below, chap. 19, 6. Can the Sûtras describing this ceremony with the kumâra ubhaya-yatah-sugâta be a later addition?
9. Or also silently.
10. Into this (boy's) joined hands (the bridegroom) gives fruits and causes (the Brâhmanas) to wish an auspicious day.
11. Thus she becomes the mother of male children.
12. With the rest of the hymn, 'Stay ye here both' (Rig-veda X, 85, 42 seq.), they make them enter the house.

Khanda 17.

1. With the verse, 'I praised Dadhikrâvan' (Rig-veda IV, 39, 6), let them drink together curds.
2. Let them sit silent, when the sun has set, until the polar-star appears.
3. He shows her the polar-star with the words, 'Firm be thou, thriving with me!'
4. Let her say, 'I see the polar-star; may I obtain offspring.'
5. Through a period of three nights let them refrain from conjugal intercourse.
6. Let them sleep on the ground.
7. Let them eat together boiled rice with curds, with the three verses, 'Drink and satiate yourselves' (Rig-veda VIII, 35, 10).
8. Let them serve the nuptial fire in the evening and in the morning with the words, 'To Agni svâhâ! To Agni Svishtakrit svâhâ!'
9. 'Let the two men Mitra and Varuna, let the two men, the Arvins both, let the man Indra and also Agni make a man grow in me. Svâhâ!'—with

'Vāyu! Thou art expiation; thou art the expiation of the gods. What substance dwells in her that brings sonlessness, that drive away from her.

'Sūrya! Thou art expiation; thou art the expiation of the gods. What substance dwells in her that brings destruction to the cattle, that drive away from her.

'To god Aryaman the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Aryaman, loosen her from this, and not from that place.

'To god Varuna the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Varuna, &c.

'To god Pūshan the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Pūshan, &c.'

4. The seventh oblation with the verse, 'Pragāpati' (Rig-veda X, 121, 10).

5. The eighth to (Agni) Svishākṛit.

Khanda 19.

1. Let him pound the root of the Adhyāndā plant and sprinkle it at the time of her monthly period with the two (verses), 'Speed away from here; a husband has she' (Rig-veda X, 85, 21. 22), with svāhā at the end of each, into her right nostril.

2. 'The mouth of the Gandharva Visvāvasu art thou'—with these words let him touch her, when he is about to cohabit with her.

3. When he has finished, let him murmur,

4. 'Into thy breath I put the sperm, N. N. !'

5. Or, 'As the earth is pregnant with Agni, as the heaven is with Indra pregnant, as Vāyu dwells in the womb of the regions (of the earth), thus I place an embryo into thy womb, N. N. !'

6. Or, 'May a male embryo enter thy womb, as an arrow the quiver; may a man be born here, a son after ten months.

'Give birth to a male child; may after him (another) male be born; their mother shalt thou be, of the born, and (to others) mayst thou give birth.

'In the male verily, in the man dwells the sperm; he shall pour it forth into the woman: thus has said Dhâtar, thus Pragâpati has said.

'Roar, be strong, put into her an embryo, achieve it; a male, thou male, put into her; to generation we call thee.

20, 3. On suñgā compare the note of Nārāyana and the verse quoted from the Karmapradīpa, p. 131 of the German edition.

On kusakāntaka Nārāyana says, kusakāntakaṃ kusodarbhas tasya kanaṭakaḥ sūkṣ (sūka, MS. Berol. Orient. fol. 602) tāṁ vā peshayitvā. I do not understand why the commentators of Pāraskara, whom Professor Stenzler has followed in his translation of Pār. I, 14, 4, make kanaṭaka equal to mūla.

5. Nastō dakshinatāḥ stands here as in chap. 19, r. Ārvālāyana I, 13, 6 has dakshinasyaṁ nāsikāyāṁ, and so has also

7. (He then sacrifices with the following texts,) 'May Dhātar give to his worshipper further life and safety; may we obtain the favour of the god whose laws are truthful.

'Dhātar disposes of offspring and wealth; Dhātar has created this whole world; Dhātar will give a

10. Nârâyana: tisribhis tantubhir vritte sûtre udumbara-raphalâni... gale... badhnâti. I have translated accordingly. Pâraskara I, 15, 6 uses the same expression trivrit. Professor Stenzler there translates it, on the authority of Gayarâma, 'dreibache Haarflechte,' and says in his note on that passage that, according to Sânkhâyana, he would have to tie the things with a threecord string to the neck of the woman, as if Sânkhâyana's statement were different from that of Pâraskara. But both authors have the same word, and only the commentators differ in their explanations thereof.

11. Åsvâlâyana more explicitly says (I, 14, 6), Somam râgânam samgâyetâm iti.

The Sūtra 1, 25, 4, from which it is to be inferred that the sūti-kågni should be kept, is considered, accordingly, as a Gñåpaka (see Professor Bühler's notes on Âpastamba I, 11, 7; Gautama

ADHYĀYA II, KHANDA 1.

1. In the eighth year after the conception let him initiate a Brāhmaṇa,

2. With an antelope-skin,

1, 1. With regard to the standing terminology of the Upanayana, or the initiation of the student, we may observe that upa-nī does not mean, as, for instance, Professor Stenzler seems to understand it, 'to introduce a student to his teacher.' Thus Pāraskara's Sūtra II, 2, 1, ashāvarṣhaṁ brāhmaṇam upanayet, &c., is translated by that distinguished scholar, 'Den achtjährigen Brāhmaṇa soll er (beim Lehrer) einführen,' &c. (comp. also Âśvalāyana-Gṛihya I, 19, 1). The texts clearly point to another translation of upa-nī, for they show that the person that introduces the student (upanayati or upanayate; the middle is used very frequently, for instance, Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 4, 1; Sāṅkh. II, 1, 25) is not the father or a relation of the youth who could be supposed to lead him to the teacher, but the teacher himself; he introduces (upanayati) him to the brahmakeṇya, or introduces him with himself, and the student enters upon (upaiti) the brahmakeṇya, or enters with (upaiti) the teacher; he who has thus entered upon studentship, is consequently designated as upeta (Sāṅkh. IV, 8, 1; Pāraskara III, 10, 10), and for the initiation, which is usually called upanayana, occasionally also the word upāyana is used (see the Māṇava-Gṛihya I, 22, quoted by Professor Jolly in his article, Das Dharma-sūtra des Vishnū, p. 79). The following passages may be quoted here as supporting our opinion on this terminology. At Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 3, 13 Saukeya says to Uddālaka Āruni, 'I will enter (as a student) with the reverend One' (upāyāṇi bhagavantam); and Āruni replies, 'Come, enter (with me)! ' (ehy upehi), 'and he initiated him' (tam hopaninve). Ibid. XI, 5, 4, 16 it is stated that according to some a teacher who has initiated a Brāhmaṇa as a student (brāhmaṇam brahmakeṇyam upaniya) should abstain from sexual intercourse, for a student who enters upon studentship (yo brahmakeṇyam upaiti) becomes, as it were, a garbha, &c. Finally we may add that the Buddhist terminology regarding the entering into the order or upon a life of righteousness is clearly connected with that followed, for instance, in the dialogue between

7. Until the twenty-second for a Kshatriya,

8. Until the twenty-fourth for a Vaisya.

9. After that (time has passed), they become patitasāvitrīka (men who have lost their right of learning the Sāvitrī).

Saukēya and Āruṇi. As Saukēya there says, upāyāni bhagavantam, we frequently read in the Pāli books expressions like this, upemi Buddham saranam dhammaññ kāpi anuttaram, &c. (Dhammap. Aṭṭhakathā, p. 97, ed. Fausboll), and as Āruṇi replies, ehy upehi, Buddha says to those who wish to be ordained, ehi bhikkhu, svākkhāto dhammo, kara brahmaṇariyam, &c. (Mahāvagga I, 6, 32, &c.; S. B. E., vol. xiii, p. 74, note).

The counting of the years not from the birth but from the conception occurs both in the Brahmanical and in the Buddhist ordinances, comp. H. O., Buddha, sein Leben, seine Lehre, seine Gemeinde, p. 354, note 1. Several Grīhya texts (for instance, Āsv. I, 19, 1, 2) admit both ways of counting the years. The number of years given for the Upanayana of persons of the three castes (Brāhmaṇas 8–16, Kshatriyas 11–22, Vaiśyas 12–24) is evidently derived from the number of syllables of the three metres which are so very frequently stated to correspond to the three castes, to the three gods or categories of gods (Agni, Indra, Visve devās) &c., viz. the Gāyatṛi, the Trishūbh, and the Gagatt. This is a very curious example, showing how in India phantastical speculations like those regarding the mystical qualities of the metres, were strong enough to influence the customs and institutions of real life.

9 seq. All these are standing expressions recurring nearly identically in most of the Grīhya and Dharma-sūtras. In the rule contained in Sūtra 13 a number of the parallel texts have vivah-eyuh or vivāhayeyuh, others have vyavahareyuh. Comp. Vasishtha XI, 75; Indische Studien, vol. x, p. 21.
10. Let them not initiate such men,
11. Nor teach them,
12. Nor perform sacrifices for them,

   Palâsa or of Bilva wood,
19. That of a Kshatriya of Nyagrodha wood,
20. That of a Vaisya of Udumbara wood.
21. That of the Brâhmaṇa shall reach the tip of the nose,
22. That of the Kshatriya the forehead,
23. That of the Vaisya the hair.

   tion, is at the disposal of the teacher.

14. This Sūtra should rather be divided into two, as indicated in the translation. As to the mekhalâ (girdle) comp. below, chap. 2, i.
21. There is no doubt that prânasammito (which Nârâyana explains thus, 'prâna is the wind [or breath]; [the staff should] reach to the place where the wind leaves the body, i.e. to the tip of the nose') should either be corrected into, or explained as, ghrânasammito; the Sâmbayya MS. has ghrânantiko brâh-mavanasya. Comp. Gautama I, 26, &c. The parallel texts agree in assigning the longer staff to the higher, not as Sânkhâyana does, to the lower caste.
26. Having had him shaved all round (his head) he should initiate him.

27. After (the student) has washed and adorned himself,

28. (And) after (the teacher) has sacrificed, both station themselves behind the fire, the teacher with his face turned to the east, the other with his face to the west.

29. Let him initiate him standing while (the other also) stands.

'Here has come to us, protecting (us) from evil words, purifying our kin as a purifier, clothing herself, by (the power of) inhalation and exhalation, with strength, this friendly goddess, this blessed girdle'—with these words, three times repeated, he ties the girdle from left to right thrice round.

26. After the introductory remarks given in the preceding Sūtras the ritual itself of the Upanayana is now described.

28. Nārāyana: hutvā 'nādesaparibhāshātaḥ (see above, I, 12, 13) purastātsamgīnakam hutvā agnim sthāpitāgnim (see above, I, 5, 2) gaghanena . . . tishātataḥ.

30. This Sūtra is wanting in most of the MSS. (see the note, p. 48 of the German edition). It contains the Mantra with which the Agīna (the hide mentioned in Sūtras 2, 4, 5 of this chapter) is put on. Nārāyana gives the Mantra which he says is taken from the Mādhyandina-Grīhya (in the Pāraskara-Grīhya it is not found), after chap. 2, 3, and he states that the corresponding act to which it belongs has its place after the rites concerning the girdle (chap. 2, 1) and the sacrificial cord (2, 3).
2. (There should be) one knot, or also three, or also five.

3. He adjusts the sacrificial cord with (the words), 'The sacrificial cord art thou. With the cord of the sacrifice I invest thee.'

4. He fills the two hollows of (his own and the student's) joined hands (with water), and then says to him: 'What is thy name?'

5. 'I am N. N., sir,' says the other.

6. 'Descending from the same Rishi?' says the teacher.

7. 'Descending from the same Rishi, sir,' says the other.

2. 2. Rāmaṇḍra: 'Let him make one, or three, or five knots, according to (the student's) Ārsheya,' i.e. accordingly as he belongs to a family that invokes, in the Pravara ceremony, one, or three, or five Rishis as their ancestors. Comp. Weber, Indische Studien, vol. x, p. 79.

3. On the sacrificial cord (upavita) comp. the Grīhya-samgraha-parisishṭa II, 48 seq.

6. 7. A similar dialogue between the teacher and the student at the Upanayana is given in the Kauśika-sūtra (ap. Weber, Indische Studien, X, 71). The student there says, 'Make me an Ārsheya (a descendant of the Rishis) and one who has relations, and initiate me.' And the teacher replies, 'I make thee an Ārsheya and one who has relations, and I initiate thee.' As in this passage of the Kauśika-sūtra the teacher is represented as having the power of making, by the Upanayana ceremony, an Ārsheya of the student, thus, according to the view expressed by Professor Weber (loc. cit., p. 72 seq.), Sāṅkhāyana would even give it into the teacher's power to make the student his samāṅārsheya, i.e. to extend his own Ārsheya on as many pupils as he likes. Professor Weber understands the sixth Sūtra so that the teacher would have to say, samāṅārsheyo bhavān brūhi (Nārāyaṇa: bhavān bruhiti brahmaṁśaṁ bhavān brūhiṁ atāṁ [Sūtra 8] simhāvalokananyāyanātrānushagyate. According to Rāmaṇḍra's Paddhati he is

11. And seizing (the student's) hands with (his own) hands, holding the right uppermost, he murmurs,
12. 'By the impulse of the god Savitar, with the arms of the two Ārvins, with Pûshan's hands I initiate thee, N. N.'
13. Those who are desirous of a host (of adherents, he should initiate) with (the verse), 'Thee, (the lord) of hosts' (Rig-veda II, 23, 1).

only to say samânârsheyah). The student answers, samânârsheyo 'ham bho; Professor Weber, who supplies the imperative asâni, translates this, 'May I have the same Ārsheya, sir!'

I think it more natural to simply translate the teacher's question, 'Art thou samânârsheya?' (or, supplying bhavân brûhi from Sûtra 8, 'Declare that thou art samânârsheya'), and the student's reply, 'I am samânârsheya, sir!' Thus we ought possibly to consider these formulas, which state a fictitious, ideal samânârsheyatva of the teacher and the students as a trace, and as far as I can see as the only trace, of an ancient rule requiring a real samânârsheyatva of teacher and student. As long as the ritual differences between the different Gotras, of which, as is well known, only a few traces have survived in the Vedic tradition, had retained their full importance, it can indeed scarcely have been considered as admissible that a young Brâhmaṇa should be confided to the guidance of a teacher who sacrificed and invoked the gods in another way than the customs of the pupil's own family required.

KHANDA 3.

1. 'Bhaga has seized thy hand, Savitar has seized thy hand, Pûshan has seized thy hand, Aryaman has seized thy hand. Mitra art thou by right, Agni is thy teacher, and I, N. N., both of us. Agni, I give this student in charge to thee. Indra, I give this student in charge to thee. Sun, I give this student in charge to thee. Visvę devás, I give this student in charge to you, for the sake of long life, of blessed offspring and strength, of increase of wealth, of mastership of all Vedas, of renown, of bliss.'

2. 'In Indra's course I move; in the sun's course I move after him'—with these words he turns round from left to right,

2. 'Thou art the Brahmaârîn of Kâma, N. N.!'
3. With the same text (see chap. 3, 2) he turns round as before,
4. And touching with the span of his right hand (the student's) right shoulder, he murmurs:

on him statements belonging to other Sûtras, in this case probably to Âsvalâyana I, 20, 9. As our text has not anvâvartya but anvâvritisya, and in the Mantra not âvartasva but âvarte, we must conclude that he turned round himself, and, as far as the statements of the text go, did not cause the pupil to do so.

5. The gesture is the same as that prescribed in the Pâraskara-Gṛhya I, 8, 8 to the bridegroom at the wedding; the Mantra there is identical with Sânkh. II, 4, 1, the only difference consisting in the name of the god who is invoked to unite the two: at the wedding this is Pragâpati, of course, because he is 'lord of offspring;' at the Upanayana, Brîhaspati, the Brahman kar' ḫōχɪw among the gods. It is very natural that at the Upanayana and at the Vivâha, which both are destined to establish an intimate union between two persons hitherto strangers to each other, a number of identical rites should occur, for instance, the seizing of the hand; see the note on Sûtra 1.

2. As to Kâmasya brahmaâry asi, see my remarks in the Introduction, p. 9.

Eating water means sipping water after having eased oneself. On the putting on of fuel, comp. Sūtra 6 and chap. 10. The Gāyatrī which the teacher shall recite to a Brāhmaṇa is the same verse of which it is said below, chap. 7, 11, that it belongs to Virvāmitra (Rig-veda III, 62, 10); the Trishṭubh which is taught to the Kṣatriya is a verse ascribed to Hiranya-stūpa, Rig-veda I, 35, 2; the Gagati which is to be repeated to a Vaiśya is Rig-veda IV, 40, 5, belonging to Vāmadeva, or Rig-veda I, 35, 9, belonging to Hiranyastūpa. See the note on chap. 7, 10.

the study of the Āraṇyaka the position is slightly different (VI, 3, 2). According to Nārāyana this Sūtra would contain a nishedha of the Sūtras 828 and 829 of the Rig-veda-Prātisākhya (p. ccxcii of Professor Max Müller's edition).

10, 11. The Indian tradition divides these Sūtras after ākāryaḥ, so that the words adhīhi bho would have to be pronounced by the teacher. Thus also Nārāyana explains, ākārya adhīhi bho 3 iti māṇavakam uktvā, &c. In my opinion it is the student or the students who say adhīhi bho. Thus the Prātisākhya (Sūtra 831, ed. Max Müller) says, 'They invite him with the words adhīhi bho 3, all the students the teacher, having embraced his feet.' three times . . . He (the teacher) then gives him again the staff, which he had given him before silently.' I do not think that this double handing over of the staff agrees with the real meaning of the text; Gobhiila also (II, 10) and Ârvalâyana (I, 22, 1) prescribe the dāndapradâna after the repetition of the Sâvitrî, without mentioning that the same had been already done before; Pâraskara II, 2, 11 speaks of the handing over of the staff before the recital of the Sâvitrî, and does not state that it should be repeated afterwards.

All these ceremonies, the teaching of the Sâvitrî as well as the dāndapradâna, were considered as forming part of the Upanayanâ, even though a longer or shorter space of time (chap. 5, 1-3) might elapse between the first arrival of the student at the teacher’s house and the performing of these rites. This follows from chap. 11, Sûtras 2-4.

On the Sukriya vrata which has to be undergone before the Anuvāhana treated of in this chapter can be performed, see the note on chap. 4, 1, and below, chap. 11, 9. One would have expected that in the arrangement of Sāṅkhāyana the rites belonging to the Sukriya vrata would precede the exposition of the Anuvāhana. Perhaps it was in consequence of the exact analogy of the Sukriya with the Sākvara, Vrātika, Aupanishada vratas, that the description of the former has been postponed till the latter had to be treated of.

Rāmaṇanda’s Paddhati has the following remark here, ‘Now the way of studying the Veda, called Anuvāhana, is set forth. This can be done only after the Sukriya vrata has been enjoined on the student; before that nothing but the Sāvitrī can be taught to him.’

10. Comp. the note on chap. 5, 4–6. Nārāyana states, in accordance with these Sūtras of the fifth chapter, that in case the student belongs to the second or third caste, an Ūha (i.e. a corresponding alteration of the formulas; from the Srauta-sūtra, VI, 1, 3 the definition is quoted here saṅdavikāram ūham bruvate) takes place. If he is a Kshatriya, he has to say, ‘Recite the Trishūbh, sir!’— ‘Recite the verse of Hiranyakṣupā (Rig-veda I, 35, 2), sir!’ A Vaisya has to say, ‘Recite the Gagati, sir!’— ‘Recite the verse of Hiranyakṣupā (or, of Vāmadeva, Rig-veda I, 35, 9 or IV, 40, 5), sir!’
18. In that way, according to what Rishi each hymn belongs to and what its deity and its metre is, thus (with the corresponding indications of Rishi, &c.) let him recite each hymn;

19. Or also, if he does not know the Rishis, deities, and metres, the teacher recites this verse, 'That glorious (splendour) of Savitar' (Rig-veda III, 62, 10), pada by pada, hemistic by hemistic, (and finally) without a stop, and says, when he has finished, 'This (verse belongs to Savitar; it is a Gāyatrī; Visvāmitra is its Rishi').

18–20. I do not think that Professor Weber (Indische Studien, X, 132) has quite exactly rendered the meaning of these Śūtras when he says, 'The teacher then (i.e. after the formula of Śūtra 17 has been pronounced) teaches him first the Rishi, the deity, and the metre of each Mantra. In case he does not know them himself for a Mantra, he recites the holy Sāvitri (tat Savitur vareṇyam). After this he teaches him in due order either (1) the single Rishis, i.e. the hymns belonging to each Rishi, or (2) the single Anuvākas, &c.—It does not seem quite probable to me that the student should have had to learn first the Rishis, deities, and metres of the whole Veda, before the text of the hymns was taught him; I rather believe that hymn by hymn the indication of the Rishis, &c. preceded the anuvākāṇa of the text itself, and with this opinion the statement of Nārāyana agrees, 'Evam pūrvoktena prakārenā rishidevatākhan-dahpūrvakam tam tam Agnim īla ityādikam mantram māṇavakā-yākāryo-nubṛṭyāt.'

19. According to Nārāyana by esheti (literally, 'This [is the Rik]') it is meant that the teacher, after having recited the Sāvitri in the three ways mentioned, should say to the student, 'This Rik is in the Gāyatrī metre. If recited pada by pada, it has three padas. Thus also this Rik, if recited hemistic by hemistic, has two Avasānas (pauses), the first at the end of the hemistic, the second at the end of the third karana (or pada). Thus also this Rik is recited without stopping; at the end of the three karanas, or of the twenty-four syllables, the pause (avasāna) should be made. Thus I recite to thee the Sāvitri; I recite to thee the Gāyatrī; I recite to thee the verse of Visvāmitra.' 'For,' adds Nārāyana, 'if the Gāyatrī has been recited, the whole complex of the Veda being of that very substance, a complete knowledge thereof has been produced.’ The commentator then indicates a shorter form for the teacher’s words which our Sûtra prescribes by eesheti, ‘This verse belongs to Savitar; it is a Gâyatî; its Rishi is Visvâmitra.’

21. The Kshudrasûktas are the hymns Rig-veda X, 129–191.
24 seq. This seems to be an abridged method by which students who had not the intention of becoming Vedic scholars, and probably chiefly students of the Kshatriya and Vaisya caste, could fulfil their duty of learning the Veda; a student who knew the first and last hymn of a Rishi, or of an Anuvåka, was, as would seem from these Sûtras, by a sort of fiction considered as though he had known the whole portion belonging to that Rishi, or the whole Anuvåka.

27. Nårâyana explains Rishisvådhyåya by mantrasamhitå. He says, ‘The Anuvåka which has been declared here, is to be understood also with regard to the svådhyåya, i.e. to the Samhitå of the Mantras.’ I think there is a blunder in the MS., and instead of tad api svådhyåye . . . gñeyam we ought to read tad rishi-svådhyåye . . . gñeyam. In this case we should have to translate the quoted passage, ‘. . . is to be understood with regard to the Rishisvådhyåya, i.e. to, &c.’—I think, however, that the true meaning of the Sûtra is different from what Nårâyana believes it to be. The expression vyåkhya tåm apparently conveys a reference to another treatise in which the rules regarding the Rishisvådhyåya would seem to have been fully set forth. The Srauta-sûtra contains no passage which could be the one here referred to; we may suppose, therefore, that either a chapter of a Prátiśākhya is quoted here, or a separate treatise on the special subject of the Rishiśvādhyāya. References to such treatises are found in the Sūtra texts in several instances, of which the most important is that in the Gobhila-Gṛhyā I, 5, 13, 'On what day the moon becomes full, the knowledge thereof is contained in a special text; that one either should study or ascertain when the Purvā is from those who have studied it.'

When he has repeated these texts to the student, after the end of the Anuvākana, the teacher should take from the student the Kusa blades which had been taken up before for the sake of the Anuvākana (see Sūtras 5 seq.), &c.—The teacher is made the subject of this rule also by Rāmaṇandā. On yathāṣṭāktaṁ Nārāyana observes that according to some teachers these water oblations were directed to the Rishiś of the different hymns (rishiṁ uddisetyeti keṭi). This statement seems to be countenanced by IV, 6, 6. Comp. the note below on IV, 9, 1.

In the Atharva-veda XIX, 64, 1 the MSS. have Agne samidham āhārsham. Professors Roth and Whitney have conjectured in this passage agre instead of Agne. It is shown by our passage and the corresponding ones in the other Sūtras that the true reading is Agnaye. Instead of āhārsham we should read āhārsham, as all the parallel texts have. In the passage 'Firewood art thou; might we prosper,' there is a play upon words untranslatable in English, 'edho-sy edhishāmahi.' Perhaps instead of samiddho mām samardhaya we should read samriddho mām samardhaya. As the Mantra referred to the Samidh-offering, samriddha could very easily be supplanted by the participle of sam-idh. In the parallel texts indicated p. 139 of the German edition it should be, Vāg. 12, I seq. The Indian tradition (with the exception only, as far as is known to me, of the Sāmbavya commentary) refers the ceremonies described in this chapter, like those treated of in chap. 11, as well to the Sukriya as to the Sākvara and the other Vratas. This is not correct. The eleventh chapter gives the rites common to the four Vratas; the Sukriya vrita is connected with no special ceremonies beside those, so that the exposition of this Vrata is brought to an end in that chapter. The last Sūtra of chap. 11 marks the transition to the special rites which are peculiar to the three other Vratas, and are connected with the character of mystical secrecy attributed to the Āranyaka, and thus it is with the exclusion of the Sukriya that the twelfth chapter refers only to those Vratas. The difference which we have pointed out between the two chapters finds its characteristic expression in Sūtras 9 and 11 of chap. 11, compared with chap. 12, 13, 14; in the former Sūtras the statements there given are expressly extended to the Sukriya, the Sākvara, the Vrātika, and the Apanishada, while in the latter passage mention is made first of the Mahānāmnīś, i.e. the text corresponding to the Sākvara vrita, and then the uttarānī prakarānī (the following sections) are referred to, i.e. the Mahāvrita and the Upanishad, so that the Sukriya vrita or the texts, the study of which is entered upon by that Vrata, are left out here.

There is a good deal of confusion in the several commentaries
2. Having sacrificed, the teacher then asks him with regard to those deities to whom he has been given in charge (see above, chap. 3, 1), 'Hast thou fulfilled the duties of holiness before Agni, Indra, the Sun, and the Visve devâs?'

with regard to the succession of the different ceremonies taught in this chapter. They all agree in stating that after the lapse of the year through which the Vrata is kept, a ceremony is performed called Uddikshāvikâ, i.e. the giving up of the Dīkshâ, or preparatory observance. This Uddikshāvikâ consists chiefly in the teacher's ascertaining whether the student has fulfilled the duties involved by the Vrata (see Sûtras 2 and 3). Besides that, there is no doubt that a repetition of the Upanayana (chap. 11, 2) also formed part of the preparatory rites for the study of the Āraṇyaka. As to the way in which these different ceremonies and the other rites described in this chapter would have to be arranged according to our text, it is perhaps best to follow the statements given in an epitome from the bālāvabodhanārtham Rishidaivatakhando-paddhati (MS. Berol. Chambers, 199 a, fols. 13–16); the slight confusion therein is not difficult to get rid of. There we read, 'The Sâkvara, however, is to be kept one year (chap. 11, 11). When the Uddikshāvikâ has been performed, and three nights (chap. 12, 6) or one day and one night (ibid. 7) have elapsed, the Upanayana should be performed as above (chap. 11, 2), with this difference that at the end of the formula mama vrate, &c. (chap. 4, 1) one should say, "May Bṛhaspati join thee to me for the holy observance of the Sâkvara through one year, O Devadatta!" (On this formula, resting on a misunderstanding of chap. 4, Sûtra 2, see the Introduction, p. 8.) The rest is the same as at the Sukriya. Then, when the year (chap. 11, 11) has elapsed, and the Uddikshāvikâ has been performed, and the three days or the night have passed (chap. 12, 6, 7), he should go out of the village... and in the north-eastern direction,' &c. (here follows the description of how the secret doctrines should be taught to the student, according to Śāṅkh. VI). The confusion showing itself in the double mention of the Uddikshāvikâ, before and after the Upanayana, should no doubt be put to the account of the excantor or perhaps even of the MS.; what the meaning of the original Paddhati was is sufficiently shown in the remarks on the following Vratas, for instance, on the Vrâtika (fol. 16), 'Now follows the Vrâtika vratâ. It lasts one year (chap.
3. If he answers, 'I have fulfilled them, sir!'—
4. The teacher three times envelops, from the left to the right, with a fresh garment the face (of the student) who is standing behind the fire, in front of the teacher, with his face to the east.
5. He turns the skirt (of that garment) upwards so that it cannot slip down,
6. (And says:) 'Leaving off for three days the putting on of fuel, the going for alms, the sleeping on the ground, and the obedience to the teacher, fast in the forest, in a god's house or in a place where Agnihotra is performed, keeping silence, with earnest care.'

II, 12). When the Sākvara has reached its end [here we find added at the margin of the MS., "After the Uddikshamikā has been performed." These words ought not to be received into the text; in the corresponding passage on the Apanishada vrata they are not found] he performs the whole ceremony, beginning from the smearing (of the Sthanāla with cow-dung), the drawing of the lines, &c., as at the Upanayana . . . and then, when one year has elapsed, he performs the Uddikshamikā, and the rules [given in chap. 12, 9 seq.] are observed as above.' I think that here the meaning of the text is correctly represented; first comes the Upanayana, then follows the Vrata lasting one year, then the Uddikshamikā. After this ceremony the teacher gives to the student the directions mentioned in chap. 12, 16; then follow the three days, or the one night (chap. 12, 6, 7), and finally they both go out of the village to the north-east, and in the forest they recite the Rahasya.

On the whole ceremonies connected with the study of the Āra-nyaka the sixth book should be compared.

5. Nārayana: Vastrasya dasāḥ prāntabhāga[m] uparishrāt krītvā tathā badhniyād yathā na sambhrasyeta adhastān na patatī tathā vidheyam.

6. The things which the student here is ordered to leave off for three days are the same that are mentioned above, chap. 6, 8, as his standing duties. According to Nārayana this would be the Ādesa mentioned in chap. 11, 13.
7. Here some (teachers) prescribe the same observances only for one night, during which he is to stand.

8. The teacher refrains from eating flesh and from sexual intercourse.

9. When those three days or that night has elapsed, going out from the village he shall avoid to look at the following (persons or things) that form impediments for the study (of the Veda):

10. Raw flesh, a Kândâla, a woman that has lately been confined, or that has her courses, blood, persons whose hands have been cut off, cemeteries, and all sorts of corpse-like (animals ?) which enter (their dens ?) with the mouth first (?), keeping them away from the place where he dwells.

10. With Sútikà is meant a woman during the first ten days after her confinement, for which period the asauka lasts.—Apa-hasta is rendered by Náráyana by kхинnahasta; the comment on the Sámavaya-Grihya mentions āyudhāṅkitahastāms ka. The translation of the last words of this Sûtra (savrâni ka sava-rūpâni yâny āsyena [or āsyena?] praviseyâ svasya vâsân nirasan) is absolutely uncertain. Náráyana says that such animals as lions, serpents, &c. are designated in common use as savarū-pâni. (This literally means, 'having the form of a corpse.' Immediately afterwards Náráyana gives a nearly identical explanation of savarūpa as different from the one stated first. So perhaps we may conjecture that his first explanation rests on a reading sarpa-rūpâni; comp. the reading sarvarūpa of Pâraskara.) Of these the animals entering their dwelling-places with the mouth first (āsyena) are to be understood here as forming, when looked at, an impediment for the study. Náráyana then says that other authorities understand sava in the sense of a dead human body; then savarūpâni are beings having the form thereof (tadrūpâni), such as dogs, jackals, &c. The words yâny āsyena praviseyâ signify that the study is impeded also on the sight of lions, tigers, &c.; for these enter their dwelling-places with their faces first (? anumukhai kritvâ). The words svasya vâsân nirasan mean,
11. Going out (from the village) in a north-eastern direction the teacher sits down on a clean spot, turning his face to the east.

12. When the sun has risen, he recites, in the way prescribed for the Veda-study, (the Āraṇyaka texts to the student) who is to keep silence and who wears a turban.

13. This rule is to be observed only for the Mahānāmnī verses.

14. At the sections however that follow (after the Mahānāmnīs) the other one hears while the teacher recites them for himself.

15. He gives (to the teacher) the turban, a vessel, a good cow.

16. (The teacher accepts the gifts) with the verses, according to Nār., 'when he—i.e. the teacher—goes out of his dwelling-place.' Rāmaśandra says that sāvarūpa either means lions, snakes, and other dangerous animals, or nails, horns, and other such things that fall off or are severed from the body. The text of the Śambhaya MS. is sarvānī ka syāmarūpānī yāvānyā (? ) praviseyuḥ, which the commentary explains, sarvāms ka bhakshyavargāms ka. I think there can be little doubt that the text of Śaṅkhāyana is correct (except that some doubt will remain as to āsyena or āsyey na), the more so as the passage reoccurs, nearly identically, below at VI, 1, 4. 5. As to the translation we can only go so far as to venture the opinion that the Śaṅkhāyana text does not admit the interpretation given by Gayarāma, and accepted by Professor Stenzler (who compares Āpastamba I, 11, 27; Gautama XVI, 41) in Pāraskara II, 11, 3 for sāvarūpa, which consequently should, in our opinion, be rejected also in that passage of Pāraskara. For ascertaining the true meaning of sāvarūpa we shall have to wait until new parallel passages have been discovered.

12. The rules for the Anuvāhana have been given above in chap. 7.

'Thou him' (Rig-veda I, 18, 5), and, 'High in the sky' (Rig-veda X, 107, 2), or (he accepts them) all with the Pranava (i.e. the syllable Om).

17. Here some prepare a mess of rice for the Visve devås at all sections (of the Âranyaka);

18. For the gods to whom he has been given in charge, according to Mândûkeya.

KHANDA 13.

1. Now (follow) the rules regarding the staff.

2. Let him not leave a passage between himself and the staff.

3. Now should any one of these things, viz. staff, girdle, or sacrificial cord, break or rend, the same penance (takes place) therefore which (has been prescribed) at the wedding with regard to the chariot.

4. If the girdle cannot be repaired, he makes another and speaks over it (the following verses):

5. 'Thou who knowest the distinction of pure and impure, divine protectress Sarasvati, O girdle, prolong my vow unimpaired, unbroken.

'Thou, Agni, art the pure bearer of vows. Agni, carry hither the gods to our sacrifice and our oblation.

'Bearing the vows, the infallible protector of vows, be our messenger, undecaying and mighty. Giving treasures, merciful, Agni, protect us, that we may live, Gâtavedas!'

6. And he ties the sacrificial cord to the staff.

7. Here it is said also:

18. Comp. the second Sûtra of this chapter.
13, 3. See above, I, 15, 9 seq.
8. ‘Let him sacrifice the sacrificial cord and the staff, the girdle and also the skin in water after the completion of his vow with a Varuna-verse or with the essence (of the Vedas, i.e. the syllable Om).’

KHANDA 14.

1. Now (follows) the Vaisvadeva (sacrifice).
2. The rite of the sacrifice has been explained.
3. Let him pour oblations of prepared Vaisvadeva food in the evening and in the morning into the (sacred) domestic fire.
4. ‘To Agni svāhā! To Soma svāhā! To Indra and Agni svāhā! To Vishnu svāhā! To Bharadvāga Dhanvantari svāhā! To the Vīśve devās svāhā! To Pragāpati svāhā! To Aditi svāhā! To Anumati svāhā! To Agni Svishākṛit

8. Nārāyana here quotes Rig-veda I, 24, 6, which is the first verse in the Rig-veda addressed to Varuna (i.e. to Varuna alone, not to Mītra and Varuna, &c.).

14, 1. The rules regarding the Vaisvadeva sacrifice stand here, as I have already pointed out in the German edition, p. 142, in a very strange position amid the matter that concerns the student, and before the description of the ceremony that concludes studentship (the Samāvartana; III, 1). On the first word of the chapter, atha, Nārāyana observes that thereby the householder is marked as the subject of the following rules. It seems rather forced to explain the position of this chapter, as Nārāyana does, by pointing out that in some cases, for instance when the teacher is away on a journey, a student also can eventually be called upon to perform the Vaisvadeva sacrifice (comp. below, chap. 17, 3).

2. This Sūtra shows, according to Nārāyana, that the Vairavadeva offering does not follow the ordinary type of sacrifice (the Pratīsrute homakalpa, as it is termed above, I, 9, 19), but the form described in the Agnikāryaprakarana, above, chap. 10, 3 seq.
svâhâ!—having thus offered the oblations belonging to those deities,

5. He then shall offer Balis (i.e. portions of food) in the centre of the floor to the same deities; (then another Bali with the words, ‘Adoration to Brahmân and to the Brâhmanas!’ and (with the verse), ‘Vâstoshpati, accept us’ (Rig-veda VII, 54, 1) in the centre of the floor to Vâstoshpati.

6. He then distributes Balis, from the left to the right, through the different quarters (of the horizon, to the presiding deities) in due order (with the words),

7. ‘Adoration to Indra and to those belonging to Indra! Adoration to Yama and to those belonging to Yama! Adoration to Varuna and to those belonging to Varuna! Adoration to Soma and to those belonging to Soma! Adoration to Brîhaspati and to those belonging to Brîhaspati!’

8. Then (turned) towards the disk of the sun, ‘Adoration to Aditi and to the Âdityas! Adoration

5. ‘He shall offer a Bali to those deities, i.e. to those ten deities to whom he has sacrificed, to Agni, &c. (see Sûtra 4), addressing them with the word, “Adoration (to such and such a deity”)—because in the other cases the word “adoration” (namâh) has been prescribed for the Bali.’ Nârâyana.

6, 7. The distribution of Balis begins in the east, which is the part of the horizon sacred to Indra; it then proceeds to the south, the west, the north, which are sacred respectively to Yama, Varuna, and Soma. Finally the Bali belonging to Brîhaspati and the Bárhaspatyas is offered, according to Nârâyana, to the north-east.

8. The commentators (see p. 142 of the German edition) differ as to whether âdityamandaḍala means the disk of the sun towards which this Bali should be offered, or a place or an apartment of circular form (âdityamandaḍalâpe mandalâgâre, as in my opinion we ought to correct the reading in Nârâyana’s note).
to the Nakshatras, to seasons, to months, to half-months, to days and nights, to years!'

9. 'To Pûshan, the path-maker; to Dhâtar, to Vidhâtar, and to the Maruts'—(thus) on the thresholds.

10. To Vishnu on the grindstone.

11. 'To the tree'—(thus) in the mortar.

12. 'To the herbs'—(thus) where the herbs are kept.

13. 'To Parganya, to the waters'—(thus) near the water-pot.

14. 'Adoration to Sri'—(thus) in the bed at the head, 'to Bhadrakâlt' at the foot.

15. In the privy, 'Adoration to Sarvânabûti!'

16. Then (he throws a Bali) into the air, in the evening with the words, 'To the night-walkers,' in the morning with the words, 'To the day-walkers,' and with the verse, 'Which gods' (Rig-veda I, 139, 11).

17. To the unknown deities to the north, and to Dhanapati (i.e. the Lord of treasures).

18. With the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder he pours out the remnant to the south with the verse, 'They whom the fire has burnt' (Rig-veda X, 15, 14).

19. When he has made his offerings to gods, fathers (i.e. Manes), and men, let him give food to a Srotâya (i.e. to a learned Brâhmaṇa).

20. Or let him give alms (of food) to a student.

21. Let him immediately afterwards offer food to a female under his protection, to a pregnant woman, to boys, and to old people.

22. Let him throw (some food) on the ground for the dogs, for the dog-butchers, and for the birds.
23. Let him eat nothing without having cut off (and offered as a Bali) a portion thereof.
24. (Let him) not (eat) alone,
25. Nor before (the others).
26. With regard thereto it has been said also in the Rik, 'In vain the fool gains food' (Rig-veda X, 117, 6).

KHANDA 15.

1. Should any one of the six persons (mentioned in the Srauta-sūtra and in the Sūtras 4-9) to whom the Arghya reception is due, visit (him), let him make (ready) a cow, a goat, or what (sort of food) he thinks most like (thereto).
2. Let the Argha not be without flesh.
3. On the occasion of a sacrifice and of a wedding let (the guest) say, 'Make it (ready).'</n
4. The animal (offered) to the teacher is sacred to Agni;
5. If offered to an officiating priest, to Brīhaspati;
6. If to the father-in-law, to Pragâpati;
7. If to a king, to Indra;
8. If to a friend, to Mītra;
9. If to a Snâtaka, to Indra and Agni;
10. Even if he performs more than one Soma sacrifice during a year, let only priests who have received (from him) the Arghya reception officiate for him, not such who have not received it.
11. Here it is said also:

Sūtra 10. Probably Pāraskara here represents the text which both Sūtrakāras follow, more exactly, and the enumeration given by Sāṅkhāyana in Sūtras 4–9 of the different categories of Arghyas with the corresponding deities, is an addition to that original stock of rules.

Apparently the two Sūtras 2 and 3 stand in contradiction to each other, as Sūtra 2 seems to prescribe that at the Argha meal in every case flesh should be given to the guest, and Sūtra 3 specifies only two occasions on which the killing of the Argha cow cannot be dispensed with. Perhaps the meaning is this, that it is not necessary, except in the cases of a sacrifice and of a wedding, to kill a cow expressly for that purpose, but that in any case, even if the cow offered to the guest be declined by him, the host should take care that some flesh be served at that meal. So says Nārāyana in his note on Āsvalāyana-Gṛihya I, 24, 33, ‘Pañkaranaṇapakshe tanmāmsena bhogam, utsarganapakshe māmsāntarenā.’ Similarly the Buddhists distinguish between eating flesh and eating the flesh of an animal expressly killed in order to entertain that very guest.

6. The literal translation of vaivāhya would be ‘a person related by marriage.’ But comp. the note on Sūtra 1.

8. Priya of course does not mean gāmātar, as is stated in a number of commentaries. Gobhila says, priyo-tīthiḥ.

11. Other persons, for instance a king, can claim the Argha reception not more than once a year. Comp. Āpastamba II, 8, 7; Gautama V, 28, 29, &c.
Khanda 16.

1. 'At the Madhuparka and at the Soma sacrifice, at the sacred rites for fathers (Manes) and gods only animals may be killed, not elsewhere: thus has Manu said.

2. 'Both his teacher and his father, and also a friend who does not stay in his house as a guest: whatever these dispose, that let him do; such is the established custom.

3. 'Let him not consider as a guest a person living in the same village, or one that comes in returning from a journey; (but let him consider as a guest only) one who has arrived at his house where the wife or the fires (of the host) are.

4. '(The fire of) the Agnihotra, bulls, and a guest that has come in at the right time, children and persons of noble families: these burn up him who neglects them.

5. 'A bull, the Agnihotra, and a student, these three prosper only if they eat; there is no prosperity for them, if they do not eat.

6. 'Day by day the domestic deities approach the man who performs the domestic rites, in order to receive their share; (that) let him pour out to them.

Khanda 17.

1. 'Even if a man constantly gather grass and perform the Agnihotra, a Brāhmaṇa who stays (in his house) without receiving honour takes away all his good works.

2. 'One should give (even) if it were only a water-pot; one should sacrifice (even) if it were a piece of wood; (even) down to one hymn or to one Anuvâka the Brahmâyagna is enjoined.

3. 'When on a journey let him not fast; (during that time) the wife keeps the vow. Let his son, his brother, or his wife, or his pupil offer the Bali oblation.

4. 'Those who perform this Vaisvadeva sacrifice in the evening and in the morning, they will prosper in wealth and (long) life, in fame and offspring.'

KHANDA 18.

1. A student who is going to set out on a journey, speaks thus to his teacher:

2. 'Of inhalation and exhalation'—(this he says) in a low voice; 'Om, I will dwell'—this aloud.

3. (The teacher) in a low voice (replies), 'To inhalation and exhalation I, the wide-extended one, resort with thee. To the protecting god I give thee in charge. God Savitar; this student belongs to thee; I give him in charge to thee; protect him; do not forsake him.'

4. 'Om, hail!' the teacher aloud. 'Hail!' the teacher aloud.

Here ends the Second Adhyâya.

18, 2. Perhaps vatsyâmi (I will dwell) is a sort of euphemism for pravatsyâmi (I will go away).
Adhyāya III, Khandā 1.

1. A bath (shall be taken by the student) when he is going to return home (from his teacher).

2. ‘A bull’s hide’—this has been declared. On that hide he makes him sit down and have his hair and beard cut and the hair of the body and the nails.

3. Having had (the cut-off hair-ends, &c.) thrown away together with rice and barley, with sesamum-seed and mustard-seed, with Apāmārga and Sadā-pushpt flowers,

4. Having sprinkled him (with water) with the Āpohishtkīya-hymn (Rig-veda X, 9),

5. Having adorned him,

6. Having dressed him with two garments with (the verse), ‘The garments both of you’ (Rig-veda I, 152, 1),

7. He then puts on him a golden ornament (with the words), ‘Giving life and vigour’ (Vāgasaneyi Samhitā XXXIV, 50).

8. With (the verse), ‘Mine, Agni, be vigour’ (Rig-veda X, 128, 1), the veiling (of the head is done).

9. With (the verse), ‘House by house the shining one’ (Rig-veda I, 123, 4) (he takes) the parasol,

10. With (the verse), ‘Rise up’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 6), the shoes,

1, 2. Comp. above, I, 16, 1, and the note there.

11. With (the verse), 'Long be thy hook' (Rigveda VIII, 17, 10) he takes a bamboo staff.

12. Let him sit that day in solitude.

13. With (the verses), 'O tree! with strong limbs,' and, 'A ruler indeed' (Rig-veda VI, 47, 26; X, 152, 1) let him mount the chariot.

14. (Before returning home) let him first approach a place where they will perform Argha for him with a cow or a goat.

15. Or let him return (making his start) from cows or from a fruit-bearing tree.

16. With (the verses), 'Indra, give us best goods,' and, 'Be friendly, O earth' (Rig-veda II, 21, 6; I, 22, 15) he descends (from the chariot).

17. Let him eat that day his favourite food.

18. To his teacher he shall give (that) pair of garments, the turban, ear-rings and jewel, staff and shoes, and the parasol.

Khand 2.

1. If he wishes to have a house built, he draws with an Udumbara branch three times a line round (the building-ground) with (the words), 'Here I include the dwellings for the sake of food,' and sacrifices in (its) centre on an elevated spot,

2. (With the texts,) 'Who art thou? Whose art

‘Thou art the gods’ share on this (earth). From here have sprung the fathers who have passed away. The ruler has sacrificed, desirous of (dwelling in the) village, not omitting anything that belongs to the gods. Svâhâ!’

3. Having had the pits for the posts dug,
4. He pours water-gruel into them,
5. And with (the verse), ‘This branch of the immortal one I erect, a stream of honey, promoting wealth. The child, the young one, cries to it; the cow shall low to it, the unceasingly fertile one’—he puts an Udumbara branch which has been besmeared with ghee into the pit for the right door-post.

6. ‘This branch of the world I establish, a stream of honey, promoting wealth. The child, the young one, cries to it; the cow shall low to it that has a young calf’—thus to the left.

7. In the same way at the two (pits) to the south, to the west, and to the north.

8. With (the verse), ‘This branch of this tree, that drops ghee, I erect in the immortal. The child, the young one, cries to it; cows shall flock to it, unceasingly fertile ones’—he erects the chief post.

9. ‘May the young child come to it, may the calf . . . .; may they come to it with a cup of Parisrut, with pots of curds.

9. On parisrut, see Zimmer, Altindisches Leben, p. 281. The words bhuvanas pari give no sense; Pâraskara probably gives the true reading, ā vatā go gaga daīh saha (III, 4, 4; comp. Sūtra 8: Vasūms ka Rudrān Ādityān Ṛśanam go gaga daīh saha; gagada is explained in Gayarāma’s commentary by anuga, anukara). The word gagada of course was exposed to all sorts of corruptions;
KHANDA 3.

1. 'Stand here, O post, firm, rich in horses and cows, . . . . ; stand safely, dropping ghee; stand here, fixed in the ground, prosperous, long-lasting (?), amid the prosperity of people who satiate themselves. May the malevolent ones not reach thee!

    'Hither are called the cows; hither are called goats and sheep; and the sweet essence (?) of food is called hither to our house.

    'Stand fast in the Rathantara; recline on the Vāmadevya; establish thyself on the Brihat'—with (these texts) he touches the chief post.

2. When the house has been built conformably (to its proper dimensions), he touches the posts.

3. The two (posts) to the east with (the words), 'Truth and faith!'

4. Those to the south with (the words), 'Sacrifice and gift!'

5. Those to the west with (the words), 'Strength and power!'

6. Those to the north with (the words), 'The Brahman and the Kshatra!

7. 'Fortune the pinnacle, law the chief post!

thus the text of Árvalâyana has gāyatām saka; the Atharva-veda (III, 12, 7) gagatā saha; and from this gagat to the bhuvana found in our text the way is not very long.

3, 1. According to Nārāyana the verse given in chap. 2, 9 forms one Mantra with those in 3, 1. The meaning of sīlamāvatī is uncertain. The word reoccurs in Rig-veda X, 75, 8. Pāraskara (III, 4, 4) has 'sūnrītāvatī. On tilvila, comp. Rig-veda V, 62, 7. The following word is quite uncertain both as to its reading and its meaning. Comp. p. 143 seq. of the German edition. 1. 'To every able one, to every blissful one, to you I turn for the sake of safety, of peace. Free from danger may we be. May the village give me in charge to the forest. All! give me in charge to the great one,'—thus (he speaks) when leaving the village.

2. 'May the forest give me in charge to the village. Great one! give me in charge to the all'—thus (he speaks) when entering the village, not without (carrying) something (with himself, such as fuel, flowers, &c.)

3. I enter the blessed, joyful house, which does not bring death to men; manly (I enter) that which is rich in men. Bringing refreshment, dropping ghee (we enter the house) in which I shall joyfully rest'—this verse is constantly to be pronounced (when he enters the house).

5, 3. For anyesv aham we should read perhaps yeshv aham. Āśvalāyana-Sraut. II, 5, 17 has teshv aham.
Khanda 6.

1. One who has not set up the (sacred Srauta) fires, when setting out on a journey, looks at his house.

2. (He murmurs the text,) 'Do ye both, Mitra and Varuna, protect this house for me; unscathed, undisturbed, may Pûshan guard it till our return;'

3. And murmurs (the verse), 'Upon the path we have entered' (Rig-veda VI, 51, 16).

Khanda 7.

1. When he then returns from his journey, he looks at his house (and says),

2. 'House, do not fear, do not tremble; bringing strength we come back. Bringing strength, joyful and wise, I come back to thee, to the house, rejoicing in my mind.

   'That of which the traveller thinks, that in which dwells much joy, that I call the house. May it know us as we know it.

   'Hither are called the cows; hither are called goats and sheep; and the sweet essence (?) of food is called hither to our house.'

3. Having approached the (sacred) domestic fire with the verse, 'This Agni is glorious to us, this is highly glorious. Worshipping him (?) may we suffer no harm; may he bring us to supremacy'—

4. Let him pronounce auspicious words.

5. When accepting the water for washing the feet he says, 'The milk of Virâg art thou; may I obtain

KHANDA 8.

1. When one who has not set up the (sacred Sruta) fires, is going to partake of the first-fruits (of the harvest), let him sacrifice to the Ágrayana deities with (Agni) Svishékrit as the fourth, and with the word Svâhâ, on his (sacred) domestic fire.

2. Having recited over (the food) which he is going to eat (the formula), 'To Pragâpati I draw thee, the proper portion, for luck to me, for glory to me, for food to me!'

3. He thrice eats of it, sprinkling it with water, with (the verse), 'From the good you have led us to the better, ye gods! Through thee, the nourishment, may we obtain thee. Thus enter into us, O potion, bringing refreshment; be a saviour to us, to men and animals!'

4. With (the verse), 'This art thou, breath; the truth I speak. This art thou; from all directions thou hast entered (into all beings). Thou driving away old age and sickness from my body be at home with me. Do not forsake us, Indra!'—he touches the place of the heart;

3. In the text read for tvayâ gvasena, tvayâ-vasena.
5. With (the words), 'The navel art thou; do not fear; the knot of the breathing powers art thou; do not loosen thyself,' (he touches) the navel;

6. With the verse, 'Bliss with our ears' (Rig-veda I, 89, 8), (he touches) the limbs as stated (in that verse);

7. Worshipping the sun with the verse, 'Yonder eye' (Rig-veda VII, 66, 16).

KHANDA 9.

1. 'May the noisy (goddesses) keep you away from slaughtering hosts. May the entire share, O cows, that belongs to this lord of cows, suffer no harm among you—(and)

'May Pûshan go after our cows' (Rig-veda VI, 54, 5)—this he shall speak over the cows when they go away (to their pasture-grounds).

2. 'May Pûshan hold' (Rig-veda VI, 54, 10), when they run about.

3. 'May they whose udder with its four holes is full of sweet and ghee, be milk-givers to us; (may they be) many in our stable, rich in ghee'—and,

'The cows have come' (Rig-veda VI, 28), when they have come back.

4. The last (verse) when he puts them in (into the stable).

3. Of that (cow) that calves first let him sacrifice the biestings with the two verses, 'Yearly the milk of the cow' (Rig-veda X, 87, 17. 18).

4. If she brings forth twin-calves, let him sacrifice with the Mahâvyâhritis, and give the mother of the twins (to the Brâhmans).

14. (He says,) ‘This young (bull) I give you as your husband; sporting with him, your lover, walk about. Do not desert us (?), being joined (with us) from your birth. In increase of wealth, in food may we rejoice. Svâhâ!’

15. When (the bull) is in the midst (of the cows), he recites over (them), ‘Refreshing,’ &c. (Rig-veda X, 169, 1 seq.) down to the end of the Anuvâka.

16. With the milk of all of them he shall cook milk-rice and feed Brâhmañâs with it.

2. At the first of these he sacrifices vegetables,

3. With (the verse), 'She who shone forth first is this (earth); she walks, having entered into this (earth). The wife has brought forth (children), the new-creating mother. May the three powers follow her. Svāhā!'

4. Now (the oblation for Agni) Svishṭakrīt,

E., II, p. 214; Ludwig, Rig-veda, vol. iv, pp. 424 seq.; Atharva-veda III, 10. The last Ashvākā, which is celebrated in the dark fortnight of Māgha, is called Ekāshvākā; this Ashvākā is called the 'wife of the year,' 'the image of the year,' 'the disposer of the days.' If the Phālguna month is reckoned as the first of the year, this Ashvākā precedes the year's beginning only by a few days; there are also some Vedic passages which point to the Ekāshvākā's following shortly after the beginning of the year; see Weber, loc. cit., p. 342.

3. Instead of navakrīt the parallel texts (except the Mantrabrāhmāna II, 2, 12) have navagat, which is explained by nūtanavivāhavat (Ludwig, loc. cit.); the 'three powers' are understood by Mādhava (in the commentary on Taitt. Samh. IV, 3, 11) as Agni, Sūrya, and Kāndra.

5. After pavamānāḥ there is evidently a word wanting that udder is (Soma) Pavamâna; . . . are the months and half-months. Adoration to thee, O glad-faced one! Svâhâ!

2. The four Mahâvyâhritis (and) the four (verses), ‘They who have thirsted’ (Rig-veda X, 15, 9 seq.): having quickly recited (these verses) he shall sacrifice the omentum;

3. Or (he shall do so) with the verse, ‘Carry the omentum, Gâtavedas, to the Manes, where thou knowest them in the world of virtue. May streams of fat flow to them; may the wishes of the sacrificer be fulfilled. Svâhâ!’

Nârâyana understands not ‘in the middle of the rainy season,’ but ‘in the middle of the year’ (see his note, p. 146 of the German edition). I cannot help thinking that the word madhyâvarshe, given by the MSS. here and in Pâraskara III, 3, 13, and explained by Nârâyana, is a corrupt reading which we should correct into mâghyavarshe (‘the festival celebrated during the rainy season under the Nakshatra Maghâs’), or something like that. The MSS. of Árvalâyana-Grihya II, 5, 9 have mâghyâvarsham, mâghhâvarsham, mādyâvarsham. Vishnu (LXXVI, 1, comp. LXXVIII, 52, and Professor Jolly’s note, Sacred Books of the East, VII, p. 240) mentions ‘the three Ashâkâs, the three Anvâshâkâs, a Mâgha day which falls on the thirteenth of the dark half of the month Praushâhapada.’ Comp. Manu III, 273, varshâsu ka maghâsu ka; Yâgñavalkya I, 260.
5. Or, 'Interposed are the mountains; interposed is the wide earth to me. With the sky and all the points of the horizon I interpose another one instead of the father. To N. N. svāhā!

'Interposed to me are the seasons, and days and nights, the twilight's children. With the months and half-months I interpose another one instead of the father. To N. N. svāhā!

'With the standing ones, with the streaming ones, with the small ones that flow about: with the waters, the supporters of all I interpose another one instead of the father. To N. N. svāhā!

'Wherein my mother has done amiss, going astray, faithless to her husband, that sperm may my father take as his own; may another one fall off from the mother. To N. N. svāhā!'—these four (verses) instead of the Mahāvyāhṛītis, if (the sacrificer) is an illegitimate child.

6. Or milk-rice (should be offered).

7. On the next day the Anvashākya ceremony (i.e. ceremony following the Ashˈtakā) in accordance with the rite of the Pindapitriyagña.

1. On the last (Ashtakā) he sacrifices cakes,

2. With the words, 'The Ukthya and the Atirātra, the Sadyaḥkrī together with the metre—Ashtakā!

5. Instead of 'N. N.' (the text has the feminine amūshyai) the sacrificer inserts the name of his mother. For māsās, ardhamāsās I propose to read, māsais, ardhamāsais.

Preparer of cakes! Adoration to thee, O glad-faced one. Svāhā!

3. A cow or a goat is the animal (to be sacrificed), or a mess of cooked food (should be offered).

4. Or he may optionally offer food to a cow.

5. Or he may optionally burn down brushwood in the forest and say, 'This is my Ashṭakā.'

6. But let him not neglect to do (one of these things). But let him not neglect to do (one of these things).

Here ends the Third Adhyāya.

14, 3–6. This is one of the passages which the author has taken unchanged from a more ancient Sūtra; see Âsv. II, 4, 8–11; Gobhila IV, 1 (end of the chapter). The Sūtras do not refer, as their position would seem to indicate, to the third, but to the second Ashṭakā.

ADHYĀYA IV, KHANDA 1.

1. Let him offer (Srāddha oblations) every month to the fathers.

2. Having invited an uneven number of Brāhmaṇas, versed in the Veda, at least three, to sit down as (representing) the fathers,

1, 1. Khandas 1-4 contain the rules regarding the Srāddha oblations directed to the Manes. The dinners offered in connection with these Srāddha sacrifices to Brāhmaṇas and also—though of this of course no notice is taken in Vedic texts—to Sramanas stood in the first line among the exhibitions of liberality of lay people towards priests and monks. Thus we find among the stock phrases that constantly reoccur in the Pāli Pītakas, the mention of Samaṇas and Brāhmaṇas ‘who have eaten the food given to them out of faith’ (saddhādeyyāṇi bhogaṇāṇi bhūṅgītvā)—wherein the ‘food given out of faith’ (saddhādeyya) either chiefly or exclusively means the Srāddha dinners, which are so called because the sacrificer gives them ‘full of faith’ (sraddhāsamanvīta, Manu III, 275) to the Brāhmaṇas and through them to the Manes.

The principal form of Srāddha is that treated of in chap. 1, which is designated in other texts (see, for instance, Āśvalāyana-Grīhya IV, 7, 1) as pārvana srāddha. There are, however, besides the parvan of the new moon, other times also considered as admissible for the performing of this monthly Srāddha; see Gautama XV, 2 seq.; Āpastamba II, 16, &c.; and comp. on the Srāddhas in general the passages quoted by Professor Jolly, Das Dharma-sūtra des Vishnū (Sitzung der Bair. Akademie, phil. Classe, 7 Juni, 1879), pp. 46 seq.; Max Müller, ‘India, what can it teach us?’ pp. 234 seq., 374 seq.

2. ‘As the fathers’ means: he invites the youngest, middle-aged, and eldest Brāhmaṇas to sit down in the place of the father, the grandfather, and the great-grandfather (Nārāyana). A similar explanation of pitrīvat is mentioned by Nārāyana on Āśvalāyana-
3. And having strewn sesamum into an uneven number of water-pots,

4. He shall pour them out over the hands of the Brāhmaṇas, assigning (this gift) to them with the words, 'N. N.! This to thee!'

5. After this they should be adorned;

6. And after he has (respectfully) spoken to them, and has put food into the fire,

7. Assigning (the food) to them with the words, 'N. N.! This to thee!' he shall cause them to eat.

8. While they are eating, he shall murmur the Mahāvyāhṛītis, the Sāvitrī, the Madhuवात्त्यa-verbs (Rig-veda I, 90, 6 seq.), and verses addressed to the Manes and to (Soma) Pavamāna.

Grīhya IV, 7, 2. My German translation of this Sūtra ought to be altered accordingly.

Besides the Brāhmaṇas mentioned in this Sūtra, who represent the fathers, according to all the commentators, other Brāhmaṇas had to be invited as representing the Visve devās. Nārāyana gives detailed statements as to the number of the paitṛika and of the daivika Brāhmaṇas to be invited, and though at first sight a European reader would rather be inclined to doubt whether at the Srāddha ceremony, as the author of the text intended to describe it, any Brāhmaṇas at all had to be present except the paitṛikas, the Sūtra 2, 5 shows that the commentators are quite right in their statements regarding both categories of Brāhmaṇas.

5–7. It would be more natural to alter the division of the Sūtras, so as to bring āmantrya in the fifth, annaṅka in the seventh Sūtra. In this case we should have to translate:

5. After this, having (respectfully) spoken to them who have been adorned (by him with flowers, ornaments, &c.); 6. And having put (food) into the fire, 7. And having assigned the food to them, &c., he shall cause them to eat.—The respectful address mentioned in the fifth Sūtra consists, according to Nārāyana, in the announcement, 'Ye Brāhmaṇas, I will put (food) into the fire!' (comp. Āṣv.-Grīhya IV, 7, 18), which he subsequently does with the formulas, 'To Agni Kavyavāhana svāhā! To Soma Pitṛimat svāhā! To Yama Āṅgirasvat Pitṛimat svāhā!' Comp. Baudhāyana II, 14, 8.
9. When they have finished with eating, he shall offer the lumps (of flour).
10. Before (their dinner he shall offer) the lumps, according to some (teachers).
11. Behind (these he places the lumps) for their wives, putting something between (these and the preceding ones).
12. To the Brâhmanas he shall announce the remnants.
13. The rites of the putting (of food) into the fire (see Sûtra 6), &c. have been declared (in the Srauta-sûtra) by the Pindapitriyagña.

KHANDA 2.

1. Now (follows) the Ekoddishṭa (i.e. the Srâddha ceremony directed to a single dead person),
2. With one strainer,
3. One (pot of) Argha-water,
4. One lump (of flour).
5. No inviting (takes place here), nor the putting

9. As to the way in which the Pindas should be offered, Nârâyana refers to the Srauta-sûtra (IV, 4).
10, 11. Pindâṇ evidently belongs to the tenth Sûtra, not, as the Indian tradition takes it, to the eleventh. Between the Pindas of the fathers and those belonging to the mothers he puts, according to Nârâyana, for instance, Darbha grass.
13. Śrauta-sûtra IV, 3 seq.
 2, 1. Eka uddishṭo yasmin srâddhe tad ekoddishṭam (Nâr.). This is the kind of Srâddha sacrifice which is to be performed for one twice-born during the first year after his death; see Manu III, 247; Yâgñavalkya I, 250.
 3. This rule about the Argha water corresponds to those given with regard to the Pârvana Srâddha in the Sûtras 3 and 4 of the preceding chapter.
 5. 'Because the âvâhana (inviting) is forbidden here, it follows
(of food) into the fire, nor (do) the Visve devås (take part in this ceremony). 'Relished?'—thus are they to be asked whether they are satiated. 'May it approach (the fathers),' instead of 'imperishable.'

6. 'Be satisfied,' when sending them away.
7. Thus through one year, when one has died.
8. And (then) omission of the fourth one.

Khanda 3.

1. Now (follows) the Sapindakarana (i.e. reception of a dead person into the community of Pinda-offerings with the other Manes).

that it must take place at the Pârvana Sråddha' (Når.). According to Râmaśandra's Paddhati he shall say to the Brâhmaṇas, 'I will invite hither the fathers;' and when they give their consent, he invites them with Rig-veda X, 16, 12. Comp. Yâgñavalkya I, 232 seq., &c. Regarding the Visve devås comp. the note on chap. 1, 2; as to the triptaprasna (the question whether they are satiated) comp. Manu III, 251; Yâgñ. I, 240. At the Pârvana Sråddha, after the Brâhmaṇas have finished their dinner and rinsed their mouths, and after the Pinda have been offered, the sacrificer says, 'May what has been given at this Sråddha to our father N.N., who belongs to the gotra N.N., be imperishable!' (comp. Yâgñ. I, 242.) This phrase is to be altered at the Ekoddhishå Sråddha in the way indicated in this Sûtra.

8. After the Ekoddishå Sråddha has been performed for a dead person during the first year after his death, he is to be admitted, by the Sapindakarana ceremony, among the other Manes, and receives thenceforward his Pinda together with them at the ordinary Pârvana Sråddha. As the ritual of this Sråddha requires that the number of the 'fathers' worshipped should be three, the accession of a new person makes necessary the omission of the pra-prapitâmaha, who has now become fourth among the fathers.

3, 1. It appears to me that this whole chapter is a later addition to the original text. The last Sûtra of the preceding chapter, treating of the omission of the fourth 'father,' which forms, as shown in the preceding note, a consequence of the Sapindakarana,
2. When one year has elapsed, or three half-months,
3. Or on a day when something good happens,
4. He fills four water-pots with sesamum, scents, and water,
5. Three for the fathers, one for the (newly) dead person,
6. And pours the pot that belongs to the (newly) dead person out into the pots of the fathers with the two verses, 'They who commonly' (Vāgasaneyi Samhitā XIX, 45. 46).
7. Thus also the lump (of flour).
8. This is the Sapindaṅkarana.

KHANDA 4.

1. Now (follows) the Ābhyudayika (i.e. the Šrāddha ceremony referring to good luck).

supposes this ceremony to be known and to require no special explanation. Had the intention of the author been to treat of the Sapindaṅkarana, this would have been the right place for mentioning the katurthavisarga, and not, as we really read it, the end of the chapter treating of the Ekoddhā. As pointing in the same direction I will mention that the Sāmbavya-Grihyya, while giving the first, second, and fourth chapter of this Adhyāya, omits the third. Finally it seems decisive to me that the fifth (Parishā) book of the Sāṅkhāyana-Grihyya treats of the Sapindaṅkarana in a whole chapter (V, 9), which shows that the text itself, as the author of the Parishā read it, gave no exposition of this ceremony.

2. Nārāyana says that tripaksha means either three pakshas, i.e. one month and a half, or one paksha deficient by three days, i.e. twelve days. We need not say that the latter explanation is inadmissible; it evidently rests on a wrong conclusion drawn from a passage of another Šūtra quoted by him, in which it is stated that the Sapindaṅkarana should be performed samvatsarânte dvādasāhe vā.

4. 1. The Ābhyudayika Šrāddha has to be performed on such

KHANDA 5.

1. Now (follows) the Upâkarana (i.e. the ceremony by which the annual course of study is opened).

2. When the herbs appear, under the Nakshatra Hasta or Sravâna,

3. Let him make oblations of the flour of fried barley and of grains, mixed with curds and ghee, with the (whole) Veda, verse by verse: thus say some (teachers).

4. Or with the first verses of the Sûktas and Anuvâkas.

6. But Kaushitaki has said:

7. ‘I praise Agni the Purohitṛa’ (Rig-veda I, 1, 1), this one verse,

8. ‘The Kushumbhaka (mongoose ?) has said it;’ ‘If thou criest, O bird, announce luck to us;’ ‘Sung by Gamadagni;’ ‘In thy abode the whole world rests;’

5, 1. As to the Upâkarana, see the statements of Professor Weber in his second article on the Nakshatras, Abhandlungen der Berliner Akademie, 1861, p. 338, and of Professor Bühler in his notes on Âpastamba, S. B. E., II, pp. 110, 111.

2. The Nakshatra Sravâna is evidently considered as particularly fit for this occasion because of its name containing an allusion to sruti, &c.

4. I have followed Nârâyana, but perhaps I ought to have translated, ‘Sûktas or Anuvâkas,’ and in the fifth Sûtra, ‘Adhyâyas or the sections, &c.’
'Come to our sacrifice, O you that are worthy of sacrifice, with care;' ‘Whosoever, be he ours, be he alien;' ‘Look on, look about;' ‘Come here, Agni, the Maruts’ friend;' ‘The oblation, O king, cooked for thee:' each time two verses,

11. They sip water, sit down,

12. Murmur the Mahâvyâhrîtis, the Sâvitrî, and the auspicious hymns commencing from the beginning of the Veda,

13. And cause the teacher to pronounce auspicious wishes.

9. According to Kaushitaki, the oblations are made with the first and last rikas of each Mandala. The last rik of the tenth Mandala quoted here, ta[k] kham yor â vrini[ma]he, is different from the verse with which our Samhitâ (the Sâkala Samhitâ of the Rig-veda) closes. It is well known that ta[k] kham yor â vrini[ma]he is the last verse in the Bâshkala Sâkhâ which was adopted by the Sânkhâyana school (comp. Indische Studien, IV, 431; Weber, Verzeichniss der Berliner Sanskrit-Handschriften, p. 314, &c.; Indische Literaturgeschichte, second edition, Nachtrag, p. 2). It was also known long since that the Bâshkala Sâkhâ of the Rig-veda contains eight hymns more than the Sâkala Sâkhâ. The Karanavyûha Bhâshya (comp. Dr. von Schroeder’s Introduction to his excellent edition of the Maitrâyani Samhitâ, vol. i, p. xxiv), known to me through the kindness of Professor Weber, tells which eight hymns these are. There it is said (folio 22 of Professor Weber’s MS.) that in the Bâshkala Samhitâ there followed after VIII, 48 the first two of the Vâlakhilya hymns, after VIII, 94 the Vâlakhilya hymns 3–7, and at the end of the whole collection the so-called sambhihāna hymn (see Professor Max Müller’s edition, vol. vi, p. 32), which ends with the very verse quoted in our Sûtra, ta[k] kham yor â vri- ni[ma]he.
14. Of this (ceremony) it is also said,
15. 'Desirous (of acquiring) for the hymns inexhaustible vigour, reverence, and also soundness, the Rishis, by the power of their austerities, have discovered the Upakarman.
16. 'Therefore a constant performer of the six kinds of works should, in order that his Mantras might be successful, perform the Upakarman—so they say—if he wishes for success of his (holy) works.
17. 'At the time of the Upakarman and of the Utsarga an interruption (of the Veda-study) shall take place for (three days and) three nights, likewise at the Ashvakas for one day and one night, and so on the last night of each season.'

KHANDA 6.

1. On the first day of the bright fortnight of Magha,
2. To the north-east,
3. In a place covered with herbs,
4. Having murmured the hymns sacred to the Sun, 'Upwards that Gatavedas' (Rig-veda I, 50), 'The bright face of the gods' (I, 115), 'Adoration to Mitra's (eye)' (X, 37), 'From the sky (where he dwells) may Surya protect us' (X, 158),

16. The six kinds of works are, performing sacrifices (yagana), officiating at the sacrifices of others (yagana), studying the Veda (adhyayana), teaching the Veda to others (adhyapana), giving (dana), and accepting gifts (pratigraha). Narayana.

17. Concerning the Utsarga, see chap. 6. This Sloka occurs also Manu IV, 119 with the reading kshapanam instead of kshapanam (kshapanam khandasam virama anadhyayat, Narayana). Kshapanam is correct.

6. 1. This Khanda treats of the Utsarga, i.e. the ceremony performed at the end of the term.
5. And having thrown clods of earth (on the ground) to the different quarters (of the horizon), from the left to the right, with the hymn, 'A ruler indeed' (Rig-veda X, 152), verse by verse,

6. And having satiated (with water) the Rishis, the metres, the deities, faith and insight, and the fathers man by man,

7. They interrupt (the study of) the hymns for six months and a half,

8. Or for five and a half.

9. But if they (wish to) recite them (nevertheless), let the recitation go on after a pause of one day and one night.

KHANDA 7.

1. Now the interruption (of the Veda recitation):—

2. In the case of prodigies until the same time (next day),

3. And in the case of other miracles;

4. In the case of lightning, thunder, and rains (the recitation shall be interrupted) till the twilight has thrice passed;

5. At a Sraddha-dinner for one day;

6. If a death (of relations) or birth has happened, for ten days;

7. On the fourteenth days (of the fortnights), the new moon days, and the Ashtakā days,

6. On the tarpāna, comp. chaps. 9 and 10.

7, 2. The translation of ākālam given in my German edition (Während der betreffenden Zeit) is wrong: comp. the commentary there quoted at p. 150; Gautama XVI, 22; Professor Stenzler's note on Pāraskāra II, 11, 2.

7. According to Narāyana the kā at the end of this Sūtra would
8. And on misty days.
9. And when the teacher has died, for ten days;
10. When he has heard of it, for three days;
11. And (on the death) of those whose family-head he is.
12. On receiving (gifts) as at the Srâddha.
13. On (the death of) a fellow-student;
14. When he has followed (the funeral of) a dead person,
15. And when he has laid down the lumps of flour to the fathers.
16. At night;
17. During twilight;
18. On the full and change of the moon;
19. After sunset;
20. In the neighbourhood of a Sûdra;
21. When the sound of a Sâman is heard;
22. On a burial ground;

be intended to convey the meaning that on the pratipad days of each fortnight the study should also be interrupted.

8. The translation of nabhya is quite conjectural. Nârâyana gives a different meaning to this word; comp. p. 150 of the German edition.
11. Âkâryaputrâdayah. Nârâyana.
21. The reason why the recitation of the Rig-veda is forbidden when the sound of a Sâman is heard, becomes manifest, for instance, from Âpastamba I, 10, 7, where the discontinuance of the Veda-study is prescribed when the barking of dogs, the braying of asses, the cry of a wolf, &c., the sound of musical instruments, of weeping, and of a Sâman is heard. Loud sounds like these would disturb the recitation of Rîk or Yagus texts. A very curious opinion has been recently brought forward by Professor Aufrecht (see his edition of the Rig-veda, second edition, vol. ii, p. xxxviii) that the incompatibility of the recitation of Rîk hymns and of Sâmans ‘beruht auf der Kenntniss von der Willkûr und der zum Theil unwürdigen Weise, in welcher der alte Text des Rig-veda in diesem Gesangbuche (i.e. the Sâmavedârâika) behandelt ist.’
23. In a wilderness which belongs to the village;
24. In a village where a corpse is;
25. On seeing forbidden sights;
26. On hearing what is forbidden;
27. On smelling a foul smell;
28. If a high wind blows;
29. If a cloud emits (heavy) rain;
30. On a carriage road;
31. And while the sound of a lute is heard;
32. While being on a chariot;
33. (In the neighbourhood) of a dog as (in that) of a Sūdra;
34. Having climbed up a tree;
35. Having descended into a pit;
36. (Immersed) in water;
37. While anybody cries;
38. While suffering bodily pain;
39. While he is naked;
40. Whilst impure with the remnants of food;
41. On a bridge;
42. On the occasion of the shaving of the hair and the beard until the bath;
43. While being rubbed;
44. While bathing;
45. When having sexual intercourse;
46. While being anointed;
47. (In the neighbourhood) of a man who has to touch corpses (a corpse-bearer, &c.), of a woman that has recently been confined, or that has her courses, as (in the neighbourhood) of a Sūdra;

29. Except during the rainy season. Nārâyana.
45. Nārâyana also understands māithuna, and I think that the German translation ought to be corrected accordingly.
48. With veiled hands;
49. In an army;
50. In presence of a Brähmana who has not had his meal, and of cows (that have eaten nothing);
51. When (these impediments) have passed, let them (continue to) recite (the Veda).
52. Should any of these cases arise against his will, let him (continue to) recite after having held his breath and looked at the sun.
53. (The same rules hold good,) except (those regarding) lightning, thunder, and rain, for (the study of) the Kalpa. During the five months and a half (they have to behave) as while it rains.
54. Thereof it is also said,
55. ‘Food, water, roots and fruits, and whatsoever else Śrāddha-food there may be: even when he has (only) accepted thereof, the study should be interrupted; the Brähmana’s hand is his mouth; so it is taught.’

53. I think that this Sūtra contains two different rules which have to be separated, viz. 1. vidyutstanayayitnuvarshavargam kalpe; 2. varshavad ardhashash/heshu. The first of these rules would extend the cases of anadhyāya mentioned in this chapter to the study of the Kalpa-sūtra, except the cases of lightning, rain, &c. The second would refer to the five months and a half following on the Utsarga ceremony (comp. chap. 6, 8), and would imply that during this time the same texts are to be studied or not, according as their study is allowed or forbidden during rainfall: i.e. the study of the Sanshitā is to be discontinued, while that of the Kalpa is allowed to go on. Rāmaśandra and Nārāyaṇa differ from this interpretation; see p. 151 of the German edition.

55. Comp. Manu IV, 117; Vaisishṭha XIII, 16.
Khanda 8.

1. And to (students) who have been duly initiated he shall set forth (the Veda);
2. The teacher sitting to the east or to the north, the other one to the south, with his face turned to the north.
3. Or two (students shall be so seated).
4. But more (than two) as there is room (for them).
5. He should not sit on a high seat in presence of a Guru,
6. Nor on the same seat (with him),
7. Nor with outstretched feet,
8. Nor stretching his arms under his knees,
9. Nor leaning his body (against a support),
10. Nor forming with his feet a lap,
11. Nor holding his feet like an axe.
12. After (the student) has said, ‘Recite, sir!’ the teacher shall cause him to pronounce the syllable Om.
13. ‘Om,’ replies the other.
15. When he has recited, he embraces (his teacher’s feet),
16. Says, ‘We have finished, sir!’ and (goes away) according to his business.

8, 1. Nyāyena sishyadharmena upetāḥ prāptāḥ tebhyaḥ sishyebhyo vartayed adhyayanam ākāryaḥ pravartayet. Nārāyana.
12. The words adhiḥi bho (recite, sir!) are pronounced by the student; this follows from the passages quoted in the note on II, 5, 10. Nārāyana states that those words are pronounced by the teacher (ākāryo guruḥ sishyam adhyāpanārtham adhiḥi bho 3 iti sabdam uktvā . . . ).
17. (He shall say,) 'Leave! Pause meanwhile!' according to some (teachers).

18. Let no one step between (a teacher and students) who study.

19. Let no one change his place during the recitation.

20. Should any fault be committed, let him fast three days, or one day and one night, repeat the Sāvitrī as long as he can, and give something to the Brāhmanas; then after an interruption of one day and one night the study should go on.

KHANDA 9.

1. Having bathed,

2. And having submerged himself at the time prescribed for the bath, he satiates the deities:

19. The translation of ātmānam vipariharet is conjectural; comp. also Nārāyana's note, p. 151 of the German edition.

9, 1. It is not expressly stated in our text for what occasion the tarpana (i.e. satiating of deities, Rishis, &c. with water-offerings), which is treated of in chap. 9–10, shall be prescribed. The comparison of Baudhāyana II, 9 might perhaps lead us to believe that the ceremony in question is to be performed whenever the sacrificer takes a bath. But the two texts which are most closely connected with ours, the Sāmbayya and Ārvalāyana Grāhyas, seem to point clearly to another conclusion. The Sāmbayya-sūtra transposes the rules about the tarpana to the place which would correspond to Sūtra II, 7, 28 of our text. The passage of the Sāmbayya-sūtra runs thus: mule kundam kritvā yathoktam adbhiḥ parishihkaty athemās (so the MS.) tarpayati Agnīḥ Pragāpatir Virūpākshah, &c. It ends: pitaraḥ pitāmahāḥ prapitāmahāḥ Pailah Kaholah Kaushitakah (sic) Kaholah Kaushitakaye svadhausvati pratipurushah (sic) pitṛms tarpayitvā. The last words are taken from the Sūtra IV, 6, 6 of our text. Thus there can be no doubt that Sāmbayya intended to prescribe the tarpana for the conclusion of the
3. 'Agni may satiate himself; Vâyu may satiate himself; Sûrya may satiate himself; Vishnu may satiate himself; Pragâpati may satiate himself; Virûpâksha may satiate himself; Sahasrâksha may satiate himself; Soma, Brahman, the Vedas, the gods, the Rishis, and all the metres, the word Oṃ, the word Vashat, the Mahâvyâhrâitis, the Sâvitri, the sacrifices, heaven and earth, the Nakshatras, the air, days and nights, the numbers, the twilights, the oceans, the rivers, the mountains, fields, herbs, trees, Gandharvas and Apsaras, the serpents, the birds, the Siddhas, the Sâdhyas, the Vîpras, the Yakshas, the Rakshas, the beings that have these (Rakshas, &c.) at their end, may satiate themselves.

'I satiate the Sruti; I satiate the Smṛiti; I satiate the firmness; I satiate the delight; I satiate vedâdhvayana. The same can be said of Ārvalâyana, who also by the position which he assigns to the tarpâna sections (III, 4) brings it into a similar connection with the vedâdhvayana (see Nârâyana's commentary on Ārv., loc. cit.). We may also refer to the treatise about the study of the Âranyaka, which is appended to the Sânkhâyana-Grhya as its sixth book; there the tarpâna is mentioned quite in the same connection (VI, 6, 10 seq.). I believe, therefore, that in our text, chapters 9 and 10 have found their place here as a sort of supplementary addition to chap. 6, 6, just as in the first book the list of Nakshatras seems likewise appended to the Sûtra I, 25, 5.

According to Nârâyana, snâtaḥ in the first Sûtra would refer to the bath which forms part of the Samâvartana ceremony (see III, 1, 1), so that it would be the Grhya chapter, who has taken the Samâvartana bath, to whom the following rules refer.

3. Comp. the similar lists of Ārvalâyana, Grhya III, 4; Sambhava, quoted in my German edition of Sânkhâyana, p. 153; and Baudhâyana II, 9 (S. B. E., vol. xiv, pp. 252 seq.). The last seems to be the most modern.

It should be observed that the section of the list contained in this Sûtra, as well as that given below, chap. 10, 3, is divided into the success; I satiate the thought; I satiate belief and insight, and the memory, cows and Brāhmaṇas, movable and immovable things. All beings may satiate themselves!’—so far with the sacrificial cord suspended over the left shoulder.

KHANDA 10.

1. Now with the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder,

2. Looking in the direction that belongs to the Manes (i.e. the south):

3. ‘The (Ṛishis) of the hundred (Rikas), the (Ṛishis) of the middle (Mandalas), Grītsamada, Visvāmitra, Gamadagni, Vāmadeva, Atri, Bharadvāga, Vasishtha, the Pragāthas, the (Ṛishis) of the Pavamāna hymns, the (Ṛishis) of the short hymns and of the long hymns, Sumantu, Gaimini, Vaiśampāyana, Paila, the Sūtras, the Bhāshyas, Gārgya, Babhru, Bābhravya, Mandu, Māndavya, Gārgī Vā-two parts, in the first of which the name of the being to be worshipped is given in the nominative case, with the verb tripātu, while in the second it stands in the accusative, with the verb tarpayāmi. The first part of this section contains the names of gods and of divine beings, such as the rivers, the mountains, &c.; in the second part are found abstract qualities or notions, such as mati, dhṛiti, sruti. Similarly in chapter 10, 3 the Vedic poets, a few ancient teachers, and wise women, such as Gārgī or Sulabhā, form the first part of the list, and then follow, in the accusative case, the names of such doctors as Śāṅkhāyana, Āṣvalāyana, Śākalya. In Āṣvalāyana’s Sūtra of the first of our two sections only the first part reoccurs, the second is omitted, while the second section is found there in its entirety, with the same difference of names given in the nominative and accusative cases. The conjectures, however, which I had once based on this difference (see my German edition, pp. 152, 153) as to the distinction of a more ancient part of the list, and of later supplements, are perhaps too hazardous.

kaknavi, Vadavâ Prâtitheyi, Sulabhâ Maitreyô (may satiate themselves).

'(I satiate) Kahola Kaushítaki, Mahâkaushítaki, Suyagîa Śâñkhâyana, Âsvalâyana, Aitareya, Mahátareya, Bháradvâga, Gâtûkarnyâ, Paingya, Mahâ-paingya, Bâshkala, Gârgya, Sâkalya, Mânûkeya, Mahâdamatra, Audavâhi, Mahaudavâhi, Sauyâmi, Saunaki, Sâkapûni, Gautami; and whatsoever other teachers there are, may they all satiate themselves.

4. 'The fathers man by man.
5. 'The ancestry of the father may satiate itself.
6. 'The ancestry of the mother may satiate itself.'

KHANDA 11.

1. Let him not look at a naked woman, except during sexual intercourse,

2. Nor (look) at the sun while it rises or sets,

3. At an enemy,

4. At an evil-doer,

5. At a person that has to touch dead bodies.

6. Let him not talk with a woman who has recently been confined or who has her courses,

7. Nor with those (mentioned before).

8. Let him not eat food from which its strength is taken away.

9. Let him not do his work with implements wasted by use.

10. Let him not eat together (with his wife),

11, 1 seq. Rules of conduct for a Snâtaka, i.e. a man who has completed his studentship.

10. Nârâyana states that 'with his wife' is to be supplied to this Sûtra, which indeed is rendered probable through the comparison of Gautama IX, 32; Manu IV, 43, &c.
11. Nor remnants (of food).
12. Remnants of (food belonging to the) Manes, gods, guests, and servants he may eat.
13. Gleaning ears of corn, receiving alms unasked for, or for which he has asked the good, performing sacrifices for others, are the means of livelihood;
14. (Of these) each preceding one is the more respectable.
15. Or if (his livelihood) cannot be gained (in one of the ways mentioned), let him follow the occupation of a Vaisya.
16. (He shall be) careful about his duties towards Manes and gods.
17. In due time (he shall) have intercourse with his wife.
18. He shall not lie down (to sleep) in the day-time,
19. Nor during the first or the last watch of the night.
20. Let him not sit on the bare ground.
21. He shall constantly perform the prescribed duties regarding the use of water.
22. (And constantly) have his sacrificial cord suspended over his left shoulder.
23. Let him not abandon his teacher,
24. Except on (his teacher's) command,
25. Or with (his) permission.

Khand 12.

1. Every day he shall respectfully salute his teacher,

11. Here also Nārāyana understands bhāryāyā bhukta-sesham.
2. And his Gurus,
3. A Srotiya when meeting him,
4. When he returns from a journey, (also) one who is not a Srotiya.
5. In the words, 'I am N.N., sir!' pronouncing his own name, crossing his hands (so as to seize with his right hand the right foot, and with his left hand the left of the other person).
6. (The person who has been thus saluted, in reply addressing him with his name,) 'N.N.!' and seizing his hands, pronounces a wish to him.
7. Let him not go to a sacrifice without being chosen (thereeto).
8. And let him beware of (doing) wrong.
9. Let him not go to assemblies of people.
10. If he has come upon (such assemblies), let him not point out (anything evil) against (anybody).
11. He shall not be a reviler, nor slanderous, nor a wanderer from house to house, nor a Prattler.
12. He shall not walk alone,
13. Nor naked,
14. Nor with veiled hands.
15. Gods' houses (he shall walk round) keeping the right side turned to them.

12, 5. Nārāyana: 'As to how that respectful salutation (abhivādana) should be performed, he says... with his own right hand he touches the right foot of the Ākārya or other person (whom he salutes), and with his left hand the left foot (comp. Manu II, 72) (and says), "I am N.N. (amukasārman) of the Gotra N.N., sir! I offer my respectful salutation!'"
6. 'The Ākārya or other person seizes the hands of the saluting person,' &c. Nārāyana.
16. Let him not run.
17. Let him not spit.
18. Let him not scratch himself.
19. Let him not look on urine and excrements.
20. Let him sit with veiled head,
21. Not on the bare (ground),
22. If he has only one garment, suspending his sacrificial cord on his ear,
23. Not turning his face to the sun,
24. Nor his rump,
25. In the day-time with his face to the north, at night to the south.
26. He shall not (eject) phlegm into water, nor in the neighbourhood (of water).
27. He shall not climb up a tree.
28. He shall not look down into a well.
29. He shall not go to an execution-place,
30. And in no case to a cemetery.
31. Let him bathe day by day with his clothes on.
32. When he has bathed, let him put on another garment before he is dry.

KHANDA 13.

1. Under (the Nakshatra) Rohini he shall have the ploughing done.
2. Before it is done, he shall offer at the eastern boundary of his field a Bali to Heaven and Earth.
3. With a verse sacred to Heaven and Earth and with the words, 'Adoration to Heaven and Earth!' (he performs his) worship (to Heaven and Earth).

16. According to Nārâyana we should have to supply, 'while it is raining,' which is countenanced by a number of parallel texts, for instance, Āsv.-Grīhya III, 9, 6.
4. When the plough is being put into motion first, let a Brâhmaṇa touch the plough reciting this (verse), 'For luck may us the plough-shares' (Rig-veda IV, 57, 8).

5. 'Through the lord of the field'—with (this hymn) (Rig-veda IV, 57), verse by verse, to the different directions (of the sky), from left to right, worship is done.

Khandā 14.

1. When going to cross water, he performs the Svâstisyayana (ceremony for lucky progress).

2. He sacrifices thrice with his joined hands full of water into the waters, with the words, 'Adoration to the Sea, the child of the reed! Adoration to Varuṇa, the lord of righteousness! Adoration to all rivers!'

3. Murmuring, 'May Visvākarman, the father of them all, relish the food offered.'

4. Against the stream for flowing (waters); up into the air for standing ones.

5. Should he while crossing apprehend any danger, let him murmur the hymn of Vasishṭha, 'The eldest of which is the sea' (Rig-veda VII, 49); this (will serve to him as) a boat.

Khandā 15.

1. The Srāvana (oblation) he offers on the full moon day that falls under (the Nakshatra) Sravishṭās, of the flour of fried barley, or of cooked food,

2. With (the words), 'To Vishnu svāhā! To (the Nakshatra) Sravana svāhā! To the full moon of Srâvana svāhā! To the rainy season svāhā!'
3. Having established the (sacred) domestic fire outside, and having mixed together fried grain and the flour of fried barley with butter, he sacrifices—

4. With (the words), 'To the Lord of the celestial Serpents svâhâ! To the celestial Serpents svâhâ!'

5. Having placed to the north of the fire a new water-pot on eastward-pointed, fresh Kusa grass,

6. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents wash himself! May the celestial Serpents wash themselves!'—he pours water into it.

7. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents comb himself! May the celestial Serpents comb themselves!'—he makes movements with a comb.

8. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents paint himself! May the celestial Serpents paint themselves!'—he pours out portions of paint.

9. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents tie (this) to (himself)! May the celestial Serpents tie (this) to themselves!'—he offers flowers.

10. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents clothe himself! May the celestial Serpents clothe themselves!'—he offers a thread.

11. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents anoint (his eyelashes)! May the celestial Serpents anoint (their eyelashes)!'—he spirts out (small portions of collyrium) with a young Kusa shoot.

12. With (the words), 'May the Lord of the celestial Serpents look (at himself)! May the celestial Serpents look (at themselves)!’—he makes them look in a mirror.

15, 7. For this signification of phâna, comp. Kullavagga V, 2, 3.
13. With (the words), 'Lord of the celestial Serpents, this is thy Bali! Celestial Serpents, this is your Bali!'—he makes a Bali-offering.

14. In the same way for the aerial (Serpents).

15. For those dwelling in the directions (of the horizon).

16. For the terrestrial ones.

17. (He repeats these Mantras) thrice each time, the first (part) with higher voice each time,

18. The second (part) with lower voice each time.

19. In this way he shall offer day by day with the spoon, in small portions, a Bali of the flour of fried barley with water, down to the Pratyavarohana (or the ceremony of the 'redescent'), at night, keeping silence.

20. And (his wife) shall put (it) down silently.

21. The close of the ceremony is the same as the beginning.

22. With (the verse), 'The good protectress' (Rigveda X, 63, 10), let him ascend the (high) couch.

17, 18. The text has ākkaistārām—ukkaistārām, and nākkaistārām—nākkaistārām. Nārāyana (comp. the text of his scholion, p. 155 of the German edition) understands this in a different way; he says that in the water-pot mentioned in the fifth Sūtra two different sthānas are to be distinguished, a higher part of it and a lower (uttarādharatayā). Now when the sacrificer, for instance, as prescribed in Sūtra 6, invites the Lord of the celestial Serpents, and the celestial Serpents to wash themselves, the pouring out of water would have to be performed first thrice for the Lord of the celestial Serpents in the higher place, then thrice for the celestial Serpents in the lower place.

19. On the Pratyavarohana see chap. 17.

22. 'From the Sravani till the Âgrahāyani (see chap. 17, 1) one shall not sleep on the ground out of fear of the snakes.' Nārāyana.
Khand 16.

1. On the full moon day of Āsvayuga a milk-rice oblation to Indra.

2. Having sacrificed Āgya with (the words), 'To the two Āsvins svāhā! To the two Āsvayug svāhā! To the full moon of Āsvayuga svāhā! To the autumn svāhā! To Pasupati svāhā! To the tawny one svāhā!'—

3. He shall sacrifice a mixture of curds and butter with this hymn, 'The cows came hither' (Rig-veda VI, 28), verse by verse.

4. That night they let the calves join their mothers.

5. Then feeding of the Brāhmanas.

Khand 17.

1. On the Āgrahāyaṇ ā full moon day he shall re-descend,

2. (Or) under (the Nakshatra) Rohini, or under the Proshthapadās.

3. In the morning, having taken a handful of Samt leaves, Madhūka flowers, reeds, Apāmārga plants, and of Sirisha, Udumbara, Kusa shoots, and jujube fruits, and an earth-clod (taken) out of a furrow,

4. Having put (all that) into a water-pot,

17, 1. The Pratyavarohaṇa (i.e. re descent) here described is the ceremony performed at the end of the time during which sleeping on high bedsteads is prescribed (chap. 15, 22). Beginning from the Śrāvaṇī full moon till the Pratyavarohaṇa, the offerings to the Serpents mentioned above have to be repeated every day (chap. 15, 19); the Pratyavarohaṇa is the concluding ceremony of these rites devoted to the Serpents.
5. And, after he has quickly repeated the Mahāvyāhṛtis and the Sāvitṛ, having repeatedly immersed (it) therein with this hymn, 'May he burn away from us pain' (Rig-veda I, 97), he shall drive away the evil from the persons standing under his protection, from left to right, and pour out (the water) to the north.

6. A Madhuparka is the fee for the sacrifice.

Khanda 18.

1. 'May summer, winter and spring, autumn and rainy season be well-ordered to us. May we be under the safe protection of these seasons, and may they last (to us) through a hundred years. Svāhå!

'Beat away, O white one, with thy foot, with the fore-foot and with the hind-foot, these seven daughters of Varuna and all that belong to the king's tribe. Svāhå!

'To the white one, the son of Vidārva svāhå! To Vidārva svāhå! To Takshaka Vaisāleya svāhå! To Visāla svāhå!'—with (these words) he sacrifices (oblations) of Āgya.

2. 'May a good winter, a good spring, a good summer be bestowed (on us). May the rains be to us happy rains; may the autumns be blessed to us.'

3. With (the verse), 'Blessing on us, Mitra' (Rigveda I, 90, 9), he sweeps (the floor) with a Palāsa branch,

5. Saramyebhyo grīhebhyah (read, grīhyebhyah) sarvebhyaḥ sakāsāt, &c. Nārāyana.

18, 1. This chapter continues the description of the Pratyavara-hana begun in the preceding chapter.

Rāgabāndhavaih, as our text has, should be corrected into rāgabāndhaviḥ; comp. Āsv. II, 3, 3.
4. Sprinkles (it with water) with (the verse), 'From the sea the wave' (Rig-veda IV, 58, 1),

5. And spreads out a layer (of straw) with (the verse), 'Be soft, O earth' (Rig-veda I, 22, 15).

6. They then lie down on their sides, the eldest one to the right hand—

7. With (the words), 'In the Brahman I establish myself, in the Kshatra,' on (their) right (sides);

8. With (the words), 'Among the horses I establish myself, among the cows,' on (their) left (sides);

9. With (the words), 'Among the cattle I establish myself, in prosperity,' on (their) right (sides);

10. With (the words), 'Among offspring I establish myself, in food,' on (their) left (sides).

11. With (the verse), 'Arise, the living' (Rig-veda I, 113, 16), they arise.

12. During that night they lie on that layer.

13. Afterwards where they like.

Khanda 19.

1. On the full moon day of Kaitra,

2. (Taking) jujube leaves, and making of meal (images) of couples of animals as it happens.

3. A figure with prominent navel to Indra and Agni.

4. Balls to Rudra.

5. According to custom the Nakshatras and (their ?) images (?). According to custom the Nakshatras and (their ?) images (?).

Here ends the Fourth Adhyāya.

19, 2–5. Several points in the translation of these Sūtras are uncertain. See the extracts from the commentary of Nārāyana, pp. 156 seq. of the German edition.
Adhyāya V, Khandā 1.

1. Now when he intends to set out on a journey, he makes (his sacred) fire enter into himself, (or) into the two kindling sticks, or into (an ordinary) log of wood,

2. Once with (the text), 'Come, enter into my Prānas,' twice silently.

3. Or with (the verse), 'This is thy womb' (Rigveda III, 29, 10) he warms the two kindling sticks,

4. Or an (ordinary log of) wood.

5. And before sunset the kindling (by attrition),

6. And at the time of the Vaisvadeva sacrifice.

7. Having carried a common fire to a place that has been smeared (with cowdung), which is elevated, and

1, 1. The ceremony of Samārohana, by which the duties towards the sacred fire are suspended, by causing the fire to 'enter' into the sacrificer's body, or into the two Aranis, or into another piece of wood, is already mentioned in several passages of the Brāhmaṇa texts; comp. the quotations given by Professor Weber, Indische Studien, IX, 311. Comp. besides Ârvalâyana-Srauta-sūtra III, 10; Sānkhyâyana-Srauta. II, 17. The Samārohana into the sacrificer's own body is done by warming the hands at the sacred fire; see Âśv., loc. cit., Śūtra 6. In the Sānkhyâyana-Srauta-sūtra the corresponding rule, which regards there of course the Âhitâgni, runs thus, 'If he performs the Samārohana, he warms his hands at the Gārpapatya fire, and then touches his Prānas with the words, "Come, enter into my Prānas."' On the two other cases, see the Śūtras 3 and 4. Śūtras 2, 3, 5 are taken word for word from the Srauta-sūtra.

2. This Sūtra refers only to the case where he causes the fire to enter into himself.

5. Comp. the commentary on Âśv.-Sraut., loc. cit. 8. He makes the fire redescend from his body or from the Aranis by performing the Manthana (kindling the fire by attrition of the Aranis).

7. The Mantra alluded to here is given in the Srauta-sūtra. It which has been sprinkled (with water), he makes (the sacred fire) redescend (from its receptacle, with the formula), 'Redescend!'

8. If the fire goes out, he sacrifices the two Sarvaprāyasākṣita oblations (oblations for general expiation) and (other oblations) with (the formulas), 'Protect us, Agni, that we may prosper. Svāhā! Protect us that we may obtain all wealth. Svāhā! The sacrifice protect, O resplendent one! Svāhā! Protect everything, O hundredfold wise one. Svāhā!'

9. In the case of a breach of his vow let him fast and sacrifice (an oblation) of Ågya with (the verse), 'Thou, Agni, art the lord of the vow' (Rig-veda VIII, 11, 1).

KHANDA 2.

1. Now about (the consecration of) ponds, wells, and tanks.

2. In the bright fortnight, or on an auspicious Tithi,

3. Having cooked barley-grains with milk,

4. He shall sacrifice with the two (verses), 'Thou runs thus, 'Redescend, O Gātavedas; carry again offerings to the gods, knowing us. Long life, offspring, wealth bestow on us; uninjured shine in our dwelling!'

8–9. These Sūtras stand in no connection with the Samārohāna treated of before.

On the two Sarvaprāyasākṣita oblations see above, I, 9, 12 and the note there.

The vow spoken of in Sūtra 9 Nārāyana refers to the restrictions regarding the food which the sacrificer and his wife are to eat on the Upavasatha days, connected with the festivals of the full and new moon.

hast us, Agni' (Rig-veda IV, 1, 4, 5), (and with the verses), 'We propitiate thy wrath' (I, 24, 14), 'This my prayer, Varuṇa' (I, 25, 19), 'Loosen the highest, Varuṇa' (I, 24, 15), 'This prayer of the man who exercises himself' (VIII, 42, 3).

5. (And with the words), 'The domestic one, he who goes away from the house, the refreshing one, he who goes into the kennel, he who dwells in the kennel, he who comes out of it, the greedy one, the destroyer of enemies'—to the different directions (of the horizon), beginning with that belonging to Varuṇa (i. e. the west), from left to right.

6. In the centre he makes oblations with milk with (the verses), 'Having eyes all around' (Rig-veda X, 81, 3), 'This has Vishnu' (Rig-veda I, 22, 17).

7. Plunging (into the water) with (the verse), 'Whatever here' (Rig-veda VII, 89, 5).

8. A cow and a pair of clothes is the fee for the sacrifice.

KHANDA 3.

1. Now at (the consecration of) a garden: having established the (sacred) fire (in that garden),

2. (And) having prepared a mess of cooked food,

3. He shall sacrifice with (the formulas), 'To

5. These are names of Agni dwelling in the waters; see Pāraskara II, 6, 10; Mantrabrāhmaṇa I, 7, 1. Several of the names are here misspelled; thus Gṛihya, Apagrīhya should be, no doubt, Gohya, Upagohya, which is the reading given in Pāraskara, loc. cit.

Vishnu svâhå! To Indra and Agni svâhå! To Visvakarman svâhå!’ (and with the verses), ‘Whom the men’ (Rig-veda III, 8, 6 seq.), verse by verse.

4. He recites over (the garden), ‘O tree with thy hundred branches’ (Rig-veda III, 8, 11).

5. The fee for the sacrifice is gold.

KHANDA 4.

1. Now if a half-monthly sacrifice has not been performed, one or the other of them, then a mess of rice (is to be offered as an expiation),

2. With (the words), ‘To Agni Vaisvânara svâhå! To Agni Tantumat svâhå!’

3. In the case of an intermission of the (morning or evening) oblations—

4. (He shall make expiatory oblations), in the evening with (the formula), ‘Enlightener of the darkness, adoration! Svâhå!’

5. In the morning with (the formula), ‘Enlightener of the morning, adoration! Svâhå!’

6. After he has sacrificed as many oblations as there had been sacrifices (left out), the sacrifice (itself goes on) as (stated) above.

KHANDA 5.

1. If a dove or an owl sits down (on his house),

2. Let him sacrifice with (the hymn), ‘O gods, the dove’ (Rig-veda X, 165), verse by verse.

4, 6. Nârâyana: ‘After he has thus taken and sacrificed as many Sruvas full of Âgya as there were sacrifices omitted through his guilt, the morning and evening sacrifices have to be performed as (stated) above (I, 3, 10) with oblations of rice or barley.’
3. If he has seen a bad dream or an occurrence boding misfortune,
4. Or when the cawing of a crow is heard in (the dead of) night,
5. And in the case of other prodigies,
6. Let him cook rice-grains with milk,
7. With the milk of a cow that has a calf of the same colour (with her own),
8. But in no case of a black (cow),
9. And let him sacrifice with the night-hymn (Rigveda X, 127), verse by verse.
10. Having eaten the remnants of those oblations with the Mahávyáhṛitis,
11. And having recited over his ears (the verse), 'Blessing with our ears' (Rig-veda I, 89, 8),
12. And over himself (the verse), 'May a hundred autumns be before us, ye gods' (ibid. 9),
13. He shall give something to the Bráhmanas.

KHANDA 6.

1. When a disease has befallen him,
2. Let him offer boiled rice-grains with Gavédhuká-grass with (the hymn), 'These (prayers) to Rudra, the strong one, with braided hair' (Rig-veda I, 114), verse by verse.

KHANDA 7.

1. If (his wife) gives birth to a child, without the Śmantonrayana having been performed,
2. (Or if) the Gátakarman has not been performed (for the child),

7, 1. On the Śmantonrayana, see I, 22.
2. The Gátakarman has been described I, 24.
3. He places, when ten days have elapsed since (the delivery), the little child in the mother's lap,

4. And after he has sacrificed with the Mahāvyāhṛitis, the sacrifice (that had been omitted, is performed) as (stated) above.

Khandā 8.

1. If a post puts forth shoots,

2. Let him prepare a mess of cooked food and offer the boiled rice with the two (verses), 'In that way bringing forth deeds' (Śrauta-sūtra III, 17, 1), 'Of tawny shape, weighty, a giver of vigour' (Rigveda II, 3, 9).

3. Should the pot for the Pranjitā water, the Ṭaya-pot, or any other earthen (vessel) be damaged and leak,

4. He sacrifices the two Sarvatrayaśśītta oblations and recites the three verses, 'He who without' (Rigveda VIII, 1, 12 seq.), over the broken (vessel).

5. Should the two (Kusa blades which are used as) strainers be spoiled before the completion of the sacrifice,

6. Let him sacrifice the Sarvatrayaśśītta and make new ones with (the verse), 'In the water, Agni' (Rigveda VIII, 43, 9).

Khandā 9.

1. Now (follows) the Sapiṇḍikarana.

2. Let him fill four water-pots (for the Manes) from the father upwards,
3. And prepare in the same way lumps (of flour),
4. And let him distribute the first lump on the (other) three with (the verses), ‘They who commonly, concordantly (dwell) in Yama’s realm, the fathers: for them be space, freedom, adoration, sacrifice established among the gods.

‘They who commonly, harmoniously (dwell), the living among the living, mine: may their prosperity fall to my lot in this world through a hundred years’—

And with the two (verses), ‘Equal the design’ (Rig-veda X, 191, 3. 4).

5. In the same way the vessels with Argha water.
6. In the same way for the mother, for a brother, and for a wife that has died before (her husband), adding (the lump belonging to that person) to those (other) lumps.

KHANDA 10.

1. If the bees make honey in his house,
2. Let him fast and sacrifice a hundred and eight pieces of Udumbara wood, which are besmeared with curds, honey, and ghee, with the two (verses), ‘No (harm) to us in our offspring’ (Rig-veda I, 114, 8. 9).
3. And let him murmur the hymn, ‘For welfare may Indra and Agni’ (Rig-veda VII, 35); and (the same hymn should be used) at all (ceremonies), such as that of the sacrifice after assent has been declared (see above, I, 7, 1).

2. On these four vessels, see IV, 3, 4 seq.

4. After he has sacrificed seventeen one span long pieces of Palåsa wood, he then seizes the Sruva.

5. Fifteen at the full and new moon sacrifices.

6. At the Ash†akå ceremony in the middle of the rainy season there may optionally be three (pieces of wood); the sacrifice as at the Pitriyagña.

Khaṇḍa 11.

1. If an anthill arises in his house, the house should be abandoned.

2. Then, after having fasted three nights (and days), he should perform the great expiation.

Here ends the Fifth Adhyāya.

4. See I, 9, 1. 3.

6. Comp. III, 13, 1 with the note.

11, 2. Nåråyana understands the 'great expiation' as a rite directed to Gånera and to the planets (comp. Yågñavalkya I, 276 seq., 292, &c.); that this ceremony was known already to the author of this Sûtra seems very doubtful. Another 'mahåsånti' is frequently mentioned in the Kausika-sûtra (quoted in Bôhtlingk-Roth's Dictionary); comp. my German edition of Sànkhåyana, p. 159.
Adhyāya VI, KhandA 1.

1. Now, after having paid reverence to Brahman, to the Brahmarishi, to (those who descend from) Brahman's womb, to Indra, Pragapati, Vasishtha, Vâmadeva, Kahola Kaushitaki, Mahâkaushitaki, Suyagña Sâñkhâyana, Ásvalâyana, Aitareya, Mahaitareya, Kâtyâyana, Sâtyâyana, Sâkalya, Babhru, Bâbhravya, Mandu, Mândâvya, and to all the teachers of the past, we will henceforth explain the rules for the Āranyaka as forming the subject of Svâdhyâya (private recitation of a text).

2. The teacher abstains through one day and one night from sexual intercourse and from eating flesh.

3. Raw flesh, a Kândâla, a woman that has lately been confined, or that has her courses, seeing blood or persons whose hands have been cut off: (these persons and things he shall know form) impediments for the study.

4. And of the corpse-like (animals?).

5. Those which enter (their dens?) with the mouth first (?).

1, 1 seqq. Comp. the general remarks on this sixth book in the Introduction, p. 11.

For the names in the opening invocation, comp. above, IV, 10; on the Vratas and the study of the different Āranyaka sections chiefly treated of in this book, see above, II, 11. 12, and the Introduction, p. 8.

2. Comp. II, 11, 6.

6. When he has vomited, or when his beard has been shaved,
7. When he has eaten flesh or partaken of a Srâddha or birth dinner,
8. During the days that immediately follow on (days of) study in the village,
9. Three nights (and days), if (he has been) put out of order,
10. (Or has been violently) seized by others,
11. And during the second half of the days that precede (?) the Parvan days,
12. And if fire-flames, lightning, thunder, (heavy) rains, and great clouds appear,
13. And if a storm (blows) that carries away pebbles, as long as that lasts.
2, 1. During four months after the full moon of Åshâdha let him not study.
2. Especially the Sakvart verses (are concerned by what has been declared). Such are the rules.

KHANDA 2.

3. Let them go to a clean spot in the north-eastern direction, that receives its light from the east.
4. The drawing of water (should be done) before sunrise,

6. Comp. IV, 7, 42. See also Ait. Áranyaka V, 3, 9.
7. Comp. IV, 7, 5.
2, 2. It seems to me that this Sûtra should be divided into two (after sakvaryaḥ), so that the words iti niyamāḥ would correspond to iti bhâshikam, chap. 2, 13.
3. Comp. II, 12, 11. Perhaps the Petersburg Dictionary is right in proposing for prâggyotisham the translation, vor Anbruch des Lichtes. Nârâyana says, prâk purastât gyotir yasmin tam... pradesam.
5. And the entering into the circle with this verse, ‘She who smells of salve’ (Rig-veda X, 146, 6).

6. The circle should have its entrance to the east or to the north; it should be (praised as) excellent among the people, not too spacious, not too narrow.

7. The final expiation (should extend) to the Vâmadevya.

8. And the invitation to resume the recitation (is done in the following way):

9. After they have sipped water that stands outside the circle,

10. Let them resume the recitation, having performed the expiation.

11. If the vessel used in the expiation is damaged, sprinkling (with water forms) the expiatory act (to be performed for it).

12. (That) sprinkling, however, (one should perform) holding gold or a bunch of Darbha grass in his hand.

13. So far what pertains to the general rules.

Khanda 3.

1. Now after they have entered the circle—

2. The teacher sits down with his face to the east, the others, according to their rank, (sit down) towards the south, with their faces to the north.

5. The Mandala is a circular space marked by a line of water.

6. I am doubtful whether we should read vâ ganâgriyam and translate as I have done in accordance with the note of Nârâyana, or if the reading should be vâganâgriyam, 'not in the presence of people,' so that ganâgriyam would mean ganânâm agre.

7. On the expiation (sânti) comp. chap. 3, 12.

3, 2, 3. Comp. IV, 8, 2–4.
3. If that is impossible, with their faces to all directions.
4. Let them expect the rising of the sun,
5. And when they behold it in its splendour,
6. Let them with (the words), 'Recite, sir!' seize with their hands, holding the right hand uppermost, the feet of the teacher, which have been washed, with the right (hand) the right (foot), with the left the left,
7. And having then put (the hands) into the vessel used for the expiation, into water in which pieces of Dûrvâ stalks are, let them begin their study, when their hands have ceased to drip.
8. This is the rite. But when they are tired, let one of them bring it about that the vessel used for the expiation be not empty.
9. And all (should do so) at the beginning and the end of (each) Adhyâya.
10. (All) that is done continuously, without interruption.
11. Now the expiation.
12. The syllable Om, the Mahâvyâhrîtis, the Sâvitri, the Rathantara, the Brîhat, the Vâmadevya; Brîhat and Rathantara with repetition and Kakubh-forming.

6. Comp. above, II, 5, 10, &c.
7. The translation of apiṇvamânaïh pâñibhih is conjectural. Nârâyana's explanation of apiṇvamâna by asamsrîshṭa is inadmissible.
8. Nârâyana explains this Sûtra in the following way. If it is impossible, for any reason, to recite the whole text, only the beginning and the concluding words of each Adhyâya (see Sûtra 9) are to be repeated; and these should be recited without interruption so as to form one continual text.
12. Comp. above, III, 4, 5.
13. These (holy words and verses) are (thus) made to attain (the number of) ten.

14. 'Of decades consists the Virâg'—thus says the Brâhmaṇa.

KHANDA 4.

1. 'Unerring mind, vigorous eye (is) the sun, the noblest of the stars. Inauguration, do no harm to me!'—with these words they look at Savitri (i.e. the sun).

13. The Gâyatî is one verse; the Rathantara and the Brâhat are Pragâthas which are changed in the usual way into Trîkas; the Vâmadevya is one Trîkâ: thus the number of ten is obtained.

4. The formula 'A dabdharm manaḥ,' &c. has to be recited before each of the single Âranyaka texts (the Sakvarî verses, the Mahâvrata, &c.); to this formula are added, before or after it, as the case may be, other texts specified in the Sûtras 2-8. Of these there can be no doubt about the meaning of Sûtras 7, 8, treating of the introductory formulas of the Samhitâ section (Kaush. Âr. VII-VIII) and of the Mantha section (ibid. IX): before the text adabdham, &c. are to be added, in the first case the formula riţam vadîshyâmi, &c., in the second case two Rîkas addressed to Savitri. These formulas and verses have been received into the Âranyaka text and are found there in the order here stated, at the beginning of books VII and IX. The meaning of the words samhitânâm tu pûrvam (Sûtra 7) having thus been established, I can see no reason why we should not interpret the words sakvarînâm tu pûrvam (Sûtra 3) quite in the same way. Thus the introductory benediction for the recital of the Sakvari verses would consist, firstly of the verses stated in Sûtra 4, then of the formula adabdham, &c.; those verses would have to be repeated again after the Sakvari verses (end of Sûtra 4). The recitation of the Mahâvrata (Sûtras 1, 2) and of the Upanishads (Sûtra 5) is preceded by adabdham, &c., and then by the four verses stated in Sûtra 2. The interpretation which Nârâyana gives of this Sûtra is not quite the same as that which I have here proposed; see p. 163 of the German edition.
2. One (verse), 'You both the gladening one' (Rig-veda X, 131, 4), and the three (verses), 'Blessing to us on the paths' (Rig-veda X, 63, 15–17) (are to be repeated before the recitation) of the Mahávrata (chapter).

3. But (at that) of the Sakvart (verses) before (the formula mentioned in the first Sútra):

4. The three Trikas, 'To him, the thirsty one' (Rig-veda VI, 42, 1–3), 'The wealthiest (Soma), O wealthy one' (VI, 44, 1–3), 'Him who does no harm to you' (VI, 44, 4–6), (the verse), 'To him, to him the sap of the herb' (VI, 42, 4), (and the verse), 'Verily thou art a hero' (VIII, 81, 28)—thus for the Sakvart (verses) before and afterwards.

5. Now for the Upanishad (texts)—

6. The same (recitation) as for the Mahávrata.

7. For the Samhitás, however, before (the text given in the first Sútra the formula has to be recited), 'I shall speak right, I shall speak truth (&c.)'—this is the difference (in the case of the Samhitás).

8. Now for the Mantha the two verses (have to be recited) before (the formula given in the first Sútra), 'This we entreat of Savitar,' 'That glorious (splendour) of Savitar' (Rig-veda V, 82, 1; III, 62, 10).

4. According to the reading of some MSS. we should have to translate, or (the verse), 'Verily,' &c.

7. On the Samhitás (Kaush. Ār. VII, VIII) see Max Müller, Rigveda Prátiśákhyá, pp. 4 seq.; Ait. Áraśyaka III (pp. 305 seqq., ed. Bibl. Ind.; Sacred Books of the East, I, pp. 247 seq.).

8. Regarding the description of the Mantha sacrifice (Kaush. Ār. IX) which has to be performed by one who wishes to attain greatness, comp. Satap. Bráhmaṇa XIV, 9, 2; Khând. Up. V, 2, 4; Sacred Books of the East, I, p. 75.
9. With (the formula), 'Unerring mind' (see Sūtra 1), then follow the expiatory formulas that belong to the (different) sections.

10. (All) this on one day.

Khanda 5.

Khanda 4, 11. Now if the time for rising has come, they drive away (all) evil,

12. Perform the standing expiation,

13. And look at the sun with (the words), 'From here I take out the brightness (?)'.

Khanda 5, 1. 'That (I place) within myself'—with (these words they turn their thoughts to the universal) Self that is placed (within themselves?)—three times repeated (?).

2. With (the formula), 'May happiness rejoice in me and glory; may happiness rejoice with me and glory;—

3. 'Together with Indra, with the hosts, with power, with glory, with strength I will rise'—he rises up.

11, 12. Nārāyana has the following note: 'The evil which is attached to their body, such as dirt, they drive away, i.e. they remove it by means of their reciting (of the sacred texts), and then they perform the standing expiation which has been declared above, which begins with the syllable Om and with the Mahāvyāhāritis' (see chap. 3, 12).

5, 1. Nārāyana says that dadhe is supplied to this Mantra from the preceding Sūtra, and so indeed the Mantra is given in the Aitareya recension. The translation of abhinihitaṁ trir hitam is merely tentative; see Nārāyana's note, p. 165, of the German edition. Perhaps abhinihitaṁ should be taken in its grammatical value, and the Sūtra should be translated, "'That (I place) into myself (ātmānā)'—with these words (they look) at themselves, pronouncing (the word ātmānā) with Abhinidhāna, three times repeated (?)'. ÂSVALÂYANA-GRIHYASAUTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

ÂŚVALÂYANA-GRÂHYA-SÛTRA.

Most of the questions referring to the Grâhyā-sûtra of Āśvalâyana will be treated of more conveniently in connection with the different subjects which we shall have to discuss in our General Introduction to the Grâhyā-sûtras. Here I wish only to call attention to a well-known passage of Shadgurusishya, in which that commentator gives some statements on the works composed by Āśvalâyana and by his teacher Saunaka. As an important point in that passage has, as far as I can see, been misunderstood by several eminent scholars, I may perhaps be allowed here to try and correct that misunderstanding, though the point stands in a less direct connection with the Grâhyā-sûtra than with another side of the literary activity of Āśvalâyana.

Shadgurusishya¹, before speaking of Āśvalâyana, makes the following statements with regard to Āśvalâyana’s teacher, Saunaka. ‘There was,’ he says, ‘the Sâkala Saṁhitâ (of the Rig-veda), and the Bâshkala Saṁhitâ; following these two Saṁhitâs and the twenty-one Brâhmaṇas, adopting principally the Aitareyaka and supplementing it by the other texts, he who was revered by the whole number of great Rîshis composed the first Kalpa-sûtra.’ He then goes on to speak of Āśvalâyana—‘Saunaka’s pupil was the venerable Āśvalâyana. He who knew everything he had learnt from that teacher, composed a Sûtra and announced (to Saunaka that he had done so)².’ Saunaka then destroyed his own Sûtra, and

² This seems to me to be the meaning of sūtram krîtvā nyavedayat; determined that Ásvalâyana’s Sûtra should be adopted by the students of that Vedic Sâkhâ. Thus, says Shadguru-sishya, there were twelve works of Saunaka by which a correct knowledge of the Rig-veda was preserved, and three works of Ásvalâyana. Saunaka’s dâsa granthâs were, the five Anukrama vis, the two Vidhânas, the Bârhaddai- vata, the Prâtisâkhyâ, and a Smârta work. Ásvalâyana, on the other hand, composed the Srauta-sûtra in twelve Adhyâyas, the Grihya in four Adhyâyas, and the fourth Âranyaka: this is Ásvalâyana’s great Sûtra composition.

Here we have an interesting and important statement by which the authorship of a part of the Aitareyâranyaka, which would thus be separated from the rest of that text, is ascribed, not to Mahidâsa Aitareya, but to an author of what may be called the historical period of Vedic antiquity, to Ásvalâyana.

But what is the fourth Âranyaka to which this passage refers? Is it the text which is now set down, for instance, in Dr. Râgendralâla Mitra’s edition, as the fourth Âra- nyaka of the Aitareyinas?

Before we give an answer to this question, attention must be called to other passages referring, as it could seem, to another part, namely, the fifth part of the Âranyaka.

Sâyana, in his great commentary on the Rig-veda, very frequently quotes the pañkamâranyâka as belonging to Saunaka. Thus in vol. i, p. 112, ed. Max Müller, he says: pañkamâranyaka aushuhiârikâtîr iti khande Saunakena sûtritam surûpakritnum útaya iti trîny endra sánasim rayim iti dve iti. There is indeed in the fifth Âranyaka a chapter beginning with the words aushuhi trikâsitih, in which the words quoted by Sâyana occur. Similar quotations, in the case is similar to that where a pupil goes on his rounds for alms and announces (nivedayati) to his teacher what he has received. Prof. Max Müller translates these words differently; according to him they mean that Ásvalâyana ‘made a Sûtra and taught it.’

which the fifth Āranyaka is assigned to Saunaka, are found in Sāyana’s commentary on the Āranyaka itself; see, for instance, p. 97, line 19, p. 116, line 3.

Thus it seems that the authorship of both the fourth and the fifth Āranyaka was ascribed to teachers belonging to the Sūtra period of Vedic literature, viz. to Saunaka and to Āśvalāyana respectively. And so we find the case stated by both Professor Weber, in his ‘Vorlesungen über indische Literaturgeschichte¹,’ and Dr. Râgendralâla Mitra, in the Introduction to his edition of the Aitareya Āra-nyaka².

But we must ask ourselves: Are the two books of the Āranyaka collection, ascribed to those two authors, really two different books? It is a surprising fact that Shadgurushishya, while speaking of Āśvalāyana’s authorship of the fourth book, and while at the same time intending, as he evidently does, to give a complete list of Saunaka’s compositions, does not mention the fifth Āranyaka among the works of that author. In order to account for this omission the conjecture seems to suggest itself that Shadgurushishya, when speaking of the fourth Āranyaka as belonging to Āśvalāyana, means the same work which Sāyana sets down as the fifth, and which he ascribes to Saunaka. At first sight this conjecture may seem perhaps rather hazardous or unnatural; however I believe that, if we compare the two texts themselves which are concerned, we shall find it very probable and even evident. What do those two Āranyaka books contain? The fourth is very short: it does not fill more than one page in the printed edition. Its contents consist exclusively of the text of the Mahānāmnī or Sakvarī verses, which seem to belong to a not less remote

² P. 11: If this assumption be admitted, the proper conclusion to be arrived at would also be that the whole of the fifth Book belongs to Saunaka, and the whole of the fourth Book to Āśvalāyana. P. 12: The writings of both Āśvalāyana and Saunaka which occur in the Āraṇyaka, etc.
aniquity than the average of the Rig-veda hymns. They can indeed be considered as forming part of the Rig-veda Samhitā, and it is only on account of the peculiar mystical holiness ascribed to these verses, that they were not studied in the village but in the forest, and were consequently received not into the body of the Samhitā itself, but into the Āranyaka. They are referred to in all Brāhmaṇa texts, and perhaps we can even go so far as to pronounce our opinion that some passages of the Rig-veda hymns themselves allude to the Sakvari verses:

So much for the fourth Āranyaka. The fifth contains a description of the Mahāvrata ceremony. To the same subject also the first book is devoted, with the difference that the first book is composed in the Brāhmaṇa style, the fifth in the Sūtra style.

Now which of these two books can it be that Shadguruṣishya reckons as belonging to the ‘Āsvalāyanaśūtra? ’ It is impossible that it should be the fourth, for the Mahānāmi verses never were considered by Indian theologians as the work of a human author; they shared in the apauruṣeyatva of the Veda, and to say that they have been composed by Āsvalāyana, would be inconsistent with the most firmly established principles of the literary history of the Veda both as conceived by the Indians and by ourselves. And even if we were to admit that the Mahānāmi verses can have been assigned, by an author like Shadguruṣishya, to Āsvalāyana,—and we cannot admit

1 See Sāṅkhāyana-Grhyā II, 12, 13.
2 Thus Śāyana, in his note on VI, 1, 1, says: Nanu prathamāranyakeṣpi atsmaḥāvratam Indro vai Vṛtraḥ hatvetyādina mahāvrataprayogo bhilhitā, pañkameṣpi tasyaivābhidhāne punaruktiḥ syāt. nāyam doshaḥ, sūtraibrāhmaṇa-rūpam tayor vibhedat, pañkāmāranyakam rishiṣṭopram sūtram, prathamāranyakaṃ tv api aṣṭāvadaprapadāhena sahitā vidhayaḥ sūryante, pañkame tu na ko py arthavādostī, ... āranyakaṃ svaitad adhyayam ity abhipreyādhyetāra āranyakaṇḍaṃ natarbhāvyādhyate.
this,—there is no possibility whatever that he can have used the expression ‘Āsvalāyanaśūtrakam’ with regard to the Mahānāmīnis; to apply the designation of a Sūtra to the Mahānāmī hymn would be no less absurd than to apply it to any Sūkta whatever of the Rīk-Samhitā. On the other hand, the fifth book of the Āranyaka is a Sūtra; it is the only part of the whole body of the Āranyaka collection which is composed in the Sūtra style. And it treats of a special part of the Rig-veda ritual the rest of which is embodied in its entirety, with the omission only of that very part, in the two great Sūtras of Āsvalāyana. There seems to me, therefore, to be little doubt as to the fifth Āranyaka really being the text referred to by Shadhgurusishya, though I do not know how to explain his setting down this book as the fourth. And I may add that there is a passage, hitherto, as far as I know, unnoticed, in Sāyana’s Sāma-veda commentary, in which that author directly assigns the fifth Āranyaka not, as in the Rig-veda commentary, to Saunaka, but to Āsvalāyana. Sāyana there says: yathā bahvṛīkām adhyāpaka mahāvratprayogapratipādakam Āsvalāyananirmitam kalpa-sūtram aranye-dhiyamānāḥ pāṇkamam āranyakam iti vedatvena vyavaharanti.

Instead of asserting, therefore, that of the two last Āranyakas of the Aitareyinas the one is ascribed to Saunaka, the other to Āsvalāyana, we must state the case otherwise: not two Āranyakas were, according to Sāyana and Shadhgurusishya, composed by those Sūtrakāras, but one, viz. the fifth, which forms a sort of supplement to the great body of the Sūtras of that Karana, and which is ascribed either to Saunaka or to Āsvalāyana. Perhaps further research will enable us to decide whether that Sūtra portion of the Āranyaka, or we may say quite as well, that Āranyaka portion of the Sūtra, belongs to the author of the Srauta-sūtra, or should be considered as a remnant of a more ancient composition, of which the portion studied in the forest has survived, while the portion which was taught in the village was superseded by the more recent Āsvalāyana-sūtra.

There would be still many questions with which an Introduction to Āsvalāyana would have to deal; thus the relation between Āsvalāyana and Saunaka, which we had intended to treat of here with reference to a special point, would have to be further discussed with regard to several other of its bearings, and the results which follow therefrom as to the position of Āsvalāyana in the history of Vedic literature would have to be stated. But we prefer to reserve the discussion of these questions for the General Introduction to the Grihya-sūtras.
ÂŚVALÂYANA-GRİHYA-SŪTRA.

ADHYÂYA I, KÂNDIKÂ 1.

1. The (rites) based on the spreading (of the three sacred fires) have been declared; we shall declare the Grīhya (rites).

2. There are three (kinds of) Pâkayagñas, the hutās, (i.e. the sacrifices) offered over the fire; over something that is not the fire, the prahutās; and at the feeding of Brâhmanas, those offered in the Brahman.

3. And they quote also Rīkās, 'He who with a piece of wood or with an oblation, or with knowledge ("veda").'

1, 1. The spreading (vitāna or, as it is also called, vihāra or vistāra) of the sacred fires is the taking of two of the three sacrificial fires, the Āhavanīya fire and the Dakshināgni, out of the Gârhapatyā fire (see, for instance, Weber's Indische Studien, IX, 216 seq.). The rites based on, or connected with the vitāna, are the rites forming the subject of the Śrauta ritual, which are to be performed with the three fires.

2. Comp. Sāṅkhâyana-Grīhya I, 5, 1; I, 10, 7. The division here is somewhat different from that given by Sāṅkhâyana; what Sāṅkhâyana calls ahuta, is here prahuta ('sacrificed up'); the prahutās of Sāṅkhâyana form here no special category; the prâsītās of Sāṅkhâyana are the brahmani hutās of Âśvalâyana. Thus Âśvalâyana has three categories, while Sāṅkhâyana (and quite in the same way Pâraskara I, 4, 1) gives four. Nârâyana mentions as an example of prahuta sacrifices the baliharana prescribed below, I, 2, 3.

3. Rig-veda VIII, 19, 5, 'The mortal who with a piece of wood, or with an oblation, or with knowledge worships Agni, who with adoration (worships him) offering rich sacrifices,' &c.
4. Even he who only puts a piece of wood (on the fire) full of belief, should think, 'Here I offer a sacrifice; adoration to that (deity)!' (The Rik quoted above then says), 'He who with an oblation'—and, 'He who with knowledge; even by learning only satisfaction is produced (in the gods).

Seeing this the Rishi has said, 'To him who does not keep away from himself the cows, to him who longs for cows, who dwells in the sky, speak a wonderful word, sweeter than ghee and honey.' Thereby he means, 'This my word, sweeter than ghee and honey, is satisfaction (to the god); may it be sweeter.'

(And another Rishi says), 'To thee, O Agni, by this Rik we offer an oblation prepared by our heart; may these be oxen, bulls, and cows.' (Thereby he means), 'They are my oxen, bulls, and cows (which I offer to the god), they who study this text, reciting it for themselves (as their Svâdhyâya).

(And further on the Rik quoted above says), 'He who (worships Agni) with adoration, offering rich sacrifices.' 'Verily also by the performing of adoration (the gods may be worshipped); for the gods are not beyond the performing of adoration; adoration verily is sacrifice'—thus runs a Brâhmaṇa.

4. The words of the Rik, 'with an oblation,' are here repeated, the Vedic instrumental âhuti being replaced and explained by the regular form âhutyâ.

The following Rik is taken from the eighth Mandala, 24, 20. The god compared there with a rutting bull is Indra.

The following verse is Rig-veda VI, 16, 47; we may doubt as to the correctness of the explanation given in our text, by which te te is referred to the persons studying the hymns of the Rishi. All these quotations of course are meant to show that the knowledge of the Veda and the performing of namas (adoration) is equivalent to a real sacrifice.
KANDIKĀ 2.

1. Now he should make oblations in the evening and in the morning of prepared sacrificial food,

2. To the deities of the Agnihotra, to Soma Vanaspati, to Agni and Soma, to Indra and Agni, to Heaven and Earth, to Dhanvantari, to Indra, to the Visve devās, to Brahman.

4. To those same deities, to the waters, to the herbs and trees, to the house, to the domestic deities, to the deities of the ground (on which the house stands),

5. To Indra and Indra's men, to Yama and Yama's men, to Varuna and Varuna's men, to Soma and Soma's men—these (oblations he makes) to the different quarters (of the horizon, of which those are the presiding deities).

6. To Brahman and Brahman's men in the middle,

2, 1. This is the Vaisvadeva sacrifice; comp. Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya II, 14, &c.

2. The deities of the Agnihotra are Sūrya, Agni, and Pragāpati.

On Soma Vanaspati see the quotations given in Böhtlingk-Roth's Dictionary s. v. vanaspati, 2.

3. I think the division of the Śūtras should be altered, so that svāheta would belong to Śūtra 2, and the third Śūtra would consist only of the words atha baliha-ranam. In this case we should have to translate,

(1) Now he should make oblations, &c.

(2) With the words, 'To the deities of the Agnihotra (i.e. to Agni, to Sūrya, to Pragāpati), to Soma Vanaspati, &c., svāhā!'

(3) Then (follows) the offering of the Balis.

Comp. Sāṅkh-.Gṛihya II, 14, 4. 5, which passage seems to confirm the view expressed here.

A son born by her (after a wedding of this kind) brings purification to twelve descendants and to twelve ancestors on both (the husband's and the wife's) sides.

2. He may give her, having decked her with ornaments, to an officiating priest, whilst a sacrifice with the three (Srauta) fires is going on: this (is the wedding called) Daiva. (A son) brings purification to ten descendants and to ten ancestors on both sides.

3. They fulfil the law together: this (is the wedding called) Prāgâpatya. (A son) brings purification to eight descendants and to eight ancestors on both sides.

4. He may marry her after having given a bull and a cow (to the girl's father): this (is the wedding called) Ârsha. (A son) brings purification to seven descendants and to seven ancestors on both sides.

5. He may marry her, after a mutual agreement has been made (between the lover and the damsel): this (is the wedding called) Gândharva.

6. He may marry her after gladdening (her father) by money: this (is the wedding called) Âsura.

7, 3. Professor Stenzler is evidently right in taking āsmânam as in apposition to drishadam. Nârâyana says, drishat prasiddhâ āsmâ tatputrakaḥ. tatrobhayoḥ pratishtâpanam siddham.

The sacrifice is that prescribed in Sânkh.-Grihya I, 12, 11, 12. Regarding the rite that follows, comp. Sânkh.-Grihya I, 13, 2.

Come! Let us here marry. Let us beget offspring. Loving, bright, with genial mind may we live a hundred autumns.’

The two portions of fried grain poured over the bride’s hands, together with the first (upastaraṇa) and the second (pratyabhīṣhāraṇa) pouring out of Âgya, constitute the four Avattas, or portions cut off from the Havis. The descendants of Gāmadagni were paṅkāvatīnas, i.e. they used to cut off five such portions (see Kātyāyana I, 9, 3; Weber, Indische Studien, X, 95); so they had to pour out the fried grain three times.

14, 15. According to those teachers whose opinion is related in Sûtras 6-14, the leading round the fire, the treading on the stone, and the offering of fried grain (with the three parts of the Mantra, Sûtra 13) are repeated thrice; then follows the offering prescribed in Sûtra 14, so that the last two offerings follow immediately on each other. This is not the case, if in the first three instances the order of the different rites is inverted, as stated in Sûtra 15.

In Sûtra 14 Nârâyana explains sûrpapû/a by kona.

20. Joining together their two heads, (the bridegroom? the Ākārya?) sprinkles them (with water) from the water-pot.

22. When she sees the polar-star, the star Arundhati, and the seven Rīshis (ursa major), let her break the silence (and say), 'May my husband live and I get offspring.'

KANDIKĀ 8.

1. If (the newly-married couple) have to make a journey (to their new home), let him cause her to mount the chariot with the (verse), 'May Pūshan lead thee from here holding thy hand' (Rig-veda X, 85, 26).

2. With the hemistich, 'Carrying stones (the river) streams; hold fast each other' (Rig-veda X, 53, 8) let him cause her to ascend a ship.

6. At lovely places, trees, and cross-ways let him murmur (the verse), 'May no waylayers meet us' (Rig-veda X, 85, 32).

7. At every dwelling-place (on their way) let him look at the lookers on, with (the verse), 'Good luck brings this woman' (Rig-veda X, 85, 33).

8. With (the verse), 'Here may delight fulfil itself to thee through offspring' (Rig-veda X, 85, 27) he should make her enter the house.

9. Having given its place to the nuptial fire, and having spread to the west of it a bull's hide with the neck to the east, with the hair outside, he makes oblations, while she is sitting on that (hide) and takes hold of him, with the four (verses), 'May Pragāpati create offspring to us' (Rig-veda X, 85, 43 seq.), verse by verse, and with (the verse), 'May all the gods unite' (Rig-veda X, 85, 47), he partakes of curds and gives (thereof) to her, or he besmears their two hearts with the rest of the Âgya (of which he has sacrificed).

10. From that time they should eat no saline food, they should be chaste, wear ornaments, sleep on the ground three nights or twelve nights;

11. Or one year, (according to) some (teachers); thus, they say, a Rishi will be born (as their son).

12. When he has fulfilled (this) observance (and has had intercourse with his wife), he should give the bride's shift to (the Brähmana) who knows the Sûryâ hymn (Rig-veda X, 85);

Kandikā 9.

1. Beginning from the seizing of (the bride's) hand (i.e. from the wedding), he should worship the domestic (fire) himself, or his wife, or also his son, or his daughter, or a pupil.

2. (The fire) should be kept constantly.

3. When it goes out, however, the wife should fast: thus (say) some (teachers).

4. The time for setting it in a blaze and for sacrificing in it has been explained by (the rules given with regard to) the Agnihotra,

5. And the sacrificial food, except meat.

6. But if he likes he may (perform the sacrifice) with rice, barley, or sesamum.

7. He should sacrifice in the evening with (the formula), 'To Agni svāhā!' in the morning with (the formula), 'To Sūrya svāhā!' Silently the second (oblations) both times.

Kandikā 10.

1. Now the oblations of cooked food on the (two) Parvan (i.e. the new and full moon) days.

2. The fasting (which takes place) thereat has been declared by (the corresponding rules regarding) the Darsapūrṇamāsa sacrifices.

4. And the deities (to whom those oblations belong), with the exception of the Upámsuyāga (offerings at which the formulas are repeated with low voice), and of Indra and Mahendra.

5. Other deities (may be worshipped) according to the wishes (which the sacrificer connects with his offerings).

6. For each single deity he pours out four handful (of rice, barley, &c.), placing two purifiers (i.e. Kusa blades, on the vessel), with (the formula), 'Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I pour thee out.'

7. He then sprinkles them (those four portions of Havis with water) in the same way as he had poured them out, with (the formula), 'Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I sprinkle thee.'

8. When (the rice or barley grains) have been husked and cleansed from the husks three times, let him cook (the four portions) separately,

9. Or throwing (them) together.

10. If he cooks them separately, let him touch the grains, after he has separated them, (and say,) 'This to this god; this to this god.'

11. But if he (cooks the portions) throwing (them) together, he should (touch and) sacrifice them, after he has put (the single portions) into different vessels.

12. The portions of sacrificial food, when they

Svâhā!'

13. Having silently poured out the two Âghâras (or Agya oblations poured out with the Sruva, the one from north-west to south-east, the other from south-west to north-east), he should sacrifice the two Agya portions with (the formulas), 'To Agni svâhâ! To Soma svâhâ!'—

14. The northern one belonging to Agni, the southern one to Soma.

15. It is understood (in the Sruti), 'The two eyes indeed of the sacrifice are the Agya portions,

15. Professor Stenzler here very pertinently refers to Satapatha Brâhmana I, 6, 3, 38.

16. It is doubtful whether this paragraph should be considered as forming part of the quotation from the Sruti. The object of this passage is, in my opinion, to explain why the southern Agyabhâga belongs to Soma, who is the presiding deity of the north, and the northern Agyabhâga to Agni, the presiding deity of the south-east. Professor Stenzler's opinion about this paragraph is somewhat different.

To Agni Svishṭakṛit, to him who offers the oblations for general expiation, so that they are well offered, to him who makes us succeed in what we desire! Make us in all that we desire successful! Svāhā!’

24. He pours out the full vessel on the Barhis.

KANDIKĀ 11.

1. Now (follows) the ritual of the animal sacrifice.
2. Having prepared to the north of the fire the place for the Sāmitra fire, having given drink (to the animal which he is going to sacrifice), having washed the animal, having placed it to the east (of the fire) with its face to the west, having made oblations with the two Rikas, 'Agni as our messenger' (Rig-veda I, 12, 1 seq.), let him touch (the animal) from behind with a fresh branch on which there are leaves, with (the formula), 'Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I touch thee.'
3. He sprinkles it from before with water in which rice and barley are, with (the formula), 'Agreeable to such and such (a deity) I sprinkle thee.'
4. Having given (to the animal) to drink of that (water), he should pour out the rest (of it) along its right fore-foot.
5. Having carried fire round (it), performing that act only (without repeating a corresponding Mantra), they lead it to the north.
6. In front of it they carry a fire-brand.

11, 2. The Sāmitra fire (literally, the fire of the Samitṛi, who prepares the flesh of the immolated animal) is the one mentioned below in Sūtras 7 and 10. Comp. Indische Studien, X, 345. 'I touch thee' is upākaromi; comp. Kātyāyana-Srauta-sūtra VI, 3, 19. 26.
6. It seems that this fire-brand is the same which had been carried round the animal, according to Sūtra 5. Comp. Kātyāyana-Srauta-sūtra VI, 5, 2–5.
7. This is the Sāmitra (fire).

8. With the two Vapāsrapanṭı ladles the ‘performer’ touches the animal.

9. The sacrificer (touches) the performer.

10. To the west of the Sāmitra (fire) he (the Sāmitra) kills (the animal), the head of which is turned to the east or to the west, the feet to the north; and having placed a grass-blade on his side of the (animal’s) navel, (the ‘performer’) draws out the omentum, cuts off the omentum, seizes it with the two Agnisrapanṭı, sprinkles it with water, warms it at the Sāmitra (fire), takes it before that fire, roasts it, being seated to the south, goes round (the two fires), and sacrifices it.

11. At the same fire they cook a mess of food.

12. Having cut off the eleven Avadānas (or portions which have to be cut off) from the animal, from all its limbs, having boiled them at the Sāmitra (fire),

7. Comp. Sūtra 2.

8. On the two Vapāsrapanṭı, comp. Kātyāyana-Srauta-sūtra VI, 5, 7; Indische Studien, X, 345. The act which is here attributed to the kārtṛi (‘performer’), belongs in the Srauta ritual to the incumencies of the Pratipraṣṭhātri.

10. On the way in which animals had to be killed at sacrifices, see Weber’s Indische Studien, IX, 222 seq.

On the position of the head and the feet of the victim, comp. Kātyāyana-Srauta-sūtra VI, 5, 16. 17.

According to Kātyāyana VI, 6, 8 seq. a grass-blade is placed on the dead animal’s body before the navel (agrerna nāḥhim); through that grass-blade he cuts into the body and draws out the omentum.

‘That fire’ is, according to Nārāyana, not the Sāmitra but the Aupāsana fire. In the same way in the Srauta ritual the warming of the omentum is performed at the Sāmitra, the boiling at the Ṭhavanīya fire. Kātyāyana VI, 6, 13. 16.

11. The Aupāsana fire is referred to.

12. The eleven portions are indicated by Kātyāyana, Srauta-sūtra VI, 7, 6. and having warmed the heart on a spit, let him sacrifice first from the mess of cooked food (mentioned in Sûtra 11);

13. Or together with the Avadâna portions.

14. From each of the (eleven) Avadânas he cuts off two portions.

15. They perform the rites only (without corresponding Mantras) with the heart’s spit (i.e. the spit on which the heart had been; see Sûtra 12).

KANDIKÂ 12.

1. At a Kâitya sacrifice he should before the Svishâkrît (offering) offer a Bali to the Kâitya.

2. If, however, (the Kâitya) is distant, (he should send his Bali) through a leaf-messenger.

14. 'A Paññâvatinn cuts off three portions. Having performed the Upastarana and the Pratyabhîgharana (the first and second pouring out of Âgya) he sacrifices (the cut-off portions).’ Nârâyana.

15. On the rites regarding the spit, see Kâtyâyana VI, 10, 1 seq.; Indische Studien, X, 346.

12, 1. There seems to be no doubt that Professor Stenzler is right in giving to kâitya in this chapter its ordinary meaning of religious shrine (‘Denkmal’). The text shows that the Kâitya sacrifice was not offered like other sacrifices at the sacrificer’s home, but that in some cases the offering would have to be sent, at least symbolically, to distant places. This confirms Professor Stenzler’s translation of kâitya. Nârâyana explains kâitya by kiitte bhava, and says, 'If he makes a vow to a certain deity, saying, “If I obtain such and such a desire, I shall offer to thee an Âgya sacrifice, or a Shâhîfpâka, or an animal”—and if he then obtains what he had wished for and performs that sacrifice to that deity: this is a kâitya sacrifice.' I do not know anything that supports this statement as to the meaning of kâitya.

2. 'He should make of a leaf a messenger and a carrying-pole.' Nârâyana.

It is not clear whether besides this image of a messenger there was also a real messenger who had to carry the Bali to the Kâitya,
3. With the Ṛik, 'Where thou knowest, O tree' (Rig-veda V, 5, 10), let him make two lumps (of food), put them on a carrying-pole, hand them over to the messenger, and say to him, 'Carry this Bali to that (Kaitya).

4. (He gives him the lump) which is destined for the messenger, with (the words), 'This to thee.'

5. If there is anything dangerous between (them and the Kaitya), (he gives him) some weapon also.

6. If a navigable river is between (them and the Kaitya, he gives him) also something like a raft with (the words), 'Hereby thou shalt cross.'

7. At the Dhanvantari sacrifice let him offer first a Bali to the Purohita, between the Brahman and the fire.

KANDIKĀ 13.

1. The Upanishad (treats of) the Garbhalam-bhana, the Pumsavana, and the Anavalobhana (i.e. the ceremonies for securing the conception of a child, the male gender of the child, and for preventing disturbances which could endanger the embryo).

2. If he does not study (that Upanishad), he should in the third month of her pregnancy, under (the Nakshatra) Tishya, give to eat (to the wife), after she has fasted, in curds from a cow which has a calf of the same colour (with herself), two beans and one barley grain for each handful of curds.

3. To his question, 'What dost thou drink? What dost thou drink?' she should thrice reply, 'Generation of a male child! Generation of a male child!'

4. Thus three handfuls (of curds).

5. He then inserts into her right nostril, in the shadow of a round apartment, (the sap of) an herb which is not faded,

6. According to some (teachers) with the Pragâvat and Gîvaputra hymns.

7. Having sacrificed of a mess of cooked food sacred to Pragâpati, he should touch the place of her heart with the (verse,) 'What is hidden, O thou whose hair is well parted, in thy heart, in Pragâpati, that I know; such is my belief. May I not fall into distress that comes from sons.'

5. Nârâyana (comp. also the Prayogaratna, folio 40; Âsvalâyaniya-Grihya-Parishâha I, 25; MS. Chambers 667) separates this rite from the ceremony described in Sūtras 2–4. He says that Sūtras 2–4—as indeed is evidently the case—refer to the Pûmsâvana, and in Sūtra 5 begins the Anaavalobhana (comp. garbhara-kshâna, Sāṅkh. I, 21). To me it seems more probable that the text describes one continuous ceremony. There is no difficulty in supposing that of the Anaavalobhana, though it is mentioned in Sūtra 1, no description is given in the following Sūtras, the same being the case undoubtedly with regard to the Garbhâlambhana, of which a description is found in the Ārv.-Parishâha I, 25.

KANDIKÅ 14.

4. He then three times parts her hair upwards (i.e. beginning from the front) with a bunch containing an even number of unripe fruits, and with a porcupine's quill that has three white spots, and with three bunches of Kusa grass, with (the words), 'Bhûr, bhuvaḥ, svar, om!'

Long-living, protected by the gods, live a hundred autumns in this world!'

2. Approaching (his mouth) to (the child's) two ears he murmurs the 'production of intelligence:' 'Intelligence may give to thee god Savitṛi, intelligence may goddess Sarasvatt, intelligence may give to thee the two divine Āsvins, wreathed with lotus.'

8. And let him also find out (for the child) a name to be used at respectful salutations (such as that due to the Ākārya at the ceremony of the initiation); that his mother and his father (alone) should know till his initiation.
9. When he returns from a journey, he embraces his son’s head and murmurs, ‘From limb by limb thou art produced; out of the heart thou art born. Thou indeed art the self called son; so live a hundred autumns!’—(thus) he kisses him three times on his head.
10. The rite only (without the Mantra is performed) for a girl.

KANDIKĀ 16.

1. In the sixth month the Annaprāśana (i.e. the first feeding with solid food).
2. Goat’s flesh, if he is desirous of nourishment,
3. Flesh of partridge, if desirous of holy lustre,
4. Boiled rice with ghee, if desirous of splendour:
5. (Such) food, mixed with curds, honey and ghee he should give (to the child) to eat with (the verse), ‘Lord of food, give us food painless and strong;

bring forward the giver; bestow power on us, on men and animals.'

6. The rite only (without the Mantra) for a girl.

KANDIKĀ 17.

1. In the third year the Kaula (i.e. the tonsure of the child’s head), or according to the custom of the family.

2. To the north of the fire he places vessels which are filled respectively, with rice, barley, beans, and sesamum seeds;

3. To the west (the boy) for whom the ceremony shall be performed, in his mother’s lap, bull-dung in a new vessel, and Samī leaves are placed.

4. To the south of the mother the father (is seated) holding twenty-one bunches of Kusa grass.

5. Or the Brahman should hold them.

6. To the west of (the boy) for whom the ceremony is to be performed, (the father) stations himself and pours cold and warm water together with (the words), ‘With warm water, O Vāyu, come hither!'

7. Taking of that (water), (and) fresh butter, or (some) drops of curds, he three times moistens (the boy’s) head, from the left to the right, with (the formula), ‘May Aditi cut thy hair; may the waters moisten thee for vigour!'

8. Into the right part (of the hair) he puts each

4. He cuts off the hair four times on the right side (Śūtras 10–14), three times on the left side (Śūtra 15); each time three Kusa bunches are required. This is the reason why twenty-one bunches are prescribed.

8. Each of the four times and of the three times respectively that he cuts off the hair; see the preceding note.
time three Kusa bunches, with the points towards (the boy) himself, with (the words), ‘Herb! protect him!’

9. (With the words,) ‘Axe! do no harm to him!’ he presses a copper razor (on the Kusa blades),

10. And cuts (the hair) with (the verse), ‘The razor with which in the beginning Savitri the knowing one has shaved (the beard) of king Soma and of Varuna, with that, ye Brähmanas, shave now his (hair), that he may be blessed with long life, with old age.’

11. Each time that he has cut, he gives (the hairs) with their points to the east, together with Śamī leaves, to the mother. She puts them down on the bull-dung.

12. ‘With what Dātṛi has shaven (the head) of Brīhaspati, Agni and Indra, for the sake of long life, with that I shave thy (head) for the sake of long life, of glory, and of welfare’—thus a second time.

13. ‘By what he may at night further see the sun, and see it long, with that I shave thy (head) for the sake of long life, of glory, and of welfare’—thus a third time.

14. With all (the indicated) Mantras a fourth time.

15. Thus three times on the left side (of the head).

16. Let him wipe off the edge of the razor with (the words), ‘If thou shavest, as a shaver, his hair with the razor, the wounding, the well-shaped, purify his head, but do not take away his life.’

13. Instead of yena bhūyas ārātryām, Pāraskara (II, 1, 16) has, yena bhūris karā divam.
17. Let him give orders to the barber, 'With lukewarm water doing what has to be done with water, without doing harm to him, arrange (his hair) well.'

18. Let him have the arrangement of the hair made according to the custom of his family.

19. The rite only (without the Mantras) for a girl.

KANDIKĀ 18.

1. Thereby the Godānakarman (i.e. the ceremony of shaving the beard, is declared).

2. In the sixteenth year.

3. Instead of the word 'hair' he should (each time that it occurs in the Mantras) put the word 'beard.'

4. Here they moisten the beard.

5. (The Mantra is), 'Purify his head and his face, but do not take away his life.'

6. He gives orders (to the barber with the words), 'Arrange his hair, his beard, the hair of his body, and his nails, ending in the north.'

7. Having bathed and silently stood during the rest of the day, let him break his silence in the presence of his teacher, (saying to him,) 'I give an optional gift (to thee).'</n
8. An ox and a cow is the sacrificial fee.

18. On these family customs, see Grihya-samgraha-parishtha II, 40; Roth, Zur Literatur und Geschichte des Woda, p. 120; Max Müller, History of A. S. L., p. 54 seq.; Weber, Indische Studien, X, 95. 18, 4. See above, chap. 17, 7.

5. See chap. 17, 16.

6. According to Nārāyana, he says to the barber (chap. 17, 17), 'With lukewarm water doing what has to be done with water, without doing harm to him, arrange his hair, his beard, the hair of his body, and his nails, ending in the north.'

7. 8. On restrictions like that contained in the eighth Sūtra as to the object in which the vara (optional gift) had to consist, see Weber, Indische Studien, V, 343.
9. Let (the teacher) impose (on the youth the observances declared below) for one year.

KANDIKĀ 19.

1. In the eighth year let him initiate a Brāhmaṇa,
2. Or in the eighth year after the conception;
3. In the eleventh a Kshatriya;
4. In the twelfth a Vaisya.
5. Until the sixteenth (year) the time has not passed for a Brāhmaṇa;
6. Until the twenty-second for a Kshatriya;
7. Until the twenty-fourth for a Vaisya.
8. After that (time has passed), they become pātisāvitṛka (i.e. they have lost their right of learning the Sāvitṛ).

9. No one should initiate such men, nor teach them, nor perform sacrifices for them, nor have intercourse with them.

10. (Let him initiate) the youth who is adorned and whose (hair on the) head is arranged, who wears a (new) garment that has not yet been washed, or an antelope-skin, if he is a Brāhmaṇa, the skin of a spotted deer, if a Kshatriya, a goat's skin, if a Vaisya.

11. If they put on garments, they should put on dyed (garments): the Brāhmaṇa a reddish yellow one, the Kshatriya a light red one, the Vaisya a yellow one.

12. Their girdles are: that of a Brāhmaṇa made of Muṅga grass, that of a Kshatriya a bow-string, that of a Vaisya woollen.

9. See below, chap. 22, 22.

19, 10. By the ‘arranging of the hair’ the cutting of the hair is implied, as is seen from chap. 22, 22.
13. Their staves are: that of a Brāhmaṇa of Palaśa wood, that of a Kshatriya of Udumbara wood, that of a Vaisya of Bilva wood.

KANDIKĀ 20.

1. Or all (sorts of staves are to be used) by (men of) all (castes).

2. While (the student) takes hold of him, the teacher sacrifices and then stations himself to the north of the fire, with his face turned to the east.

3. To the east (of the fire) with his face to the west the other one.

4. (The teacher then) fills the two hollows of (his own and the student’s) joined hands with water, and with the verse, ‘That we choose of Savitṛi’ (Rigveda V, 82, 1) he makes with the full (hollow of his own hands the water) flow down on the full (hollow of) his, (i.e. the student’s hands.) Having (thus) poured (the water over his hands) he should with his (own) hand seize his (i.e. the student’s) hand together with the thumb, with (the formula), ‘By the impulse of the god Savitṛi, with the arms of the two Aśvins, with Pūshan’s hands I seize thy hand, N. N. !’

5. With (the words), ‘Savitṛi has seized thy hand, N. N. !’ a second time.

6. With (the words), ‘Agni is thy teacher, N. N.!’ a third time.

7. He should cause him to look at the sun while the teacher says, ‘God Savitṛi, this is thy Brahma-kārin; protect him; may he not die.’

20, 2. He offers the oblations prescribed above, chap. 1, 4, 3 seq.
8. (And further the teacher says), 'Whose Brah-mañārin art thou? The breath's Brahmañārin art thou. Who does initiate thee, and whom (does he initiate)? To whom shall I give thee in charge?'

9. With the half verse, 'A youth, well attired, dressed came hither' (Rig-veda III, 8, 4) he should cause him to turn round from the left to the right.

10. Reaching with his two hands over his (i.e. the student's) shoulders (the teacher) should touch the place of his heart with the following (half verse).

11. Having wiped the ground round the fire, the student should put on a piece of wood silently.
'Silence indeed is what belongs to Pragâpati. The student becomes belonging to Pragâpati'—this is understood (in the Sruti).

KANDIKĀ 21.

1. Some (do this) with a Mantra: 'To Agni I have brought a piece of wood, to the great Gâta-vedas. Through that piece of wood increase thou,
O Agni; through the Brahman (may we) we (increase).
Svâhâ!'

2. Having put the fuel (on the fire) and having

11. On the wiping of the ground round the fire, comp. above, chap. 3, i; Sāňkhāyana-Grîhya I, 7, 11. Nârâyana here has the following remarks, which I can scarcely believe to express the real meaning of this Sûtra: 'Here the wiping of the ground round the fire is out of place, because the Samskâras for the fire have already been performed. As to that, it should be observed that the wiping is mentioned here in order that, when fuel is put on the fire in the evening and in the morning, the sprinkling of water and the wiping may be performed. But on this occasion (at the Upanayana) the student does not perform the wiping, &c., and silently puts a piece of wood on that fire.'
touched the fire, he three times wipes off his face with (the words), 'With splendour I anoint myself.'

3. 'For with splendour does he anoint himself'—this is understood (in the Sruti).

4. 'On me may Agni bestow insight, on me offspring, on me splendour.
   'On me may Indra bestow insight, on me offspring, on me strength (indriya).
   'On me may Sûrya bestow insight, on me offspring, on me radiance.
   'What thy splendour is, Agni, may I thereby become resplendent.
   'What thy vigour is, Agni, may I thereby become vigorous.
   'What thy consuming power is, Agni, may I thereby obtain consuming power'—with (these formulas) he should approach the fire, bend his knee, embrace (the teacher's feet), and say to him, 'Recite, sir! The Sâvitrî, sir, recite!'

5. Seizing with his (i.e. the student's) garment and with (his own) hands (the student's) hands (the teacher) recites the Sâvitrî, (firstly) Pâda by Pâda, (then) hemistich by hemistich, (and finally) the whole (verse).

6. He should make him recite (the Sâvitrî) as far as he is able.

7. On the place of his (i.e. the student's) heart (the teacher) lays his hand with the fingers upwards, with (the formula), 'Into my will I take thy heart; after my mind shall thy mind follow; in my word thou shalt rejoice with all thy will; may Brâhaspati join thee to me.'
KANDIKĀ 22.

1. Having tied the girdle round him and given him the staff, he should impose the (observances of the) Brahmaṅkarya on him—

2. (With the words), ‘A Brahmaṅkarīn thou art. Eat water. Do the service. Do not sleep in the day-time. Devoted to the teacher study the Veda.’

3. Twelve years lasts the Brahmaṅkarya for (each) Veda, or until he has learnt it.

4. Let him beg (food) in the evening and in the morning.

5. Let him put fuel on (the fire) in the evening and in the morning.

6. Let him beg first of a man who will not refuse,

7. Or of a woman who will not refuse.

8. (In begging he should use the words), ‘Sir, give food!’

9. Or, ‘(Sir, give) Anupravākaṇṭhya (food).’

10. That (which he has received) he should announce to his teacher.

11. He should stand the rest of the day.

12. After sunset (the student) should cook the Brāhmaṇadana (or boiled rice with which the Brāhmaṇas are to be fed) for the Anupravākaṇṭhya sacrifice (the sacrifice to be performed after a part of the Veda has been studied), and should announce to the teacher (that it is ready).

22, 9. Food for the Anupravākaṇṭhya offering; see Sūtra 12.
10. Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhya II, 6, 7; Pāraskara II, 5, 8.
12. ‘The student should, according to the rules for the Pākayagnās, cook the Anupravākaṇṭhya food and announce it to the teacher in the words, “The food is cooked.”’ Nārāyana.
13. The teacher should sacrifice, while the student takes hold of him, with the verse, 'The wonderful lord of the abode' (Rig-veda I, 18, 6).

14. A second time with the Sāvitrī—

15. And whatever else has been studied afterwards.

16. A third time to the Rishis.

17. A fourth time (the oblation) to (Agni) Svishṭakṛit.

18. Having given food to the Brāhmaṇas he should cause them to pronounce the end of the Veda (study).

19. From that time (the student) should eat no saline food; he should observe chastity, and should sleep on the ground through three nights, or twelve nights, or one year.

20. When he has fulfilled those observances, (the teacher) performs (for him) the 'production of intelligence,' (in the following way):

21. While (the student) towards an unobjectionable direction (of the horizon) sprinkles thrice (water) from the left to the right with a water-pot round a

15. Nārāyana mentions as such texts especially those belonging to the Āranyaka, viz. the Mahānāṃnyas, the Mahāvrata, and the Upanishad. But there is no reason why we should not think quite as well of the Rig-veda Samhitā itself.

18. 'He should say, "Sirs! Pronounce the end of the Veda (study)."' And they should reply, "May an end of the Veda (study) be made."' Nārāyana.

20. Comp. above, chap. 15, 2.

21. 'The objectionable directions are three, the south, the south-east, the south-west.' Nārāyana.

Susravas, which I have translated by 'glorious,' at the same time means, 'endowed with good hearing,' i.e. successful in study. The student therefore by the same word prays for glory and for success in Vedic learning.
Palāsa (tree) with one root, or round a Kusa bunch, if there is no Palāsa, (the teacher) causes him to say, 'O glorious one, thou art glorious. As thou, O glorious one, art glorious, thus, O glorious one, lead me to glory. As thou art the preserver of the treasure of sacrifice for the gods, thus may I become the preserver of the treasure of the Veda for men.'

22. Thereby, beginning with his having the hair cut, and ending with the giving in charge, the imposing of observances has been declared.

23. Thus for one who has not been initiated before.

24. Now as regards one who has been initiated before:

25. The cutting of the hair is optional,

26. And the 'production of intelligence.'

27. On the giving in charge there are no express rules (in this case);

28. And on the time.

29. (He should recite to him) as the Sāvitrī (the Rīk), 'That we choose of god Savitrī' (Rig-veda V, 82, 1).

KANDIKĀ 23.

1. He chooses priests (for officiating at a sacrifice) with neither deficient nor superfluous limbs, 'who on

---

22. The rules stated above for the Upanayana, beginning with the prescription regarding the cutting of the hair (given chap. 19, 10 in the words, 'whose [hair on the] head is arranged;’ see the note there), and ending with the ceremony prescribed chap. 20, 8, are to be extended also to other cases of the imposing of a vow, such, for instance, as that mentioned chap. 18, 9.

27. See chap. 20, 8. 28. See chap. 4, 1.

29. Instead of the ordinary Sāvitrī, Rig-veda III, 62, 10.

the mother's and on the father's side (&c.),' as it has been said above.

2. Let him choose young men as officiating priests: thus (declare) some (teachers).

3. He chooses first the Brahman, then the Hotri, then the Adhvaryu, then the Udgâtri.

4. Or all who officiate at the Ahîna sacrifices and at those lasting one day.

5. The Kaushitakinas prescribe the Sadasya as the seventeenth, saying, 'He is the looker-on at the performances.'

6. This has been said in the two Rikas, 'He whom the officiating priests, performing (the sacrifice) in many ways' (Rig-veda VIII, 58, 1. 2).

7. He chooses the Hotri first.

8. With (the formula), 'Agni is my Hotri; he is my Hotri; I choose thee N. N. as my Hotri' (he chooses) the Hotri.

4. The Ahîna sacrifices are those which last more than one day, but not more than twelve days. (Indische Studien, IX, 373; X, 355.) The priests officiating at such sacrifices are the sixteen stated in the Srauta-sûtra IV, 1, 6. 7. Those besides the sixteen, though they are chosen (saty api varane) for taking part in the sacred performances, have not the rank of ritvigas (officiating priests); such are the Sadasya, the Samitri, and the Kamasâ-dhvaryavaç (schol. Srautas. loc. cit.). See Max Müller's History of A. S. L., pp. 450, 469 seq. As to the Sadasya, however, there was some difference of opinion (see the next Sûtra).

5. On the office of the Sadasya, see Indische Studien, X, 136, 144.

6. The two Rikas quoted here belong to the tenth among the Vâlakhilya hymns, a hymn omitted in many of the Rig-veda MSS. They give no special confirmation to the rules stated in our text, but contain only a general allusion to the unity of the sacrifice, which the various priests perform in many various ways.

7. 'If the four (chief) priests have to be chosen, the choosing of the Brâhmaṇa stands first in order (see above, Sûtra 3); if all (the sixteen), then the choosing of the Hotri stands first in order.' Nârâyana.
9. With (the formula), 'Kandramas (the moon) is my Brahman; he is my Brahman; I choose thee N. N. as my Brahman' (he chooses) the Brahman,

10. With (the formula), 'Aditya (the sun) is my Adhvaryu; (he is my Adhvaryu, &c.)'—the Adhvaryu.

11. With (the formula), 'Parganya is my Udgâtri; (he is my Udgâtri, &c.)'—the Udgâtri.

12. With (the formula), 'The waters are our reciters of what belongs to the Hotrakas'—the Hotrakas.

13. With (the formula), 'The rays are my Kamasâdhvaryus'—the Kamasâdhvaryus.

14. With (the formula), 'The ether is my Sadasya'—the Sadasya.

15. He whom he has chosen should murmur, 'A great thing thou hast told me; splendour thou hast told me; fortune thou hast told me; glory thou hast told me; praise thou hast told me; success thou hast told me; enjoyment thou hast told me; satiating thou hast told me; everything thou hast told me.'

16. Having murmured (this formula), the Hotri declares his assent (in the words), 'Agni is thy Hotri; he is thy Hotri; thy human Hotri am I.'

17. 'Kandramas (the moon) is thy Brahman; he is thy Brahman (&c.)'—thus the Brahman.

18. In the same way the others according to the prescriptions (given above).

19. And if (the priest who accepts the invitation)

12. The twelve priests of the sixteen (see § 4 note) who do not stand at the head of one of the four categories. Those at the head are enumerated in the Sutras 8–11.
13, 14. See above, § 4 note.
19. Priests who only perform the Agnyâdheya for a person, are, according to Nârâyana's note on this Sûtra, not considered as is going to perform the sacrifice (for the inviting person, he should add), 'May that bless me; may that enter upon me; may I thereby enjoy (bliss).'

20. The functions of an officiating priest are not to be exercised, if abandoned (by another priest), or at an Ahîna sacrifice with small sacrificial fee, or for a person that is sick, or suffering, or affected with consumption, or decried among the people in his village, or of despised extraction: for such persons (the functions of a Rîtvig should not be exercised).

21. He (who is chosen as a Rîtvig) should ask the Somaprajvakya, 'What sacrifice is it? Who are performing a sacrifice for him; consequently the formula given here is only to be used by priests who are elected for a Soma sacrifice. Stenzler translates, 'So spricht er, wenn er das Opfer durch sie vollziehen lassen will.' But this would be yakshya-mànah, not yàgâyishya.

20. The tradition takes nîkadakshînasya as in apposition to ahînasya, and I have translated accordingly. But I cannot help thinking that the two words should be separated, so that we should have to translate, 'or at an Ahîna, or for a person that gives small sacrificial fee.' Thus the Bràhmaṇa quoted by Ápastamba (see the commentary on the Paûkavimsa Bràhmaṇa, vol. i, p. 6, ed. Bibl. Indica) gives the following questions which the Rîtvig to be chosen should ask, 'Is it no Ahîna sacrifice? Is the Rîtvig office not abandoned by others? Is the sacrificial fee plentiful?' It is a very singular fact, that on the one hand the assistance of a number of Rîtvigas was unanimously declared necessary for the performance of an Ahîna sacrifice, while on the other hand it was considered objectionable, at least among some of the Vedic schools, to officiate at such a sacrifice. See Weber's Indische Studien, X, 150, 151.

On anudeṣyaḥbhisastā Nârâyana says, saderinâbhisastasyaivaṁ eke. anye tu srâddhe pratishiddhasyety âhû. It seems to me that anudeṣya (or rather ânudeṣya?) in Sânkhyâyana-Śraut. V, 1, 10 (Indische Studien, X, 147) means the same, though the commentary on that Sûtra ascribes a different meaning to that word.

21. The Somaprajvakya is the messenger who invites the priests on behalf of the sacrificer to officiate at his intended Soma sacrifice. Comp. Indische Studien, IX, 308.
the priests officiating? What is the fee for the sacrifice?'

22. If (all the conditions) are favourable, he should accept.

23. Let (the officiating priests) eat no flesh nor have intercourse with a wife until the completion of the sacrifice.

24. 'By this prayer, O Agni, increase' (Rig-veda I, 31, 18)—with (this verse) let him offer (at the end of the sacrifice) an oblation of Âgya in (his own) Dakshinâgni, and go away where he likes;

25. In the same way one who has not set up the (Srauta) fires, in his (sacred) domestic fire with this Rik, 'Forgive us, O Agni, this sin' (Rig-veda I, 31, 16).

KANDIKÂ 24.

1. When he has chosen the Rîtvигas, he should offer the Madhuparka (i. e. honey-mixture) to them (in the way described in Sûtras 5 and following);

2. To a Snâtaka, when he comes to his house;

3. And to a king;

4. And for a teacher, the father-in-law, a paternal uncle, and a maternal uncle.

5. He pours honey into curds,

8. With (the verse), 'I am the highest one among my people, as the sun among the thunderbolts. Here I tread on him whosoever infests me'—he should sit down on the seat (made of) northward-pointed (grass).

9. Or (he should do so) after he has trodden on it.

10. He should make (his host) wash his feet.

11. The right foot he should stretch out first to a Brāhmaṇa,

12. The left to a Sūdra.

13. When his feet have been washed, he receives the Arghya water in the hollow of his joined hands and then sips the water destined thereto, with (the formula), 'Thou art the first layer for Ambrosia.'

14. He looks at the Madhuparka when it is brought to him, with (the formula), 'I look at thee with Mitra's eye.'

15. He accepts it with his joined hands with (the formula), 'By the impulse of the god Savitṛi, with the arms of the two Arvins, with the hands of Pūshan I accept thee.' He then takes it into his left hand, looks at it with the three verses, 'Honey the winds to the righteous one' (Rig-veda I, 90, 6 seqq.), stirs it about three times from left to right with the fourth finger and the thumb, and wipes (his fingers) with (the formula), 'May the Vasus eat thee with the Gāyatri metre'—to the east;

16. With (the formula), 'May the Rudras eat thee with the Trish/ubh metre'—to the south;

17. With (the formula), 'May the Ādityas eat thee with the Gagati metre'—to the west;
18. With (the formula), ‘May the Visve devâs eat thee with the Anushîubh metre’—to the north.

19. With (the formula), ‘To the beings thee’—he three times takes (some of the Madhuparka substance) out of the middle of it.

20. With (the formula), ‘The milk of Virâg art thou’—he should partake thereof the first time,

21. With, ‘The milk of Virâg may I obtain’—the second time,

22. With, ‘In me (may) the milk of Padyâ Virâg (dwell)’—the third time.

23. (He should) not (eat) the whole (Madhuparka).

24. He should not satiate himself.

25. To a Brâhmaña, to the north, he should give the remainder.

26. If that cannot be done, (he should throw it) into water.

27. Or (he may eat) the whole (Madhuparka).

28. He then makes a rinsing of his mouth follow (on the eating of the Madhuparka) with the water destined thereto, with (the formula), ‘Thou art the covering of Ambrosia.’

29. With (the formula), ‘Truth! Glory! Fortune! May fortune rest on me!’—a second time.

30. When he has sipped water, they announce to him the cow.

31. Having murmured, ‘Destroyed is my sin; my sin is destroyed,’ (he says,) ‘Om, do it,’ if he chooses to have her killed.

33. Let the Madhuparka not be without flesh, without flesh.

End of the First Adhyāya.

ADHYÂYA II, KANDIKĀ 1.

1. On the full moon day of the Srâvana month the Srâvana ceremony (is performed).

2. Having filled a new jug with flour of fried barley, he lays (this jug) and a spoon for offering the Balis on new strings of a carrying pole (and thus suspends them).

3. Having prepared fried barley grains, he smears half of them with butter.

4. After sunset he prepares a mess of cooked food and a cake in one dish and sacrifices (the cooked food) with the four verses, 'Agni, lead us on a good path to wealth' (Rig-veda I, 189, 1 seqq.), verse by verse, and with his hand the (cake) in one dish with (the formula), 'To the steady One, the earth-demon, svâhâ!'

5. (The cake) should be (entirely) immersed (into the butter), or its back should be visible.

6. With (the verse), 'Agni, do not deliver us to evil' (Rig-veda I, 189, 5) he sacrifices over it (the butter) in which it had lain.

7. With (the verse), 'May the steeds at our invocation be for a blessing to us' (Rig-veda VII, 38, 7) (he sacrifices) the besmeared grains with his joined hands.

8. The other (grains) he should give to his people.

9. Out of the jug he fills the spoon with flour,

1, 1. Nârâyana's observation that the Srâvana full moon can fall also under certain other Nakshatras than Srâvana itself, furnishes no reason why we should think here of solar months, as Prof. Stenzler proposes.

goes out (of the house) to the east, pours water on the ground on a clean spot, sacrifices with (the formula), 'To the divine hosts of the serpents svâhâ!' and does reverence to them with (the formula), 'The serpents which are terrestrial, which are aerial, which are celestial, which dwell in the directions (of the horizon)—to them I have brought this Bali; to them I give over this Bali.'

10. Having gone round (the Bali) from left to right, he sits down to the west of the Bali with (the words), 'The serpent art thou; the lord of the creeping serpents art thou; by food thou protectest men, by cake the serpents, by sacrifice the gods. To me, being in thee, the serpents being in thee should do no harm. I give over the firm one (i.e. the spoon) to thee.'

11. 'Firm one, (I give) N. N. (in charge) to thee! Firm one, (I give) N. N. (in charge) to thee!'—with (these words he gives) his people, man by man, (in charge to the serpent god);

12. 'Firm one, I give myself in charge to thee!'—with these words himself at the end.

13. Let no one step between it (i.e. the Bali, and the sacrificer), until the giving in charge has been performed.

14. With (the formula), 'To the divine hosts of the serpents svâhâ!'—let him offer the Bali in the evening and in the morning, till the Pratyavarohana (i.e. the ceremony of the 'redescent').

15. Some count (the days till the Pratyavarohana)

14. On the Pratyavarohana, see the third chapter of this Adhyâya.

15. I.e. two Bali offerings for each day, one for the morning and one for the evening.
and offer the corresponding number of Balis already on that day (on which the Sravana ceremony is performed).

Kandikā 2.

1. On the full moon day of Āsvayuga the Āsvayuga ceremony (is performed).

2. Having adorned the house, having bathed and put on clean garments, they should pour out a mess of cooked food for Pasupati, and should sacrifice it with (the formula), 'To Pasupati, to Śiva, to Samkara, to Prishātaka svāhā!'

3. He should sacrifice with his joined hands a mixture of curds and butter (prishātaka) with (the formula), 'May what is deficient be made full to me; may what is full not decay to me. To Prishātaka svāhā!'

4. 'United with the seasons, united with the manners, united with Indra and Agni, svāhā!'

   'United with the seasons, united with the manners, united with the Visve devās, svāhā!'

   'United with the seasons, united with the manners, united with Heaven and Earth, svāhā!'—with (these formulas) a mess of cooked food is offered at the

2, 2. 'The plural "They should sacrifice it" means, that while the sacrifice is performed by the householder, his sons and the other persons belonging to the house should touch him.' Nārāyana.

4. The Āgryana sacrifice, which is offered when the sacrificer is going to partake of the first-fruits of the harvest, is treated of, with relation to a sacrificer who keeps the Srauta fires, in the Srauta-sūtra II, 9. This Sūtra in my opinion should be understood as a supplementary addition to that chapter. Nārāyana refers the rule here given to the case of any incident or danger (āpad) which prevents the sacrificer from performing the ceremony in its fuller form, as prescribed in the Srauta-sūtra.
Ägrayana sacrifice by one who has set up the (sacred Srauta) fires.

5. Also by one who has not set up the (Srauta) fires (the same offering is performed) in the (sacred) domestic fire.

Kandikā 3.

1. On the full moon of Mårgaśirsha the ‘recedent’ (is performed)—on the fourteenth (Tithi),

2. Or on (the Tithi of) the full moon (itself).

3. Having again renovated the house by (giving a new) coating (to the walls), by spreading out (a new roof), and by levelling (the floor), they should sacrifice after sunset (oblations) of milk-rice with (the texts), ‘Beat away, O white one, with thy foot, with the fore-foot and with the hind-foot, these seven daughters of Varuna and all that belong to the king’s tribe. Svāhā!

‘Within the dominion of the white one no serpent has killed anything. To the white one, the son of Vidārvha, adoration! Svāhā!’

4. Here no oblation to (Agni) Svishṭakrīt (is made).

5. ‘May we be secure from Pragāpati’s sons”—thus he murmurs while looking at the fire.

3, 1. On the ceremony of ‘recedent,’ comp. Sānkhyāyana-Gṛihya IV, 17; Pāraskara III, 2. The fourteenth Tithi of the bright fortnight, preceding the full moon, is referred to.

3. ‘Again’ refers to chap. 2, 2. As to the words ‘they should sacrifice,’ comp. the note on the same Sātra. The first Mantra reoccurs in Sānkhyāyana-Gṛihya IV, 18, 1. The text of the second should be, na vai svetasyādhyākāre, &c.; comp. Pāraskara II, 14, 5.

5. The serpents are the children of Kasyapa (i.e. Pragāpati) and Kadrū; see Mahābhārata I, 1074 seqq.
6. (Saying), ‘Be happy and friendly to us’—he should think in his mind of the winter.

7. To the west of the fire is a well-spread layer (of straw); on that he should sit down, murmur (the verse), ‘Be soft, O earth’ (Rig-veda I, 22, 15), and lie down (on that layer) with his people, with the head to the east and the face to the north.

8. The others, as there is room.

9. Or following on each other from the eldest to the youngest.

10. Those who know the Mantras, should murmur the Mantras.

11. Arising (they should) three times (murmur the verse), ‘From that place may the gods bless us’ (Rig-veda I, 22, 16).

12. The same (verse) a fourth time with their faces to the south, to the west, and to the north.

13. Having arisen, having murmured the hymns sacred to the Sun and the auspicious hymns, having prepared food and given to the Brâhmanas to eat, he should cause (them) to pronounce auspicious words.

KANDIKĀ 4.

1. On the eighth days of the four dark fortnights of (the two seasons of) winter and Sîsira the Ashtakâs (are celebrated).

10. ‘The Mantras beginning from “Be soft, O earth” (Sûtra 7) down to the auspicious hymns (Sûtra 13).’ Nârâyana.

11. It follows from Sûtra 12 that they are to turn here their faces to the east.

12. They mutter one Pâda of that verse, which is in the Gâyatrī metre, turned towards each of the three directions.

4, 1. Comp. Sânkhâyana-Grīhya III, 12 seqq. The four
2. Or on one (of these days).
3. The day before, he should offer to the Fathers (i.e. Manes)—
4. Boiled rice, boiled rice with sesame seeds, rice-milk—
5. Or cakes made of four Sarāvas (of ground grain)—
6. Sacrifice with the eight (verses), 'May the lower (Fathers) and the higher arise' (Rig-veda X, 15, 1 seqq.), or with as many (verses) as he likes.
7. Then on the next day the Ashtakās (are celebrated) with an animal (sacrifice) and with a mess of cooked food.
8. He may also give grass to an ox,
9. Or he may burn down brushwood with fire—
10. With (the words), 'This is my Ashtakā.'
11. But he should not omit celebrating the Ashtakā.
12. This (Ashtakā) some state to be sacred to the Visve devās, some to Agni, some to the Sun, some to Pragāpati, some state that the Night is its deity, some that the Nakshatras are, some that the Seasons are, some that the Fathers are, some that cattle is.
13. Having killed the animal according to the months of Hemanta and Sīrīra are Mārgasīrsha, Pausha, Māgha, and Phālguna.

2. The statement of the Prayogaratna that in case the sacrificer should celebrate only one Ashākā festival, the Ashākā of the Māgha month is to be selected, well agrees with the designation of this Ashākā as 'the one Ashākā' (ekāshākā); see Weber, Naxatra II, 341 seq.; Indische Studien, XV, 145.
7 seqq. Comp. the nearly identical passage in Sānkhāyana-Grhya III, 14, 3 seqq. and the note there. Âsvalāyana evidently gives these rules not as regarding one special Ashākā but all of them.
13. Comp. above, I, 11, 1. 2. 10. As to the Mantra, comp. Sānkhāyana III, 13, 3.
ritual of the animal sacrifice, omitting the sprinkling (with water) and the touching of the animal with a fresh branch, he should draw out the omentum and sacrifice it with (the verse), ‘Carry the omentum, Gātavedas, to the Fathers, where thou knowest them resting afar. May streams of fat flow to them; may all these wishes be fulfilled. Svāhā!’

14. Then (follow oblations) of the Avadhāna portions and the cooked food, two with (the two verses), ‘Agni, lead us on a good path to wealth’ (Rig-veda I, 189, 1 seq.), (and other oblations with the texts), ‘May summer, winter, the seasons be happy to us, happy the rainy season, safe to us the autumn. The year be our lord who gives breath to us; may days and nights produce long life. Svāhā!

‘Peaceful be the earth, happy the air, may the goddess Heaven give us safety. Happy be the quarters (of the horizon), the intermediate quarters, the upper quarters; may the waters, the lightnings protect us from all sides. Svāhā!

‘May the waters, the rays carry our prayers (to the gods); may the creator, may the ocean turn away evil; may the past and the future, (may) all be safe to me. Protected by Brahman may I pour forth songs. Svāhā!

‘May all the Ādityas and the divine Vasus, the Rudras, the protectors, the Maruts sit down (here). May Pragāpati, the abounding one, the highest ruler, bestow vigour, offspring, immortality on me. Svāhā!

‘Pragāpati, no other one than Thou (Rig-veda X, 121, 10).’

15. The eighth (oblation) is that to (Agni) Svish'takrit.

16. He should give to the Brāhmānas to eat: this has been said.

KANDIKĀ 5.

1. On the following day the Anvashtakya (i.e. the ceremony following the Ashṭakā, is performed).

2. Having prepared (a portion) of that same meat, having established the fire on a surface inclined towards the south, having fenced it in, and made a door on the north side of the enclosure, having strewn round (the fire) three times sacrificial grass with its roots, without tossing it, turning the left side towards the fire, he should put down the things to be offered, boiled rice, boiled rice with sesamum seeds, rice-milk, meal-pap with curds, and meal-pap with honey.

3. (The ceremony should be performed) according to the ritual of the Pinda-pitriyaṅga.

4. Having sacrificed (of those sorts of food) with the exception of the meal-pap with honey, let him give (lumps of those substances) to the Fathers.

5. And to (their) wives, with the addition of rum and the scum of boiled rice.

6. Some (place the lumps to be offered) into pits, into two or into six.

5, 2. The meat is that of the animal killed on the Ashṭakā day; see chap. 4, 13.

3. This ritual is given in the Srauta-sūtra II, 6 seq.

4. He sacrifices the two oblations prescribed in the Srauta-sūtra
II, 6, 12, to Soma pitriyaṁ and to Agni kavyavāhana.
7. In those situated to the east he should give (the offerings) to the Fathers.
8. In those to the west, to the wives.
9. Thereby the ceremony celebrated in the rainy season on the Māgha day, in the dark fortnight after the full moon of Praushtikapada (has been declared).
10. And thus he should offer (a celebration like the Anvashtakya) to the Fathers every month, observing uneven numbers (i.e. selecting a day with an uneven number, inviting an uneven number of Brāhmaṇas, &c.).
11. He should give food at least to nine (Brāhmaṇas),
12. Or to an uneven number;
13. To an even number on auspicious occasions or on the performance of meritorious deeds (such as the consecration of ponds, &c.);
14. To an uneven number on other (occasions).
15. The rite is performed from left to right. Barley is to be used instead of sesamum.

KANDIKĀ 6.

1. When going to mount a chariot he should touch the wheels with his two hands separately with (the words), 'I touch thy two fore-feet. Thy two wheels are the Bṛḥhat and the Rathantara (Sâmans).'

9. Comp. the note on Sânkhyāya-Gṛihya III, 13, 1.
10. Comp. Sânkhyāya-Gṛihya IV, 1, 1.
15. Sânkhyāya-Gṛihya IV, 4, 6. 9.
6, 1. 'He should touch at the same time the right wheel with his right hand, the left wheel with his left hand.' Nârâyana.
2. 'Thy axle is the Vāmadevya'—with (these words he touches) the two (naves) in which the axle rests.

3. He should mount (the chariot) with the right foot first, with (the words), 'With Vāyu's strength I mount thee, with Indra's power and sovereignty.'

4. He should touch the reins, or if the horses have no reins, (he should touch) the horses with a staff, with (the words), 'With Brahman's splendour I seize you. With truth I seize you.'

5. When (the horses) put themselves in motion, he should murmur, 'Go forward to thousandfold successful vigour, divine chariot, carry us forward!'—(and the verse), 'Free, strong be thy limbs!' (Rigveda VI, 47, 26.)

6. With this (verse he should touch also) other articles of wood.

7. 'May the two oxen be strong, the axle firm' (Rigveda III, 53, 17)—with (this verse) he should touch (each) part of the chariot (alluded to in that verse).

8. With (the verse), 'The earth, the good protectress, the unattained heaven' (Rigveda X, 63, 10) (he should ascend) a ship.

9. With a new chariot he should drive round a widely known tree or round a pool that does not dry up, with his right side turned towards it, and then should fetch branches which bear fruits,

6. According to Nārāyana this Sūtra would refer only to other vehicles of wood, which he is directed to touch with that Rīk when going to mount them. Perhaps the commentator is right; the wording of the Rīk is well in keeping with his explanation.
10. Or something else that belongs to the household.

11. (He then) should drive (in that chariot) to an assembly.

12. Having murmured, while looking at the sun, (the verse), 'Make our renown highest' (Rig-veda IV, 31, 15), he should descend.

13. 'To the bull among my equals' (Rig-veda X, 166, 1)—(this verse he should murmur) while approaching (that assembly?).

14. 'May we be called to-day Indra's best friends' (Rig-veda I, 167, 10)—when the sun is setting.

15. 'Thus I address you, O daughters of heaven, while you arise' (Rig-veda IV, 51, 11)—when day appears.

Kandikā 7.

1. Now the examination of the ground (where he intends to build a house).

2. (It must be) non-salinous soil of undisputed property,

3. With herbs and trees,

4. On which much Kusa and Virana grass grows.

5. Plants with thorns and with milky juice he should dig out with their roots and remove them—

6. And in the same way the following (sorts of plants), viz. Apamarga, pootherbs, Tilvaka, Parivyadhha.

7. A spot where the waters, flowing together from all sides to the centre of it, flow round the resting-place, having it on their right side, and then flow off to the east without noise—that possesses all auspicious qualities.

8. Where the waters flow off, he should have the provision-room built.
9. Thus it becomes rich in food.
10. On a spot which is inclined towards the south, he should have the assembly-room constructed; thus there will be no gambling in it.
11. (But others say that) in such (an assembly-room) the young people become gamblers, quarrelsome, and die early.
12. Where the waters flow together from all directions, that assembly-room (situated on such a spot) brings luck and is free from gambling.

Kāndikā 8.

1. Now he should examine the ground in the following ways.
2. He should dig a pit knee-deep and fill it again with the same earth (which he has taken out of it).
3. If (the earth) reaches out (of the pit, the ground is) excellent; if it is level, (it is) of middle quality; if it does not fill (the pit, it is) to be rejected.
4. After sunset he should fill (the pit) with water and leave it so through the night.
5. If (in the morning) there is water in it, (the ground is) excellent; if it is moist, (it is) of middle quality; if it is dry, (it is) to be rejected.
6. White (ground), of sweet taste, with sand on the surface, (should be elected) by a Brāhmaṇa.
7. Red (ground) for a Kshatriya.
8. Yellow (ground) for a Vaisya.
9. He should draw a thousand furrows on it and should have it measured off as quadrangular, with equal sides to each (of the four) directions;
10. Or as an oblong quadrangle.
11. With a Samī branch or an Udumbara branch he sprinkles it (with water), going thrice round it, so that his right side is turned towards it, reciting the Santātiya hymn.

12. And (so he does again three times) pouring out water without interruption, with the three verses, 'O waters, ye are wholesome' (Rig-veda X, 9, 1 seqq.).

13. In the interstices between the bamboo staffs he should have the (single) rooms constructed.

14. Into the pits in which the posts are to stand, he should have an Avakā, i.e. (the water-plant called) Sīpāla put down; then fire will not befall him: thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

15. Having put (that plant) into the pit in which the middle-post is to stand, he should spread (on it) eastward-pointed and northward-pointed Kusa grass and should sprinkle (on that grass) water into which rice and barley have been thrown, with (the words), 'To the steady one, the earth-demon, svāhā!'

16. He then should, when (the middle-post) is being erected, recite over it (the two verses),

'Stand here, fixed in the ground, prosperous, long-

8, 11. The hymn of which all verses (except a few) commence with, and frequently contain, the word sam (Rig-veda VII, 35).

13. The bamboo staffs (vamsa) rest on the chief posts (sthūnā); see chap. 9, 1. 2.

15. Comp. chap. 1, 4.

16. Comp. Sānkhāyana-Gṛihya III, 3, 1 and the note there. How stāmiravatīm should be corrected and translated is quite uncertain. Instead of poshasya Prof. Stenzler proposes to read poshasya, as Sānkhāyana has; I have adopted this correction.—In the second verse gāyatām saha seems to be corrupt; comp. my note on Sānkhāyana III, 2, 9. Instead of parisritaḥ we should read, as Sānkhāyana, Pāraskara, and the Atharva-veda (III, 12, 7) have, parisruthaḥ.
lasting (?), standing amid prosperity. May the malevolent ones not attain thee!

'To thee (may) the young child (come), to thee the calf...; to thee (may) the cup of Parisrut (come); (to thee) may they come with pots of curds.'

KANDIKĀ 9.

1. (Over) the bamboo staff, when it is put on (the middle-post, he recites the hemistich),

2. 'Rightly ascend the post, O staff, bestowing on us long life henceforward.'

3. On four stones, on which Dûrvâ grass has been spread, he should establish the water-barrel with (the words), 'Arise on the earth'—

4. Or with (the verse), 'The Araṅgara sounds, three times bound with the strap. It praises the welfare; may it drive away ill.'

5. He then should pour water into it with (the verse), 'Hither may king Varuna come with the plentiful (waters); at this place may he stay contented; bringing welfare, dropping ghee may they lie down together with Mitra.'

6. He then 'appeases' it (in the following way).

7. He puts gold into water into which rice and barley have been thrown, and (with that water) he sprinkles it three times, going round it with his right side turned towards it, with the Santātīya hymn.

8. And (so he does again three times) pouring out

9, 4. The meaning of Araṅgara is unknown to me; it seems to be a musical instrument. Comp. Atharva-veda XX, 135, 13.

water without interruption, with the three verses, 'O waters, ye are wholesome' (Rig-veda X, 9, 1 seqq.).

9. In the middle of the house he should cook a mess of food, sacrifice (therefrom) with the four verses, 'Vāstoshpati, accept us' (Rig-veda VII, 54, 1 seqq.), verse by verse, should prepare food, should give to the Brāhmaṇas to eat, and should cause them to say, 'Lucky is the ground! Lucky is the ground!'

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. It has been declared how he should enter the house (when returning from a journey).

2. The house, when he enters it, should be provided with seed-corn.

3. He should have his field ploughed under the Nakshatras Uttarāh Proshtāpadās, (Uttarāh) Phālgunyās, or Rohint.

4. In order that the wind may blow to him from the field, he should offer oblations with the hymn, 'Through the lord of the field' (Rig-veda IV, 57), verse by verse, or he should murmur (that hymn).

5. He should speak over the cows when they go away, the two verses, 'May refreshing wind blow over the cows' (Rig-veda X, 169, 1 seq).

6. When they come back, (he should recite the following verses)

'May they whose udder with its four holes is full of honey and ghee, be milk-givers to us; (may they be) many in our stable, rich in ghee.

‘Come hither to me, giving refreshment, bringing vigour and strength. Giving inexhaustible milk, rest in my stable that I may become the highest one’—
And, ‘They who have raised their body up to the gods’—the rest of the hymn (Rig-veda X, 169, 3. 4).

7. Some recite (instead of the texts stated in Sûtra 6) the Âgâvîya hymn.

8. He should approach their herds, if the cows do not belong to his Guru, with (the words), ‘Prospering are ye; excellent are ye, beautiful, dear. May I become dear to you. May you see bliss in me.’

End of the Second Adhyâya.

7. The hymn commencing â gâvo agman (hither came the cows) is Rig-veda VI, 28.

8. Perhaps the last words (which are repeated twice in order to mark the end of the Adhyâya) should be written sa m mayi gânîdhvam, ‘live with me in harmony together.’
ADHYÄYA III, KANDIKÂ 1.

1. Now (follow) the five sacrifices:
2. The sacrifice to the Gods, the sacrifice to the Beings, the sacrifice to the Fathers, the sacrifice to Brahman, the sacrifice to men.
3. Here now, if he makes oblations over the (sacred) fire, this is the sacrifice to the Gods.
   If he makes Bali offerings, this is the sacrifice to the Beings.
   If he gives (Pinda offerings) to the Fathers, this is the sacrifice to the Fathers.
   If he studies (Vedic) texts, this is the sacrifice to Brahman.
   If he gives to men, this is the sacrifice to men.
4. These (five kinds of) sacrifices he should perform every day.

KANDIKÂ 2.

1. Now the rules how one should recite (the Vedic texts) for one’s self.
2. He should go out of the village to the east or to the north, bathe in water, sip water on a clean spot, clad with the sacrificial cord; he should spread out, his garment being not wet, a great quantity of Darbha grass, the tufts of which are directed towards the east, and should sit down thereon with his face turned to the east, making a lap, putting together his hands in which he holds purifiers (i.e. Kusa blades), so that the right hand lies uppermost.

1, 1 seqq. Comp. Satapatha Brâhmaṇa XI, 5, 6, 1 seqq.
It is understood (in the Sruti), 'This is what Darbha grass is: it is the essence of waters and herbs. He thus makes the Brahman provided with essence.'

Looking at the point where heaven and earth touch each other, or shutting his eyes, or in whatever way he may deem himself apt (for reciting the Veda), thus adapting himself he should recite (the sacred texts) for himself.

3. The Vyāhritis preceded by (the syllable) Om (are pronounced first).

4. He (then) repeats the Sāvitrī (Rig-veda III, 62, 10), (firstly) Pāda by Pāda, (then) hemistich by hemistich, thirdly the whole.

Kandikā 3.

1. He then should recite for himself (the following texts, viz.) the Rīkas, the Yagus, the Sāmans, the Atharvan and Aṅgiras hymns, the Brāhmaṇas, the Kalpa (Sūtras), the Gāthās, the (texts in honour of kings and heroes, called) Nārāsamsīs, the Itihāsas and Purāṇas.

2. In that he recites the Rīkas, he thereby satiates the gods with oblations of milk—in that (he recites) the Yagus, with oblations of ghee—the Sāmans, with oblations of honey—the Atharvan and Aṅgiras hymns, with oblations of Soma—the Brāhmaṇas, Kalpas, Gāthās, Nārāsamsīs, Itihāsas and Purāṇas, with oblations of ambrosia.

3, 1. On this and the following paragraphs comp. chiefly Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 6. Other enumerations, contained in the Veda itself, of the texts that were considered as forming the Veda or as attached to the body of the Veda, are found in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XIV, 5, 4, 10 (Sacred Books, XV, 111), and in the Kṛhändogya Upanishad VII, 1 (Sacred Books, I, 109).
3. In that he recites the Rikas, rivers of milk flow, as a funeral oblation, to his Fathers. In that (he recites) the Yagus, rivers of ghee—the Sāmans, rivers of honey—the Atharvan and Aṅgiras hymns, rivers of Soma—the Brāhmaṇas, Kalpas, Gāthās, Nārāyanis, Itiḥāsas and Purāṇas, rivers of ambrosia.

4. After he has recited (those texts) as far as he thinks fit, he should finish with the following (verse), ‘Adoration to Brahman! Adoration be to Agni! Adoration to the Earth! Adoration to the Herbs! Adoration to the Voice! Adoration to the Lord of the Voice! Adoration I bring to great Vishnu!’

KANDIKĀ 4.

1. He satiates the deities: ‘Pragâpati, Brahman, the Vedas, the gods, the Rishis, all metres, the word Om, the word Vashat, the Vyâhritis, the Sâvitrî, the sacrifices, Heaven and Earth, the air, days and nights, the numbers, the Siddhas, the oceans, the rivers, the mountains, the fields, herbs, trees, Gandharvas and Apsaras, the snakes, the birds, the cows, the Sādhyas, the Vipras, the Yakshas, the Rakshas, the beings that have these (Rakshas, &c.) at their end.’

2. Then the Rishis: ‘The (Rishis) of the hundred (Rikas), the (Rishis) of the middle (Mandalas), Grit-samada, Visvamitra, Vamadeva, Atri, Bharadvåga, Vasishthå, the Pragåthas, the Pavamåna hymns, the (RISHIS) of the short hymns, and of the long hymns.'

3. (Then) with the sacrificial cord suspended over the right shoulder:

4. 'Sumantu, Gaimini, Vaisampåyana, Paila, the Sûtras, the Bhâshyas, the Bhårata, the Mahâbhårata, the teachers of law, Gânanti, Bâhavi, Gârgya, Gautama, Såkalya, Bâbhraavya, Måndavya, Måndukeya, Gârgî Våâknavi, Vadavâ Pråtitheyi, Sulabhå Maitreyi, Kahola Kaushåttaka, Mahåkaushåttaka, Paîngya, Mahâpaîngya, Suyagåîa Såñkhåyana, Aitareya, Mahaitareya, the Såkala (text), the Båshkala (text), Sugåtàvaktra, Audavåhi, Mahaudavåhi, Saugåmi, Saunaka, Ásvalåyana—and whatsoever other teachers there are, may they all satiate themselves.'

5. After he has satiated the Fathers man by man, and has returned to his house, what he gives (then), that is the sacrificial fee.

6. And it is also understood (in the Sruti), ‘May he be standing, walking, sitting, or lying, (the texts belonging to) whatsoever sacrifice he repeats, that sacrifice indeed he has offered.’

7. It is understood (in the Sruti), ‘Regarding this (Svådhyåya) there are two cases in which the study (of the sacred texts) is forbidden: when he is impure himself, and when the place is.’

4. The names from Kahola Kaushåttaki down to Ásvalåyana stand in the accusative; tarpayåmi, ‘I satiate N. N.’ is to be supplied.

5. Nåràyana: ‘He satiates his father, grandfather, and great-grandfather, and goes to his house. What he then gives, for instance, food offered to guests, or given as alms (to religious beggars), is considered as the sacrificial fee for the Brahma-yåga.’

KANDIKĀ 5.

1. Now (follows) the Adhyāyopākarana (i.e. the ceremony by which the annual course of study is opened);

2. When the herbs appear, (when the moon stands in conjunction) with Sravaṇa, in the Sravaṇa month,

3. Or on the fifth (Tithi of that month), under (the Nakshatra) Hasta.

4. Having sacrificed the two Âgya portions, he should offer Âgya oblations (to the following deities, viz.) Sāvitṛt, Brahman, Belief, Insight, Wisdom, Memory, Sadasaspati, Anumati, the metres, and the Rishis.

5. He then sacrifices grains with curds (with the following texts):

6. 'I praise Agni the Purohita'—this one verse (Rig-veda I, 1, 1),

7. 'The Kushumbhaka (mongoose ?) has said it'—'If thou criest, O bird, announce luck to us'—'Sung by Gamadagni'—'In thy abode the whole world rests'

5, 2, 3. Perhaps the division of these Sūtras should be altered, so that sravaṇasya would belong to Sūtra 2. In this case we should have to translate, '2. When the herbs appear, (on a day on which the moon stands in conjunction) with Sravaṇa. 3. Or on the fifth (Tithi) of the Sravaṇa month, under (the Nakshatra) Hasta.' Comp. sravaṇasya pañkamīm, Pār. II, 10, 2. If we count the month beginning with the bright fortnight, and assume that the full moon day of Sravaṇa falls, as the name of the month implies, on Sravaṇa, the fifth Tithi of that month will fall indeed on Hasta. Comp. on the dates of the Upākaraṇa, Prof. Weber's remarks, Die vedischen Nachrichten von den Naxatra II, 322, and on the special symbolical signification of the Nakshatra Sravaṇa in this connection, my note on Śāṅkhāyana IV, 5, 2.

4. On the two Âgya portions, comp. above, I, 3, 5; 10, 13 seqq.

7. Comp. Śāṅkhāyana IV, 5, 8. The verses with which the oblations are performed, are the first and last verses of each Mandala.
‘Come to our sacrifice, O you that are worthy of sacrifice, with care’—‘Whosoever, be he ours, be he alien’—‘Look on, look about’—‘Come here, Agni, the Maruts’ friend’—‘The oblation, O king, cooked for thee’—each time two verses;

8. ‘United is your will’ (Rig-veda X, 191, 4)—this one verse;

9. ‘That blessing and bliss we choose’—this one verse.

10. When he intends to study (the Veda together with pupils), he should, while the pupils take hold of him, sacrifice to those deities, and sacrifice to (Agni) Svishṭakṛt, and partake of the grains with curds; then (follows) the ‘cleaning.’

11. Sitting down to the west of the fire on Darbha grass, the tufts of which are directed towards the east, he should put Darbha blades into a water-pot, and making a Brahmapāṅgali (i.e. joining his hands as a sign of veneration for the Brahman), he should murmur (the following texts):

12. The Vyāhṛtis preceded by (the syllable) Om (stand first); (these) and the Sāvitrī he should repeat three times and then recite the beginning of the Veda.

9. This is the last verse of the Rāk-Samhitā in the Bāṣhakala Sākhā. See my note on Sāṇkhāyana IV, 5, 9.

10. The expression, ‘Those deities’ would, according to Nārāyana, refer not only to the deities stated in Sūtra 4, but also to the deities of the first and last verses of the Mandalas (Sūtras 6 seqq.). On the grains with curds, comp. Sūtra 5. The technical sense of the ‘cleaning’ is explained in the Śrauta-sūtra I, 8, 2; comp. Hillebrandt, Das altindische Neu- und Vollmondsopfer, p. 130, note 1. The sacrificer covers his joined hands with the Kusa grass spread out round the fire, and has water sprinkled on them.

III ADHYĀYA, 6 KANDIKĀ, I.

13. In the same way at the Utsarga (i.e. at the ceremony performed at the end of the term of Vedic study).

14. He should study six months.

15. One who has performed the Samāvartana (should live during that time) according to the regulations for Brahmacārins.

16. The others according to the rules.

17. Some say that he should have intercourse with his wife.

18. That (is a practice) sacred to Pragāpati.

19. This (Upākaraṇa) they call vārshika (i.e. belonging to the rainy season).

20. On the middle Ashvakā they offer food to those deities, and descend into water.

21. They satiate those same deities (with water oblations),

22. (And besides) the Ākāryas, the Rishis, and the Fathers.

23. This is the Utsargana.

KANDIKĀ 6.

1. Instead of the Kāmya ceremonies (i.e. the ceremonies, prescribed in the Srauta-sūtra, by which

15. On the Samāvartana, see below, chap. 8 seq. The restrictions referred to consist in the interdiction of eating honey and meat, of having sexual intercourse, of sleeping in a bedstead and in the day-time, &c. Nārāyanā.
16. I.e. the Brahma-cārins.
17. I.e. one who has performed the Samāvartana.
20. After the six months (Sūtra 14) have elapsed, on the Ashvakā of Māgha.
23. Or Utsarga, see Sūtra 13.
6, 1. Nārāyanā divides this Sūtra into two: 1. atha kāmyānām sthāne kāmyāḥ; 2. karavaḥ.
special wishes are attained, oblations of) boiled (rice) grains, for the attainment of those wishes, (should be made by the Grhya sacrificer).

2. He attains (thereby) those same wishes.

3. For a person that is sick, or suffering, or affected with consumption, a mess of boiled (rice) grains in six oblations (should he offered)—

4. With this (hymn), 'I loosen thee by sacrificial food, that thou mayst live' (Rig-veda X, 161).

5. If he has seen a bad dream, he should worship the sun with the two verses, 'To-day, god Savitri' (Rig-veda V, 82, 4, 5), and with the five verses, 'What bad dreams there are among the cows' (Rig-veda VIII, 47, 14 seqq.),

6. Or with (the verse), 'Whosoever, O king, be it a companion or a friend' (Rig-veda II, 28, 10).

7. When he has sneezed, yawned, seen a disagreeable sight, smelt a bad smell, when his eye palpitates, and when he hears noises in his ears, he should murmur, 'Well-eyed may I become with my eyes, well-vigoured with my face, well-hearing with my ears. May will and insight dwell in me!'

8. If he has gone to a wife to whom he ought not to go, or if he has performed a sacrifice for a person for whom he ought not to do so, or has eaten forbidden food, or accepted what he ought not to accept, or pushed against a piled-up (fire altar) or

8. Nārāyana is evidently wrong in explaining καίτυμ yūpaṇ ᾱα by αγνικαγναναστάθαμ yūpam (which is not, as Prof. Stenzler takes it, der Opferpfahl auf einem Bestattungsplatz). Comp. Gobhila III, 3, 34; Grhya-samgraha-parīṣṭha II, 4.

I have translated the second verse in Sūtra 8, as if the text had kalpantām. The MSS. give kalpatām. Atharva-veda VII, 67 has kalpayantām. against a sacrificial post, he should sacrifice two Āgya oblations with (the verses), ‘May my faculties return into me, may life return, may prosperity return; may my goods return to me; may the divine power return into me. Svāhā!

‘These fires that are stationed on the (altars called) Dhishāyās, may they be here in good order, each on its right place. (Agni) Vaisvānara, grown strong, the standard of immortality, may he govern my mind in my heart. Svāhā!’

9. Or (he may sacrifice) two pieces of wood,

10. Or murmur (the same two verses without any oblation).

KANDIKĀ 7.

1. If the sun sets while he is sleeping without being sick, he should spend the rest of the night keeping silence, without sitting down, and should worship the sun (when it rises) with the five (verses), ‘The light, O sun, by which thou destroyest darkness’ (Rig-veda X, 37, 4 seq.).

2. If (the sun) rises (while he is sleeping without being sick), being fatigued without having done any work, or having done work that is not becoming, he should keep silence, &c., as before, and perform his worship (to the sun) with the following four (verses, Rig-veda X, 37, 9 seq.).

3. Invested with the sacrificial cord, constantly fulfilling the prescribed duties regarding the use of 7, 2. Perhaps we should correct the text, akarmaśrāntam anabhīrūpemā karmamā vā vāgya iti, &c.

3 seq. See Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya II, 9. There the same word anvashшamadesa occurs.
water, he should perform the Sandhyā (or twilight devotion), observing silence.

4. In the evening he should, turning his face to the north-west, to the region between the chief (west) point and the intermediate (north-western) point (of the horizon), murmur the Sāavitṛ, (beginning) when the sun is half set, until the stars appear.

5. In the same way in the morning—

6. Standing, with his face turned to the east, until the disk (of the sun) appears.

7. If a dove flies against his house or towards it, he should sacrifice with (the hymn), ‘O gods, the dove’ (Rig-veda X, 165), verse by verse, or should murmur (that hymn).

8. ‘We have thee, O Lord of the path’ (Rig-veda VI, 53)—if he is going out for doing some business.

9. ‘Bring us together, Pūshan, with a knowing one’ (Rig-veda VI, 54)—if he wishes to find something lost, or if he has strayed.

10. ‘Journey over the ways, Pūshan’ (Rig-veda I, 42)—if he is going out on a long or dangerous way.

KANDIKĀ 8.

1. Now when returning (home from his teacher) he should get the following things, viz. a jewel (to be tied round the neck), two ear-rings, a pair of garments, a parasol, a pair of shoes, a staff, a wreath, (pounded seed of the Kāraṅga fruit) for rubbing with, ointment, eye salve, a turban; (all that) for himself and for the teacher.

9. Mūlha may either mean, ‘having lost his way,’ or ‘bewildered in his mind.’ Nārāyana prefers the latter explanation (‘pragñā-hinaḥ’).
2. If he cannot get it for both, only for the teacher.

3. He then should get a piece of wood of a tree which is sacrificially pure, in a north-eastern direction—

4. Sappy (wood) if he wishes for the enjoyment of food, or for prosperity, or for splendour; dry (wood), if for holy lustre,

5. (Wood) which is both (sappy and dry, in its different parts), if (he wishes) for both.

6. Having put the piece of wood on high, and having given a cow and food to the Brāhmaṇas, he should perform the ceremony of shaving the beard.

7. He should alter the texts so that they refer to himself.

8. With Ekakūtaka (he should perform the rubbing).

9. Having washed himself with lukewarm water, and having put on two (new) garments which have not yet been washed, with (the verse), ‘Garments with fat splendour you put on, (Mitra and Varuna)’ (Rig-veda I, 152, 1), he should anoint his eyes with (the words), ‘The sharpness of the stone art thou; protect my eye.’

10. With (the words), ‘The sharpness of the stone

8, 6. ‘On high’ means ‘not on the ground’ (Nārāyana). On the gaudānīkām karma (the shaving of the beard), comp. above, Adhyāya I, Kandikā 18. The word ‘ceremony’ would mean here, according to Nārāyana, that he should perform the rite alone, without observing such prescriptions as stated above, I, 18, 7.

7. Thus, instead of ‘Herb! protect him!’ (I, 17, 8) he is to say, ‘Herb! protect me!’ and so on.

8. Ekakūtaka is, according to Nārāyana and the Prayogaratna, the seed of such a Karanīga fruit (Pongamia Glabra, Vent.) which contains only one grain of seed. Such grains are pounded before he rubs himself therewith.
art thou; protect my ear'—he should tie on the two ear-rings.

11. After having salved his two hands with ointment, a Brâhmaṇa should salve his head first,
12. A Râganya his two arms,
13. A Vaisya the belly,
14. A woman her secret parts,
15. Persons who gain their livelihood by running, their thighs.
16. With (the formula), 'Free from pain art thou, free from pain may I become'—he should put on the wreath.
17. Not (such a wreath) which is called mālā.
18. If they call it mālā, he should cause them to call it srāg.
19. With (the formula), 'The standing-places of the gods are you; protect me from all sides'—he steps into the shoes, and with (the formula), 'The heaven's covering art thou'—he takes the parasol.
20. With (the formula), 'Reed thou art; from the tree thou descendest; protect me from all sides'—(he takes) a staff of reed.
21. Having with the hymn 'Giving life' tied the jewel to his neck and arranged the turban (on his head), he should standing put the piece of wood (on the fire).

21. On the hymn beginning with the words 'Giving life,' see Prof. Stenzler's note on this Śūtra. Its first verse is identical with Vāgasaneyi Samhitā XXXIV, 50 (comp. also Sānkhyāyana-Gṛhya III, 1, 7), and so are most of its verses found in that Samhitā or in the Atharva-veda; the whole of it occurs among the Rig-veda Khilas (vol. vi, p. 25, 2–12).
Kandikā 9.

1. (He says), 'Memory and reproach and knowledge, faith, and wisdom as the fifth, what is sacrificed, and what is given, and what is studied, and what is done, truth, learning, vow—

'The vow which belongs to Agni together with Indra, with Pragāpati, with the Rishis, with the royal ones among the Rishis, with the Fathers, with the royal ones among the Fathers, with the human beings, with the royal ones among the human beings, with shine, over-shine, after-shine, counter-shine, with gods and men, with Gandharvas and Apsaras, with wild animals and domestic animals,—the vow, belonging to my own self, dwelling in my own self, that is my universal vow. Hereby, O Agni, I become addicted to the universal vow. Svāhā!'

2. With (the hymn), 'Mine, Agni, be vigour' (Rig-veda X, 128, 1), verse by verse, he should put pieces of wood (on the fire).

3. He should pass that night at a place where they will do honour to him.

9, 1. '“My memory and my non-memory, that is my double vow”—in this way the twelve (parts of which the first section of the Mantra consists) should be recited.' Nārāyana. I think the commentator is wrong here, and that section should rather be recited as it is given in the text without any alteration; it forms a regular Sloka. Agneḥ instead of Agne is a conjecture of Prof. Stenzler, which I have adopted.

2. According to Nārāyana the hymn should be recited including the Khila, so that ten pieces of wood are offered. Now the hymn consists of nine verses; there can be, consequently, only one Khailika verse, which is, I suppose, the first verse of the Khila quoted above, p. 228.

4. When, after having finished his (task of) learning, he has offered something to the teacher, or has received his permission, he should take a bath (which signifies the end of his studentship).

5. He (i.e. the Snâtaka) has to keep the following observances:

6. He shall not bathe in the night-time; he shall not bathe naked; he shall not lie down naked; he shall not look at a naked woman, except during sexual intercourse; he shall not run during rain; he shall not climb up a tree; he shall not descend into a well; he shall not swim with his arms across a river; he shall not expose himself to danger. ‘A great being indeed is a Snâtaka’—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. If (a student) wishes to be dismissed (by his teacher), he should pronounce before the teacher his (i.e. the teacher’s?) name—

2. (And should say), ‘Here we will dwell, sir!’

4. Nârâyana: He makes an offer to the teacher in the words, ‘What is it that I can do for you?’—and what the teacher tells him, that he does.

10, 1. Nârâyana refers this rule to a student who has performed the Samâvartana and wishes to go away. But a comparison of Sâṅkhâyana-Grîhya II, 18 seems to make it probable that the ceremony described here has nothing to do with the Samâvartana. I take this chapter rather for a description of the way in which a student has to take leave of his teacher when setting out on a journey. ‘His name’ is the teacher’s name, according to Nârâyana.

2. Sâṅkhâyana II, 18, 1. Sâṅkh. has aham vatsyāmi; Āsvalâyana, idam vatsyāmaḥ. The commentator says that instead of idam the Ârâma is to be named which the student chooses to enter upon, for instance, ‘Devadatta, we will dwell in the state of a householder, sir!’
3. With a loud voice (the words) following after the name.

4. 'Of inhalation and exhalation'—(this he says) with a low voice,

5. And (the verse), 'Come hither, Indra, with thy lovely-sounding, fallow-coloured (horses)' (Rig-veda III, 45, 1).

6. The aged one then murmurs, 'To inhalation and exhalation I, the wide-extended one, resort with thee. To the god Savitri I give thee in charge'—and the verse.

7. When he has finished (that verse), and has muttered, 'Om! Forwards! Blessing!' and recited (over the student the hymn), 'The great bliss of the three' (Rig-veda X, 185)—(he should dismiss him).

8. On one who has been thus dismissed, danger comes from no side—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

9. If he hears (on his way) disagreeable voices of birds, he should murmur the two hymns, 'Shrieking, manifesting his being' (Rig-veda II, 42, 43), and (the verse), 'The divine voice have the gods created' (Rig-veda VIII, 100, 11).

10. 'Praise the renowned youth who sits on the war-chariot' (Rig-veda II, 33, 11)—if (he hears disagreeable voices) of deer.

11. From the direction, or from the (being) from which he expects danger, towards that direction he should throw a fire-brand, burning on both sides, or having twirled about a churning-stick from the right to the left, with (the words), 'Safety be to me, Mitra

6. I have translated, as Prof. Stenzler has also done, according to Sânkhyâya's reading, prânâpânâ . . . tvayâ. The 'aged one' is the teacher, the verse that which is quoted in Sûtra 5.
and Varuna; encounter the foes and burn them up with your flame. May they find none who knows them and no support; divided by discord may they go to death—

12. He turns the churning-stick downwards with (the verse), 'The combined wealth of both, heaped together' (Rig-veda X, 84, 7).

KANDIKĀ 11.

1. If unknown danger from all sides (menaces him), he should sacrifice eight Âgya oblations with (the formulas),

'Prithivī (the earth) is covered; she is covered by Agni. By her, the covered one, the covering one, I ward off the danger of which I am in fear. Svāhā!

'Antariksha (the air) is covered; it is covered by Vāyu. By it, the covered, the covering, I ward off the danger of which I am in fear. Svāhā!

'Dyaus (the heaven) is covered; she is covered by Āditya (the sun). By her, &c.

'The quarters (of the horizon) are covered; they are covered by Kandramas (the moon). By them, &c.

'The waters are covered; they are covered by Varuna. By them, &c.

'The creatures are covered; they are covered by Prāna (the breath). By them, &c.

'The Vedas are covered; they are covered by the metres. By them, &c.

'All is covered; it is covered by Brahman. By it, &c. Svāhā!'

11, 1. 'Covered' is vṛita; 'I ward off' is the causative of the same verb, vāraye.
2. Then, stationing himself towards the north-east, he murmurs the Svasti-Âtreya and, 'Of what we are in fear, Indra' (Rig-veda VIII, 61, 13 seqq.), down to the end of the hymn.

KANDIKÂ 12.

1. When a battle is beginning, (the royal Purohita) should cause the king to put on his armour (in the following way).

2. (The Purohita) stations himself to the west of (the king's) chariot with (the hymn ?), 'I have brought thee hither; be here' (Rig-veda X, 173).

3. With (the verse), 'Like a thunder-cloud is his countenance' (Rig-veda VI, 75, 1), he should tender the coat of mail to him.

4. With the following (verse) the bow.

5. The following (verse) he should cause him to repeat.

6. He should murmur himself the fourth.

7. With the fifth he should tender the quiver to him.

8. When (the king) starts, the sixth.

9. The seventh (he recites) over the horses.

10. The eighth he should cause (the king) to repeat while looking at the arrows;

2. The Svasti-Âtreya is the part of the hymn V, 51, which very frequently contains the word svasti (vv. 11–15). There is a Khila appended to that hymn (Rig-veda, vol. iii, p. 30), which, according to Nārâyana, is also to be murmured on this occasion.

12, 2. According to Nārâyana the Pratika here signifies not the verse, but the whole hymn, though a whole Pâda is given (comp. Śrāuta-sūtra I, 1, 17).
11. (The verse), 'Like a serpent it encircles the arm with its windings' (Rig-veda VI, 75, 14), when he ties to his arm the leather (by which the arm is protected against the bow-string).

12. He then mounts up to (the king on his chariot), while he is driving, and causes him to repeat the Abhīvarta hymn (Rig-veda X, 174) and the two verses, 'He who, Mitra and Varuna' (Rig-veda VIII, 101, 3 seq.).

13. He then should look at him with the Apratiratha, Sāsa, and Sauparna hymns.

14. The Sauparna is (the hymn), 'May the streams of honey and ghee flow forwards.'

15. (The king) should drive (in his chariot successively) to all quarters (of the horizon).

16. He should commence the battle in the line of battle invented by Āditya or by Usanas.

17. He should touch the drum with the three verses, 'Fill earth and heaven with thy roar' (Rig-veda VI, 47, 29 seqq.).

18. With (the verse), 'Shot off fall down' (Rig-veda VI, 75, 16), he should shoot off the arrows.

12. The Abhīvarta hymn begins with the word abhīvartenā, and is ascribed to Abhīvarta Āṅgirasa.

13. The Apratiratha hymn is Rig-veda X, 103 (ascribed to Apratiratha Aindra); the Sāsa, X, 152 (ascribed to Sāsa Bhāradvāga). On the Sauparna, see the next Sūtra.

14. This hymn is not found in any Vedic Sāṃhitā, as far as I know, nor does it occur in the Suparṇādhyāya. I have followed Prof. Stenzler's conjecture pra dhārā yantu instead of pradhārayantu, which is confirmed by Sāyana's note on Aitareya Brāhmaṇa VI, 25, 7; VIII, 10, 4 (pp. 365, 399, ed. Aufrecht).

17, 18. According to Nārāyana the subject is the king.
19. 'Where the arrows fly' (l. l. v. 17)—this (verse) he should murmur while they are fighting.

20. Or he should teach (the king the texts mentioned). Or he should teach (the king).

End of the Third Adhyâya.

19. Here the subject is the Purohita.
Adhyâya IV, Kandikâ 1.

1. If disease befalls one who has set up the (sacred Srauta) fires, he should leave his home (and go away) to the eastern, or northern, or north-eastern direction.

2. 'The sacred fires are fond of the village'—thus it is said.

3. Longing for it, desirous of returning to the village they might restore him to health—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

4. Being restored to health, he should offer a Soma sacrifice, or an animal sacrifice, or an ordinary sacrifice, and take his dwelling (again in the village).

5. Or without such a sacrifice.

6. If he dies, one should have a piece of ground dug up to the south-east or to the south-west—

7. At a place which is inclined towards the south or towards the south-east.

8. According to some (teachers), inclined towards south-west.

9. (The piece of ground dug up should be) of the length of a man with upraised arms,

10. Of the breadth of one Vyâma (fathom),

1, 1. Comp. Srauta-sûtra VI, 9, 1. The funeral rites according to the Grîhya-sûtras have been treated of by Prof. Max Müller, Zeitschrift der Deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, vol. ix.

3. I.e. longing for the village. I here differ from Prof. Stenzler's translation, 'Indem sie, um nach dem Dorfe zu kommen, ihm Gutes wünschen.' Prof. Stenzler here follows Nàrâyana, who has the following note, grâmam ágantum ikkhanto gnaya enam áhitágnim ásamsante, ayam agado bhaved iti.

5. Srauta-sûtra VI, 10, 1.
11. Of the depth of one Vitasti (span).
12. The cemetery should be free from all sides.
13. It should be fertile in herbs.
14. But plants with thorns and with milky juice, &c., as stated above.
15. From which the waters flow off to all sides: this is a characteristic required for the cemetery (smasâna) where the body is to be burned.
16. ‘They cut off (from the dead body) the hair, the beard, the hairs of the body, and the nails’—this has been stated above.
17. (They should provide) plenty of sacrificial grass and of butter.
18. They here pour clarified butter into curds.
19. This is the ‘sprinkled butter’ used for the Fathers (i.e. Manes).

KANDIKÂ 2.

1. (The relations of the dead person) now carry (his sacred) fires and (his) sacrificial vessels in that direction.

12. Nârâyana: By the word smasâna (cemetery) two different smasânas are designated here, because below (Sûtra 15) a distinction is added (to the word smasâna), in the words, ‘This is a characteristic required for the smasâna where the body is to be burned.’ Thus the place where the body is burned, and the place where the gathered bones are deposited, both are called smasâna.
15. See the note on Sûtra 12.
16. See the Srauta-sûtra VI, 10, 2.
18. ‘Here’ means, at a ceremony directed to the Manes. Nârâyana.
2, 1. In the direction stated above, chap. 1, 6.
2. After them aged persons forming an odd number, men and women not going together, (carry) the dead body.
3. Some (say) that (the dead body should be carried) in a cart with a seat, drawn by cows.
4. (Some prescribe) a she-animal for covering (the dead body with its limbs):
   5. A cow,
   6. Or a she-goat of one colour.
   7. Some (take) a black one.
   8. They tie (a rope) to its left fore-foot and lead it behind (the dead body).
9. Then follow the relations (of the dead person), wearing their sacrificial cords below (round their body), with the hair-locks untied, the older ones first, the younger ones last.
10. When they have thus arrived at the place, the performer (of the rites) walks three times round the spot with his left side turned towards it, and with a Sami branch sprinkles water on it, with (the verse), ‘Go away, withdraw, and depart from here’ (Rig-veda X, 14, 9).
11. To the south-east, on an elevated corner (of that place), he places the Āhavanīya fire,
12. To the north-west the Gārhapatya fire,
13. To the south-west the Dakshina fire.
14. After that a person that knows (how to do it), piles up between the fires a pile of fuel.

10. Kartodakena (i.e. kartā udakena) is evidently the right reading, not gartodakena.
12, 13. The words, ‘on an elevated corner’ (Sūtra 11) have to be supplied.
14. As to the pronoun enam, which refers, with an irregular
15. After sacrificial grass and a black antelope's skin with the hair outside has been spread out there, they place the dead body thereon, which they have carried so as to pass by the Gārhapatya fire on its north-side, turning its head towards the Āhavanīya.

16. To the north (of the body they place) the wife (of the deceased),

17. And a bow for a Kshatriya.

18. Her brother-in-law, being a representative of her husband, or a pupil (of her husband), or an aged servant, should cause her to rise (from that place) with (the verse), 'Arise, O wife, to the world of life' (Rig-veda X, 18, 8).

19. The performer (of the rites) should murmur (that verse), if a Sūdra (makes her rise from the pile).

20. With (the verse), 'Taking the bow out of the hand of the deceased' (Rig-veda X, 18, 9), (he takes away) the bow.

21. It has been stated (what is to be done) in case a Sūdra (should perform this act).

22. Having bent the bow, he should, before the piling up (of the things mentioned below, which are put on the dead body) is done, break it to pieces, and throw it (on the pile).

construction, to the dead person, comp. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XII, 5, 2, 7.

16. The wife is made to lie down on the pile.

18. Possibly the words devarāh and patisthāniyāh refer to two different persons, so that we should have to translate, 'Her brother-in-law, (or some other) representative of her husband, &c.'

19. This refers to the case of the aged servant. The word for which we have put Sūdra here and in Sūtra 21, is vṛisṭhala.

22. See Sūtra 19.
KANDIKĀ 3.

1. He should then put the following (sacrificial) implements (on the dead body).
2. Into the right hand the (spoon called) Guhū.
3. Into the left the (other spoon called) Upabhṛṭ.
4. On his right side the (wooden sacrificial sword called) Sphya, on his left (side) the Agnihotrahavant (i.e. the ladle with which the Agnihotra oblations are sacrificed).
5. On his chest the (big sacrificial ladle called) Dhruvā. On his head the dishes. On his teeth the pressing-stones.
6. On the two sides of his nose the two (smaller sacrificial ladles called) Sruvas.
7. Or, if there is only one (Sruva), breaking it (in two pieces).
8. On his two ears the two Prāsitraharanas (i.e. the vessels into which the portion of the sacrificial food belonging to the Brahman is put).
9. Or, if there is only one (Prāsitraharana), breaking it (in two pieces).
10. On his belly the (vessel called) Pāṭrī,
11. And the cup into which the cut-off portions (of the sacrificial food) are put.
12. On his secret parts the (staff called) Śamya.
13. On his thighs the two kindling woods.

14. On his legs the mortar and the pestle.
15. On his feet the two baskets.
16. Or, if there is only one (basket), tearing it (in two pieces).
17. Those (of the implements) which have a hollow (into which liquids can be poured), are filled with sprinkled butter.
18. The son (of the deceased person) should take the under and the upper mill-stone for himself.
19. And the implements made of copper, iron, and earthenware.
20. Taking out the omentum of the she-animal he should cover therewith the head and the mouth (of the dead person) with the verse, 'Put on the armour (which will protect thee) against Agni, by (that which comes from) the cows' (Rig-veda X, 16, 7).
21. Taking out the kidneys (of the animal) he should lay them into the hands (of the dead body) with the verse, 'Escape the two hounds, the sons of Saramâ' (Rig-veda X, 14, 10), the right (kidney) into the right (hand), the left into the left.
22. The heart (of the animal he puts) on the heart (of the deceased).
23. And two lumps (of flour or rice), according to some (teachers).

17. Nârâyana explains āśekanavanti by bilavanti. On prishadâgya ('sprinkled butter') comp. the two last Sûtras of the first chapter.
19. The statement in Satapatha Brâhmaṇa XII, 5, 2, 14 is somewhat different.
23. Nârâyana states that these lumps are not put, as one would be inclined to believe, on the heart, but into the hands of the deceased. Sûtra 24 shows that this interpretation is correct.
24. (Only) if there are no kidneys, according to some (teachers).

25. Having distributed the whole (animal), limb by limb (placing its different limbs on the corresponding limbs of the deceased), and having covered it with its hide, he recites, when the Pranīta water is carried forward, (the verse), 'Agni, do not overturn this cup' (Rig-veda X, 16, 8).

26. Bending his left knee he should sacrifice Āgya oblations into the Dakshīna fire with (the formulas), 'To Agni svāhā! To Kāma svāhā! To the world svāhā! To Anumati svāhā!'

27. A fifth (oblation) on the chest of the deceased with (the formula), 'From this one verily thou hast been born. May he now be born out of thee, N. N.! To the heaven-world svāhā!'

KANDIKĀ 4.

1. He gives order, 'Light the fires together.'

2. If the Āhavanīya fire reaches (the body) first, he should know, 'It has reached him in the heaven-world. He will live there in prosperity, and so will this one, i.e. his son, in this world.'

3. If the Gārhapatya fire reaches (the body) first, he should know, 'It has reached him in the air-world. He will live there in prosperity, and so will this one, i.e. his son, in this world.'

24. I.e. if there is no Anustaraṇī animal, which is considered as optional (see chap. 2, 4).
27. He who is born out of the deceased, is Agni. See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa II, 3, 3, 5; and also XII, 5, 2, 15.
4, 2. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XII, 5, 2, 10.
4. If the Dakshina fire reaches (the body) first, he should know, ‘It has reached him in the world of men. He will live there in prosperity, and so will this one, i.e. his son, in this world.’

5. If (the three fires) reach (the body) in the same moment, they say that this signifies the highest luck.

6. While (the body) is burning, he recites over it the same texts, ‘Go on, go on, on the ancient paths’ (Rig-veda X, 14, 7).

7. Being burnt by a person who knows this, he goes to the heaven-world together with the smoke (of the funeral pile)—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

8. To the north-east of the Āhavantya fire he should have a knee-deep pit dug and should have an Avakā, i.e. (the water-plant called) Śīpāla put down into it. From that (pit) he (i.e. the deceased) goes out and together with the smoke he goes up to the heaven-world—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

9. After he has recited (the verse), ‘These living ones have separated from the dead’ (Rig-veda X, 18, 3), they turn round from right to left and go away without looking back.

10. When they have come to a place where standing water is, having once (plunged into it and) emerged

4. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa 1.1. § 11.
5. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa 1.1. § 12.
6. ‘The same texts’ means that the texts indicated in the Srauta-śūtra VI, 10, 19 (twenty-four verses taken from the hymns X, 14, 16, 17, 18, 154) have to be recited.
8. Comp. above, II, 8, 14.
10. ‘All the Samānodaka relations (see Manu V, 60), men and women, should pour out one handful of water each. Pronouncing from it, they pour out one handful (of water), pronounce the Gotra name and the proper name (of the deceased), go out (of the water), put on other garments, wring out (the old garments) once, lay them away with their skirts to the north, and sit down until the stars appear.

11. Or they may enter (their houses), when still (a part) of the sun-disk is seen,

12. The younger ones first, the older ones last.

13. When they have come to the houses, they touch a stone, the fire, cow's dung, fried barley, sesame seeds, and water.

14. Let them not cook food during that night.

15. Let them subsist on bought or ready-made food.

16. Let them eat no saline food for three nights.

17. Let them optionally for twelve nights avoid the distribution of gifts and the study (of Vedic texts), if one of the chief Gurus (has died).

18. Ten days after (the death of) Sapinda, the Gotra name and the proper name of the deceased, saying, for instance, "Devadatta, belonging to the Gotra of the Kasyapas, this water is for thee!"—they sprinkle it out, with southward-turned faces.' Narayana.

12. Possibly praviseyukh (they should enter) belongs to this Sutra. In Prof. Stenzler's edition and in the commentary of Narayana it is taken as belonging to Sutra 11.

15. Vasishtha IV, 15. Narayana here observes, 'Some authorities omit this Sutra.'

17. 'Father and mother and the teacher who, after having performed the Upanayana for him, has taught him the whole Veda, are the chief Gurus. When these have died, they should avoid giving gifts and studying the Veda either for twelve nights, or for ten nights, this rule standing in correlation with the following one.' Narayana.

KANDIKĀ 5.

1. The gathering (of the bones is performed) after the tenth (Tithi from the death), (on a Tithi) with an odd number, of the dark fortnight, under a single Nakshatra.

2. A man into a male urn without special marks, a woman into a female one without special marks.

texts do not exactly agree. See Âpastamba II, 15, 2; Manu V, 60; Gautama XIV, 13 (with Prof. Bühler’s note, Sacred Books, vol. ii, p. 247, &c.).

5, 1. Nārāyana (comp. the Âsvalâyana-Grhyas-Parishāta III, 7) understands this Sūtra in a different way. ‘After the tenth Tithi of the dark fortnight, on a Tithi with an odd number, i.e. on the eleventh, thirteenth, or fifteenth.’ The single Nakshatras are those the name of which does not denote two Nakshatras (as, for instance, the two Ashâdās). Comp. Kāty.-Sraut. XXV, 8, 1; Manu V, 59.

2. Urns, with or without protuberances like female breasts, are considered as female or male accordingly.

it, and sprinkles on it with a Samî branch milk mixed with water, with the verse, 'O cool one, O thou that art full of coolness' (Rig-veda X, 16, 14).

5. With the thumb and the fourth finger they should put each single bone (into the urn) without making a noise,

6. The feet first, the head last.

7. Having well gathered them and purified them with a winnowing basket, they should put (the urn) into a pit, at a place where the waters from the different sides do not flow together, except rain water, with (the verse), 'Go to thy mother Earth there' (Rig-veda X, 18, 10).

8. With the following (verse) he should throw earth (into the pit).

9. After he has done so, (he should repeat) the following (verse).

10. Having covered (the urn) with a lid with (the verse), 'I fasten to thee' (Rig-veda X, 18, 13), they then should go away without looking back, should bathe in water, and perform a Srâddha for the deceased.

K ANDIKÂ 6.

1. They who have lost a Guru by death, or are afflicted by other misfortune, should perform on the new-moon day an expiatory ceremony.

2. Before sunrise they should carry their fire

7. Nârâyana explains pavana by sûrpa. He says that the 'performer' (kartrî) repeats this and the following texts.

10. 'They should give a Srâddha to the deceased exclusively, according to the Ekoddishâ rite.' Nârâyana.

6, 2. According to Nârâyana the fire means here not the sacred domestic fire, but a common kitchen fire. I doubt whether the together with its ashes and with its receptacle to the south with the half-verse, ‘I send far away the flesh-devouring Agni’ (Rig-veda X, 16, 9).

3. Having thrown that (fire) down at a place where four roads meet or somewhere else, they walk round it three times, turning their left sides towards it, beating their left thighs with their left hands.

4. They then should return home without looking back, bathe in water, have their hair, their beards the hair of their bodies, and their nails cut, and furnish themselves with new jars, pots, vessels for rinsing the mouth, wreathed with garlands of Sami flowers, with fuel of Sami wood, with two pieces of Sami wood for kindling fire, and with branches to be laid round the fire, with bull’s dung and a bull’s hide, fresh butter, a stone, and as many bunches of Kusa grass as there are young women (in the house).

5. At the time of the Agni-(hotra) he should kindle fire with the hemistich, ‘Here may this other Gātavedas’ (Rig-veda X, 16, 9).

commentator is right. The ceremonies described in the following Sūtras seem to point rather to a renewal of the sacred Grīhya fire, the old one having proved unlucky to the sacrificer. In the same way, in the Srauta ritual, a sacrificer who, after having performed the Ādhāna, has bad luck, performs the Punarādheya.

5. The text has agnīvelāyām, which Nārāyana explains by agnihotraviharanakâlē aparāhane. He states that the fire should be produced by attrition of two new kindling woods (arāṇi), mentioned in Sūtra 4. The fire thus kindled is to be used, he says, as a kitchen-fire. Herein he seems to me to have misunderstood the meaning of the ceremony; see the note on Sūtra 2. The hemistich quoted in this Sūtra (which is the second half of the same verse of which the first half is prescribed in Sūtra 2) clearly points to the sacred quality of the fire in question; it runs thus, ‘Here may this other Gātavedas carry the offerings to the gods, the knowing one.’
6. Keeping that (fire) burning, they sit till the silence of the night, repeating the tales of the aged, and getting stories of auspicious contents, Itihāsas and Purāṇas, told to them.

7. When all sounds have ceased, or when (the others) have gone to the house or the resting-place, (the performer of the ceremony) should pour out an uninterrupted stream of water, beginning at the south side of the door, with (the verse), `Spinning the thread follow the light of the aerial space' (Rig-veda X, 53, 6), (going round the house), ending at the north side of the door.

8. Having then given its place to the fire, and having spread to the west of it a bull's hide with the neck to the east, with the hair outside, he should cause the people belonging to the house to step on that (hide) with (the verse), `Arise to long life, choosing old age' (Rig-veda X, 18, 6).

9. With (the verse), `This I lay round the living' (Rig-veda X, 18, 4), he should lay branches round (the fire).

10. After having with (the words), `A mountain (i.e. a stone) they shall place between themselves and death,' placed a stone to the north of the fire, and having sacrificed with the four (verses), `Go hence, O death, on another way' (Rig-veda X, 18,

7. The person who pours out the water is, as Nārāyana says, the kartri, i.e. the performer of the whole ceremony. The word cannot be translated, as Prof. Stenzler does, der Bestatter, no funeral ceremonies being here treated of.

8. See above, I, 8, 9. Here Nārāyana sees that the fire is the sacred one. He says, athasabdośmin kāleśgnyantaram aupañsanam upasamadadhyađ iti gūpanārtham.

10. The words, `A mountain,' &c., stand at the end of the verse quoted in Sūtra 9.
1–4), verse by verse, he should look at his people with (the verse), 'As the days follow each other' (ibid. 5).

11. The young women (belonging to the house) should, with each hand separately, with their thumbs and fourth fingers, with young Darbha blades, salve their eyes with fresh butter, and throw (the Darbha blades) away, turning their faces away.

12. (The performer of the ceremony) should look at them, while they are salving themselves, with (the verse), 'These women, being no widows, having noble husbands' (Rig-veda X, 18, 7).

13. With (the verse), 'Carrying stones, (the river) streams forward; take hold of each other' (Rig-veda X, 53, 8)—the performer (of the ceremony) first should touch the stone.

14. After that, stationing himself to the northeast, while (the others) go round with the fire, with bull's dung, and with an uninterrupted stream of water, repeating the three verses, 'O waters, ye are wholesome' (Rig-veda X, 9, 1 seqq.), he should murmur the verse, 'These have led round the cow' (Rig-veda X, 155, 5).

15. A tawny-coloured bull should he lead round—thus they say.

16. They then sit down at a place where they intend to tarry, having put on garments that have not yet been washed.

17. (There) they sit, avoiding to sleep, till sunrise.

18. After sunrise, having murmured the hymns sacred to the sun and the auspicious hymns, having prepared food, having made oblations with (the hymn), 'May he drive evil away from us with his shine' (Rig-veda I, 97), verse by verse, having given to the Brâhmanas to eat, he should cause (them) to pronounce auspicious words.

19. A cow, a cup of metal, and a garment that has not yet been washed, constitute the sacrificial fee.

KANDIKÂ 7.

1. Now at a Srâddha ceremony, at that which is celebrated on the Parvan day, or for the attainment of special wishes, or at the Âbhyudayika Srâddha (i.e. the Srâddha celebrated when some good luck has happened), or at the Ekoddishâ Srâddha (the Srâddha directed to a single dead person)—

2. He causes Brâhmanas who are endowed with learning, moral character, and correct conduct, or with one of these (characteristics), who have been invited in time, who have taken a bath, washed their feet, and sipped water, to sit down, as representatives of the Fathers, with their faces turned to the north, one for each one of the Fathers, or two for each, or three for each.

3. The larger their number is, the greater is the reward (which the sacrificer is entitled to expect).

4. But in no case one (Brâhma) for all (the fathers).

7, 1. Comp. on the Srâddha ceremonies in general the note on Sâñkhâyana-Grihya IV, 1, 1, and the quotations given there. The Pârvava Srâddha, which is celebrated on the new-moon day, is treated of by Sâñkhâyana IV, 1, the Âbhyudayika Srâddha, IV, 4, the Ekoddishâ Srâddha, IV, 2.
5. Optionally (he may invite only one Brâhmaṇa) except at the first (Srâddha).
6. By (the exposition of) the Pinda sacrifice (the corresponding rules) have been declared (for the Srâddha ceremonies also).
7. Having given water (to the Brâhmaṇas),
8. Having given to them double-folded Darbha blades, and a seat,
9. Having (again) given water (to them),
10. Having poured water into three vessels of metal, of stone, and of earthen-ware, or (into three vessels) made of the same substance, over which he has put Darbha grass,
11. And having recited over (that water the verse), 'For luck and help the divine waters' (Rig-veda X, 9, 4), he pours sesamum seeds into it with (the formula), 'Sesamum art thou; Soma is thy deity; at the Gosava sacrifice thou hast been created by

5. Anâdye. Of the different interpretations of this word which Nârâyana gives, it may suffice here to quote two. The first Srâddha may either mean the Pârvana Srâddha, because this stands first among the different kinds of Srâddha ceremonies enumerated in Śûtra 1; or it may mean the Sapinda-karana (see Sânkhâyana IV, 3), for this is the first occasion on which a dead person receives Srâddha oblations together with two others of the Fathers.
6. The sacrifice to the Manes, as forming part of the Śrauta ritual, is explained in the Śrauta-sûtra II, 6 seq.
8. Yâgñavalkya I, 229.
9. Yâgñavalkya I, 230. The reading of several words of the Mantra is doubtful, and the parallel texts, as Prof. Stenzler has not failed to observe, differ; especially the words pratnavadbhiḥ prattaḥ seem to me to be corrupt. The word pratnavat is only known to the Petersburg Dictionary as having the meaning, 'containing the word pratna,' which will not do here. Thus, I think that the reading pratnam adbhiiḥ priktatḥ should be adopted; the translation would be, 'Anciently thou hast been mixed with water.'
the gods. By the ancients thou hast been offered. Through the funeral oblation render the Fathers and these worlds propitious to us. Svadhâ! Adoration!'

12. (The different rites are performed) from the right to the left.

13. With (the part) of the other (i.e. left) hand between the thumb (and the fore-finger), because he wears the sacrificial cord over his left shoulder, or with the right hand which he seizes with the left (he offers the Arghya water to the Fathers with the words), 'Father, this is thy Arghya. Grandfather, this is thy Arghya. Great-grandfather, this is thy Arghya'—having first offered (ordinary) water (to the Fathers).

14. When he is going to hand over that (Arghya water to the Brâhmanas who represent the Fathers, he says once each time), 'Svadhâ! The Arghya water!'

15. Over (the Arghya water) which has been

13. The part of the hand above the thumb is called the 'Tirtha belonging to the Manes;' see, for instance, Baudhâyana's Dharmasûtra I, 8, 16. The sacrificer is here understood to wear his sacrificial cord suspended over the left shoulder (he is 'yâgñopavîtin'). But as the oblation here treated of is directed to the Manes, it is required that he should be prâkinâvitin. Now he is considered as prâkinâvitin, according to Nârâyana, not only if the cord is suspended over his right shoulder (which is the ordinary meaning of prâkinâvitin), but also if the hand with which he performs the rites, and the shoulder over which he wears the sacred cord, are either both right or both left. Thus here, acting with the left-hand and wearing the cord over the left shoulder, he becomes prâkinâvitin.

The last word (appûrvam) is separated by Nârâyana from the rest, so that it forms a separate Sûtra.
15. The sacrificer gives the water to the Brâhmanas, and these poured out, he should recite the verse, 'The celestial waters which have been produced on the earth, the aerial waters and the waters which are terrestrial, the gold-coloured ones, apt for sacrifice, may these waters bring us luck and be kind to us.' Pouring together what has been left (in the three Arghya vessels) he moistens his face with that water, if he desires that a son should be born to him.

16. 'He should not take up the first vessel, into which the Arghya water for the Fathers has been poured. Hidden the Fathers dwell therein: thus Saunaka has said.'

17. In that moment the gifts of perfumes, garlands, incense, lights, and clothes are offered (to the Brâhmanas).

18. Having taken some food (of the Sthâltpâka prepared for the Pindapitriyagña), and having smeared it with ghee, he asks (the Brâhmanas) for their permission by saying, 'I shall offer it in the fire,' or, 'I will sacrifice my offering in the fire,' or, 'I will offer it in the fire.'

19. The permission (is given in the words), 'It may be offered,' or, 'Sacrifice thy offering;' or, 'Offer it.'

20. He then sacrifices in the fire as stated above,
21. Or, if they give their permission, in the hands (of the Brāhmaṇas).

22. 'The mouth of the gods verily is the fire, the mouth of the Fathers is the hand'—thus says the Brāhmaṇa.

23. If in the hands, he assigns to them other food, after they have sipped water.

24. The food (is put together) with the food.

25. It is said, 'What is given away and offered, that brings prosperity.'

26. When he sees that they are satiated, he should recite (the verses) containing the word mādhū, and (the verse), 'They have eaten, they have enjoyed themselves' (Rig-veda I, 82, 2).

27. Having asked them, 'Relished?' and having taken the food, whatever food he has used, together with the Sthālpāka, in order to make lumps thereof, he should offer the rest (to the Brāhmaṇas).

28. After they have either accepted (that rest of food), or left it (to him), and have finished eating, he should, before they have sipped water, put down the lumps for the Fathers.

21. According to Manu (III, 212) this is done only in case there is no fire. Possibly abhyanugnāyām belongs to Sūtra 20, so that we should have to translate, 'He then sacrifices...if they give their permission. Or in the hands.'

24. 'The food which is left from the oblations he puts with the food (Sūtra 23) which is to be eaten by the Brāhmaṇas, and has been put into the vessels.' Nārāyana.

25. Is vrīshīt to be understood in the sense of visrīshīta? Nārāyana explains it by prabhūtām.

26. The verses containing the word mādhū are Rig-veda I, 90, 6–8.

27. On the question, 'Relished?' compare Sañkhāya-Grihya IV, 2, 5. For several kinds of Śrāddha ceremonies a Sthālpāka is prescribed, for others it is not; for the Śrāddhas of the last kind the words 'Together with the Sthālpāka' are not valid.
29. After they have sipped water, according to some (teachers).

30. Having strewn the food on the ground and suspended the sacrificial cord over his left shoulder, he should dismiss the Brâhmaṇas, (saying to them), 'Say Om! Svadhâ!'

31. Or, 'So be it! Svadhâ!'

5. One with black spots, according to some;

6. If he likes, a black one, if its colour inclines to copper-colour.

7. He sprinkles it with water, into which he has thrown rice and barley,

8. From head to tail,

9. With (the formula), 'Grow up, agreeable to Rudra the great god.'

10. He should let it grow up. When it has cut its teeth, or when it has become a bull—

11. To a quarter (of the horizon) which is sacrificially pure,

12. At a place which cannot be seen from the village,

30. They reply, 'Om! Svadhâ!'

8, i. According to Nârâyana, the 'spit-ox' sacrifice is so called because it is offered to Rudra the spit-wearer.

10. This Sûtra should rather be divided into two.

11. I.e. to the east or the north.
13. After midnight,
15. Having caused a Brahman who is versed in learning and knows the practice (of this sacrifice), to sit down, having driven a fresh branch with leaves into the ground as a sacrificial post, (having taken) two creeping plants or two Kusa ropes as two girdles, and having wound the one round the sacrificial post, and tied the other round the middle of the animal's head, he binds it to the sacrificial post or to the girdle (which he had tied to that post) with (the formula), 'Agreeable to him to whom adoration (is brought), I bind thee.'
16. The sprinkling with water and what follows is the same as at the animal sacrifice.
17. We shall state what is different.
18. Let him sacrifice the omentum with the Pâtri or with a leaf—thus it is understood (in the Sruti)—
19. With (the formulas), 'To Hara, Mrîda, Sarva, Śiva, Bhava, Mahâdeva, Ugra, Bhîma, Pasupati, Rudra, Saṅkara, Ísâna svâhâ!'
20. Or with the last six (parts of that formula),
21. Or with (the formula), 'To Rudra svâhâ!'
22. Let him make Bali offerings towards the four quarters (of the horizon), to each on four rings of Kusa net-work, with (the formulas), 'The hosts, Rudra, which thou hast towards the eastern direction,

15. Round the middle of the head means, between the two horns. Nârâyana.
16. See above, I, 11.
22. This Bali offering is performed, according to Nârâyana, before the Svish/akrīt oblation of the chief sacrifice. On kurasûna the commentator has the note, 'Darbhastambais trinais ka kalpavad (or rather, as Prof. Stenzler writes, ka/akavad) grathitvâ sarveshâm agram grîhītvā, ekikrîtya grathitâḥ kurasûnâ uâyante.'
to them this (offering is brought). Adoration to thee! Do no harm to me!' In this way the assigning (of the offerings is performed) according to the different quarters (of the horizon).

23. With the following four hymns he should worship the four quarters, viz. 'What shall we to Rudra,' 'These prayers to Rudra,' 'To thee, O father,' 'These songs to Rudra with the strong bow' (Rig-veda I, 43, 114; II, 33; VII, 46).

24. (This) worship to the quarters (of the horizon) (is performed) at all sacrifices to Rudra.

25. The husks and chaff (of the rice), the tail, the skin, the head, the feet (of the sacrificial animal) he should throw into the fire.

26. He should turn the skin to some use, according to Sāmvatya.

27. To the north of the fire, on rows of Darbha grass, or on rings of Kusa net-work, he should pour out the blood (of the sacrificial animal) with (the formula), 'Hissing ones! Noisy ones! Searching ones! Seizing ones! Serpents! What here belongs to you, take that.'

28. Then, turning to the north, (he assigns it) to the serpents (in the words), 'Hissing ones! Noisy ones! Searching ones! Seizing ones! Serpents! What here belongs to you, take that.'

Then the serpents take whatever has flowed down there of blood or of the contents of stomach and entrails.

to him;—to a sacrificer who knows that, he gives joy.

30. Even to a man who only with words sets forth (some part) of that (ceremony), he will do no harm; thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

31. He should not partake of that (sacrifice).

32. They should not take anything belonging to it into the village. For this god will do harm to (human) creatures.

33. He should keep away his people from the vicinity (of the place where he has sacrificed).

34. On an express injunction, however, he should partake (of that sacrificial food), for it will bring luck.

35. This spit-ox sacrifice procures wealth, (open) space, purity, sons, cattle, long life, splendour.

36. After he has sacrificed, he should let loose another (animal).

37. He should not be without such an animal.

38. Then he will not be without cattle—thus it is understood (in the Sruti).

39. Muttering the Santâtiya hymn, he should go to his house.

40. If disease befalls his cattle, he should sacrifice to that same god in the midst of his cattle—

41. A mess of cooked food, which he sacrifices in its entirety.

32. Instead of abhimârûka we ought to read abhimânûka. See Aitareya Brâhmaṇa III, 34, and the Petersburg Dictionary s. v. abhimânûka.

36. He should destine another young animal in the way stated above (Śūtras 7 seqq.) to a new Śūlagava sacrifice.

42. Having thrown the sacrificial grass and the Ágya into the fire, he should lead his cows through the smoke.

43. Murmuring the Santâtlya hymn, he should go in the midst of his cattle.

44. Adoration to Saunaka! Adoration to Saunaka!

PÂRASKARA-GRHYA-SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

PÂRASKARA-GRIHYA-SÛTRA.

THE Grîhya-sûtra of Pâraskara, which belongs to the White Yagur-veda and forms an appendix to Kâtyâyana’s Srauta-sûtra, has been edited, with a German translation, by the scholar who was the first to make a Grîhya text accessible to Orientalists and to begin to grapple with the first and most serious difficulties that beset its interpretation, and who has continued since to do more than anyone else towards elucidating that important branch of Vedic literature. It would be very unbecoming in any one engaged in the study of Grîhya texts, not to acknowledge most warmly the debt of gratitude which he owes to Professor Stenzler. At the same time the respect due to the veteran editor and interpreter of Āsvalâyana and Pâraskara not only allows, but requires that one who proposes to himself the same task at which Prof. Stenzler has worked with so much learning, should state as clearly as possible what that distinguished scholar has left for others to do, and why one who prepares an English translation of Pâraskara has a very different task from merely translating into English the German translation of Prof. Stenzler.

If I may venture to express in one word the difference between Prof. Stenzler’s method, as I understand it, for getting at the meaning of a doubtful or obscure passage, and the method which I have endeavoured to follow, I should say that with Prof. Stenzler the first step and,
I believe, in many cases also the last step is to ask how Gayarāma and Rāmakrishna understand the passage in question, while I hold that we ought rather to make ourselves independent from those commentators in the sense in which Prof. Max Müller once expressed himself¹, 'not that I ever despise the traditional interpretation which the commentators have preserved to us, but because I think that, after having examined it, we have a right to judge for ourselves.' There exists a commentary on the Pāraskara-Grihya which far surpasses in trustworthiness Gayarāma's Saṅganavallabha and Rāmakrishna's Samskāraganapati, and which is not composed by an author who, as says Goethe,

— im Auslegen ist munter;
Legt er nicht aus, so legt er unter.

But the leaves of that commentary are scattered through a good many volumes. Here we find a few lines of it in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa or in Kātyāyana's Srauta-sūtra; there Saṅkhāyana or Āsvalāyana has preserved a word or a sentence that belongs to it; or the law-books of Manu or Yāgūnavalkya help us to understand a difficult or doubtful aphorism of our text. In one word: the only true commentary on a work like Pāraskara's Grihya is that which the ancient literature itself furnishes. No one will say that in Prof. Stenzler's translation and notes this commentary has not been consulted. But it has been consulted perhaps not quite as much as it ought to have been, and Rāmakrishna and Gayarāma have been consulted too much. They have been consulted and followed in many instances, where a continued consideration of what can be the meaning of a word and what can not, and of what the parallel texts say with regard to the subject in question, would have shown that those commentators, instead of interpreting Pāraskara's meaning, father on him vague opinions of their own.

Perhaps it will not be out of place here to point our criticism, lest it should be deemed unjust, by a few remarks on a single passage of Pāraskara in which the difference of Prof. Stenzler’s way of translating and of our own becomes manifest. Of the numerous passages which could be selected for this purpose, I choose Sūtra I, 2, 5, belonging to the description of the setting up of the sacred domestic fire. The text of that Sūtra runs thus:

5. aravi̱pradānam eke.

Prof. Stenzler translates as follows:

‘Einige sagen, es müsse durch Reibhölzer erzeugtes Feuer sein.’

The two Sūtras which precede give a description of that ceremony from which evidently the opinion of the ‘eke’ mentioned in this Sūtra differs, or to which they find it necessary to add something. Those Sūtras run thus:

3. After he has fetched fire from the house of a Vaisya who is rich in cattle—

4. All ceremonies are performed as at the cooking of the kātushprāṣya food.

It seems evident that the Ākāryas to whom the opinion spoken of in Sūtra 5 belongs, add, or perhaps substitute, to the fetching of the fire which is to be worshipped as the sacrificer’s domestic fire, from a rich Vaisya’s house, another rite in which an aravi, i.e. a stick for kindling the fire by attrition, is made use of in some way or other.

Now if this may be accepted as a vague expression of the general purport of the Sūtra, what is the literal meaning of the words? ‘Some (teachers),’ it says, ‘(prescribe) the pradāna of the kindling stick (or, of the kindling sticks).’

What does pradāna mean? Gayarāma says,

‘prasadāda upasabdârthe. aravyapādānakaṃ eka ākāryā ikkhanti.’

1 The food which is eaten by the four chief officiating priests of the Srauta ritual. For these priests a mess of food is prepared at the ceremony of the ādhāna of the Srauta fires.
That is: 'The word pra stands in the sense of the word upa. Some teachers desire that it (i.e. the fire) should have the kindling sticks as its physical basis'.

Thus, if Gayaṛāma is right, Prof. Stenzler's translation would be justified. But can we acquiesce indeed in simply accepting the commentator's opinion? Pradāna is pradāna and not upādāna, as pradāti is not upādatte. Pradāti means 'he hands over,' and pradāna 'the handing over.' This is an established fact, and an interpreter of a Vedic text should not allow himself to be induced by a statement like that of Gayaṛāma about the preposition pra standing in the sense of upa, to abate one iota of it. Thus we are obliged, until passages have been discovered which modify our knowledge of what pradāna means—but such passages most certainly will never be discovered—to translate:

5. Some (teachers say that) the handing over of the kindling sticks (takes place).

We should give that translation even if we were not able to find an explanation for it. It appears that Prof. Stenzler, as far as we can judge from his note, has not even thought of the possibility of disregarding the authority of Gayaṛāma and Rāmakṛishna, or of looking through the parallel texts to see whether they do not throw light on what that 'handing over of the kindling sticks' signifies. The text to be consulted first is of course Kātyāyana's Srauta-sūtra. As the Srauta ritual contains a description of an ādāna which is in some way the prototype of the corresponding Grihya ceremony, we may possibly expect to discover, in the course of that description, the statements regarding the aravi-pradāna for which we are searching. Now Kātyāyana, having described the setting up of the fire in the gārhapatyagāra, states that at sunset the sacrificer and his wife sit down to the west of the fire which has just been established, and then the Adhvaryu hands over to them the two kindling sticks. The Paddhati, in describing that act, goes into further details. The Adhvaryu hands over to the sacrificer the two Arəvis, which, as required by custom, are wrapped up in new clothes. The wife takes the adharəarı from his hand and puts it on her lap; the sacrificer puts the uttarəarı on his lap, and they do homage to them with flowers, saffron, sandal wood, &c.; then, after the performance of some other ceremonies, they put the two Arəvis away on a chair or bench. The two Arəvis have to be kept by the sacrificer; if they are lost or burnt or destroyed in any other way, other Arəvis must be procured, and by their attrition a new fire must be kindled.

1 Rāmakṛishna also, according to Prof. Stenzler's note, explains pradāna by upādāna, kārana, utpattisthāna.
2 IV, 7, 15 seqq. The corresponding passage of the Paddhati is found at p. 358 of Prof. Weber's edition.

Āpastamba likewise mentions, in his description of the Agnyādhāna, the handing over of the two Arəvis, and indicates a Mantra which the Adhvaryu recites in giving them to the sacrificer, and two other Mantras with the one of which the sacrificer receives them, while he recites the other over the Arəvis, after having taken them into his hands.

Finally we may quote here, as bearing witness to the custom of the Araviṇapradāna, a passage taken from Nārāyana’s commentary on the Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhyā. Though the decisive words in that passage rest only on the authority of the commentator and not of the Sūtrakāra himself, they deserve to be taken notice of, as they are not subject to the suspicion that they could be influenced by a misunderstanding of that very Sūtra of Pāraskara of which we are treating. Nārāyana says, in his explanation of Sāṅkhāyana I, 1, 10: ‘To the west of the fire the sacrificer, and southwards (of him) the wife sits down. The handing over of the kindling sticks does not take place. For it is a fire fetched (from a Vaisya's house, &c.) which is inaugurated here.¹ Then the commentator goes on to quote a Sloka:

'The handing over of the Aranis which the Adhvaryu sometimes performs,
'Is not in accordance with the opinion of Suyagña;² he does not approve of kindling the fire by attrition.'³

Thus, I think, no doubt can remain as to the real meaning of Pāraskara's Sūtra: it means what its words signify and what is in accordance with Kātyāyana and Āpastamba, and it does not mean what the commentators most gratuitously would make it mean.

Perhaps I have dwelt here too long on the interpretation of a few words which are of no peculiar interest in themselves. But I venture to hope that the discussion on these words will serve as a specimen, by which the fundamental difference of two methods of handling our texts may be discerned. Let us never forget how much we owe to the scholars who have followed the first of these methods, but for ourselves let us choose the second.

Having wiped (around the surface on which he intends to perform a sacrifice), having besmeared it (with cowdung), having drawn the lines thereon, having taken the earth out (of the lines), having besprinkled (the place with water), having established the (sacred) fire, having spread out the seat for the Brahman to the south, having carried forward (the Praûita water), having spread (Kusa grass) round (the fire), having put down (the different things used at the sacrifice) according as they are wanted, having prepared two (Kusa blades used as) strainers, having consecrated the Prokshant

1, i. Comp. Sânkhâyana-Grhya I, 1; Ârvalâyana-Grhya I, 1, &c. It seems to me that Professor Stenzler is not quite right in giving to the opening words of the text athâtaḥ, which he translates ‘nun also,’ the explanation: ‘das heisst, nach Beendigung des Srauta-sûtra von Kâtyâyana.’ I think rather it can be shown that atâaḥ does not contain a reference to something preceding; thus the Srauta-sûtra, which forms the first part of the whole Sûtra collection, is opened in the same way by the words athâto dhikâraḥ.

2. The description of the standard form of domestic sacrifice opens with an enumeration of the five so-called bhûsamaksāra (parisamuhya, &c.). On the samûhana (for parisamuhya is derived water, having sprinkled (with that water the sacrificial implements) according to what is needed, having poured out (the Âgya or sacrificial butter into the pot), and having put the sacrificial butter on the fire, he should (lustrate the butter by) moving a fire-brand round it.

3. Having warmed the (sacrificial spoon called) Sruva, having wiped it, having besprinkled it (with water), and warmed it again, he should put it down.

4. Having taken the Âgya from the fire, having purified it, having looked at it, and (having purified) the Prokshana water as above, having taken up the Kusa blades with which he is to take hold (of the Âgya pot) by its under surface, having put pieces of wood on (the fire), and having sprinkled (water round it), he should sacrifice.

5. This is the rite wherever a sacrifice is performed.

5. Comp. the remarks on this Sūtra, in the Introduction, pp. 265 seq.

6. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XI, 5, 6, 1: 'There are five great sacrifices which are great Sattras, viz. the sacrifice to living beings, the sacrifice to men, the sacrifice to the Manes, the sacrifice to the gods, the Brahmayagñī. As the Grhyya ceremonies are included here under the category of mahāyagñīs or great sacrifices, they require, according to the teachers whose opinion is stated in Sūtra 5, a form of the Agnyādhanā (setting up of the sacred fire) analogous to the Agnyādhanā of the Śrauta ritual, and containing, like that Ādhāna, the act of the Arāṇipradāna or handing over of the kindling woods (Sūtra 5).

7. The deities of the Agnyādheya, or of the Śrauta ceremony corresponding to the Grhyya rite here treated of, are Agni pava-māna, Agni pāvaka, Agni suki, Aditi. On the Āgyabhāgas, see Sāṅkhāyana I, 9, 7, &c.

8. The verses Vāg. Samh. XXI, 3, 4, the two verses quoted thou, Agni’ (Vāg. Samhītā XXI, 4); ‘This, O Varuna’ (XXI, 1); ‘For this I entreat thee’ (XXI, 2); ‘Thy hundred’ (Kāty.-Sraut. XXV, i, 11); ‘And quick, Agni’ (Kāty. l.l); ‘The highest one’ (Vāg. Samh. XII, 12); ‘Be both to us’ (ibid. V, 3)—with (these verses he sacrifices) eight (oblations) before (the oblations of cooked food).

9. Thus he sacrifices also afterwards, after he has made oblations of the mess of cooked food to the deities of the Agnyādheya.

10. And to (Agni) Svishṭakrīt,

11. With (the formulas), ‘Into the quick one (has been put) Agni’s (sacrificial portion) over which the word vashaṭ has been spoken;’ ‘What I have done too much;’ ‘O gods who know the way.’

12. Having sacrificed the Barhis, he partakes (of the sacrificial food).

13. Then food is given to the Brāhmaṇas.

Kāty. XXV, i, ii, and fifthly the verse Vāg. Samh. XII, 12, are prescribed for the Sarvaprāyaścītta (or general expiatory ceremony), see Kātyāyana l.l.

11. Professor Stenzler, following Gayarāma, takes the whole as one Mantra, which he translates: ‘Ungehemmet sei Agni’s Spende, die durch die That ich übertreib machte, bahnschaffende Götter!’ But the words yat karmāṇātyarāṭīkām are the opening words of a Mantra quoted Satapatha Brāhmaṇa XIV, 9, 4, 24, (comp. also Ārvalāyana-Grīhya I, 10, 23; the connection in which atyarāṭīkām there stands, shows that the word designates a mistake made in the sacrificial work by doing too much.) The words devā gāṭu-viḍāḥ are the Pratikā of Vāg. Samhitā VIII, 21. Thus I have no doubt that also ayāsy Agner vashaśkrītam (or possibly ayāsy Agner (?) and vashaśkrītam (?)) is a Pratikā. Of course, the translation of these words must remain uncertain until the Mantra to which they belong has been discovered.

21. Or with (the verses) that contain the word 'honey,' verse by verse.

22. Let him give the remainder (of the Madhuparka) to a son or a pupil who is sitting to the north.

23. Or let him eat the whole of it (himself).

24. Or he should pour out (the remainder) to the east, at an unfrequented spot.

25. Having sipped water, he touches his bodily organs with (the formula), 'May speech dwell in my mouth, breath in my nose, sight in my eyes, hearing in my ears, strength in my arms, vigour in my thighs. May my limbs be unhurt, may my body be united with my body!'

26. When (the guest) has sipped water, (the host), holding a butcher's knife, says to him three times, 'A cow!'

27. He replies, 'The mother of the Rudras, the daughter of the Vasus, the sister of the Âdityas, the navel of immortality. To the people who understand me, I say, “Do not kill the guiltless cow, which is Aditi.” I kill my sin and N.N.’s sin,—thus, if he chooses to have it killed.

28. But if he chooses to let it loose, he should say, ‘My sin and N.N.’s sin has been killed. Om! Let it loose! Let it eat grass!’

29. But let the Argha not be without flesh.

30. On the occasion of a sacrifice and of a wedding let (the guest) say, ‘Make it (ready).’

31. Even if he performs more than one Soma sacrifice during one year, let only priests who have received (from him) the Arghya reception, officiate for him, not such who have not received it; for this has been prescribed in the Sruti.

KANDIKÂ 4.

1. There are four kinds of Pâkayagñas, viz. the huta, the ahuta, the prahuta, and the prâsita.

2. On the following five occasions; viz. the wedding, the tonsure (of the child’s head), the initiation (of the Brahmañårin), the cutting of the beard, and the parting of the hair, (on these occasions) in the outer hall,

3. On a place that has been smeared (with cow-dung), which is elevated, and which has been sprinkled (with water), he establishes the fire,

29, 30. These Sûtras are identical with two Sûtras in the Sânkhâyana-Grihya II, 15, a. 3. See the note there. It seems to me inadmissible to translate § 29, as Professor Stenzler does: Der Argha darf aber nicht immer ohne Fleisch sein.

31. Sânkhâyana-Grihya II, 15, 10.

6. Under one of the (three times) three Nakshatras of which a constellation designated as Uttara is first,

7. Or under (the Nakshatras) Svâti, Mrigasiras, or Rohini.

8. Three (wives are allowed) to a Brâhmana, in accordance with the order of the castes,

9. Two to a Râganya,

10. One to a Vaisya,

11. One Sûdra wife besides to all, according to some (teachers), without using Mantras (at the ceremonies of wedding, &c.).

12. He then makes her put on the (under) garment with (the verse), ‘Live to old age; put on the garment! Be a protectress of the human tribes against imprecation. Live a hundred years full of vigour; clothe thyself in wealth and children. Blessed with life put on this garment!’

13. Comp. Atharva-veda XIV, 1, 45. This parallel passage shows us the way to correct the text of this very much corrupted Mantra.
out, and who drew out the threads on both sides, may those goddesses clothe thee for the sake of long life. Blessed with life put on this garment!'

14. (The bride's father?) anoints the two, (while the bridegroom recites the verse,) 'May the Visve devâs, may the waters unite our hearts. May Mâtarîsvân, may Dhâtrî, may Deshtri (the ‘showing’ goddess) join us.'

15. (The bridegroom), having accepted her who is given away by her father, takes her and goes away (from that place) with (the verse), 'When thou wanderest far away with thy heart to the regions of the world like the wind, may the gold-winged Vaikarua (i.e. the wind?) grant that thy heart may dwell with me! N. N.!

16. He then makes them look at each other (while the bridegroom repeats the verses), 'With no evil eye, not bringing death to thy husband, bring luck to the cattle, be full of joy and vigour. Give birth to heroes; be godly and friendly. Bring us luck, to men and animals.

'Soma has acquired (thee) first (as his wife); after him the Gandharva has acquired (thee). Thy third husband is Agni; the fourth is thy human husband.

14. The literal translation would be: 'He salves together (samaṅgayati) the two . . . May the waters salve together (samaṅgantu) our hearts.' It was a real anointing of the bridegroom and of the bride, that took place, and we cannot accept Professor Stenzler's translation (based on Gayarâma's note: samaṅgayati parasparam sammukhikaroti), by which the proper signification of samaṅgayati is effaced: Dann heisst (der Vater der Braut) sie beide zusammentreten. See the note on Sānkhyāyana-Gṛihya I, 12, 5. The parallel passage of the Khâdira-Gṛihya runs thus: apareṇāgniṁ auduko gatvā pāṁigrāham mûrdhany avasiṅked, vadhûm ka, samaṅgantu ity avasiktaḥ.

'Soma has given thee to the Gandharva; the Gandharva has given thee to Agni. Wealth and children Agni has given to me, and besides this wife.

'Pūshan! Lead her to us, the highly blessed one. Sā na ūrū usatt vihara, yasyām usantaḥ praharāma sepm yasyām u kāmā bahavo nivishṭyā (nivishṭā ?) iti.'

KANDIKĀ 5.

1. Having led her around the fire, keeping it on his right side, according to some (teachers)—

2. Having pushed with his right foot a bundle of grass or a mat to the west of the fire, he sits down.

3. While (the bride) touches him, (the following oblations are made :) the two Āghāra oblations, the two Āgya portions, the Mahāvyāhṛitis, the general expiation, the Prāgāpatya oblation, and the Svishṭakrit.

4. These are regular (oblations) at every sacrifice.

5. The Svishṭakrit comes before the Mahāvyāhṛitis, if the sacrificial food is different from Āgya.

6. The place for the insertion (of the peculiar oblations belonging to the different sacrifices) is the interval between the general expiation and the oblation to Prāgāpati.

victory, and aiming [at the hostile powers]), if he knows them—

8. Because it has been said, 'By what sacrifice he wishes to attain success.'

' Pragāpati, the powerful one in victorious battles, has given victories (or, the Gaya formulas) to manly Indra. To him all subjects bowed down; he has become powerful and worthy of sacrifice. Svāhā!'

10. (The Abhyātāna formulas run thus): 'May Agni, the lord of beings, protect me. May Indra, (the lord) of the noblest, Yama, of the earth, Vāyu, of the air, the Sun, of heaven, the Moon, of the Nakshatras, Brīhaspati, of the Brahman, Mitra, of truth, Varuna, of the waters, the sea, of the rivers, food, the lord of royalty, protect me. May Soma, (the lord) of herbs, Savitṛi, of impulses, Rudra, of cattle, Tvāśtrī, of forms, Vishṇu, of mountains, the Maruts, the lords of hosts, protect me. May the fathers,

9. Instead of sa i havyah we ought to read probably sa u havyah, or, as the Taitt. Samh. III, 4, 4, 1 gives, sa hi havyah. The Maitr. Samh. has vihavyah (II, 10, 2).

10. The words, 'in this power of holiness . . . svāhā!' are to be added to each member of the whole formula (comp. Atharva-veda V, 24). The expressions 'fathers' and 'grandfathers,' which are twice identically repeated in the translation, stand the first time for pitaraḥ pitāmahah, and then for tatās tatāmahah of the Sanskrit text.
the grandfathers, the former, the later, the fathers, the grandfathers protect me here in this power of holiness, in this worldly power, in this prayer, in this Purohitasip, in this sacrifice, in this invocation of the gods. Svâhâ! —this is added each time.

11. (He then makes other oblations with the following texts:)

'May Agni come hither, the first of gods. May he release the offspring of this wife from the fetter of death. That may this king Varuna grant, that this wife may not weep over distress (falling to her lot) through her sons. Svâhâ!

'May Agni Gârhapatya protect this woman. May he lead her offspring to old age. With fertile womb may she be the mother of living children. May she experience delight in her sons. Svâhâ!

'Make, Agni, all ways of heaven and earth blissful to us, O thou who art worthy of sacrifices. What is great, born on this (earth), and praised, (born) in heaven, that bestow on us, rich treasures. Svâhâ!

'Come hither, showing us an easy path. Give us bright, undecaying life. May death go away; may immortality come to us. May Vivasvat’s son make us safe from danger. Svâhâ!'

12. And the (verse), 'Another way, O death' (Vâg. Samh. XXXV, 7), after the eating (of the remnant of the sacrificial food), according to some (teachers).

6, 1. Sânkhâyana I, 13, 15; Âsvalâyana I, 7, 8.
2. This she sacrifices, with firmly joined hands, standing, (while the bridegroom recites the verses,)
   'To the god Aryaman the girls have made sacrifice, to Agni; may he, god Aryaman, loosen us from here, and not from the husband. Svāhā!
   'This woman, strewing grains, prays thus, "May my husband live long; may my relations be prosperous." Svāhā!
   'These grains I throw into the fire: may this bring prosperity to thee, and may it unite me with thee. May Agni grant us that. N. N.! Svāhā!'
   3. He then seizes her right hand together with the thumb, with (the verses),
   'I seize thy hand for the sake of happiness, that thou mayst live to old age with me, thy husband. Bhaga, Aryaman, Savitri, Purandhi, the gods have given thee to me that we may rule our house.
   'This am I, that art thou; that art thou, this am I. The Sāman am I, the Rīk thou; the heaven I, the earth thou.
   'Come! Let us marry. Let us unite our sperm. Let us beget offspring. Let us acquire many sons, and may they reach old age.

2. He then sings a song: 'Sarasvati! Promote this (our undertaking), O gracious one, bountiful one, thou whom we sing first of all that is, in whom what is, has been born, in whom this whole world dwells—that song I will sing to-day which will be the highest glory of women.'

3. They then go round (the fire) with (the verse, which the bridegroom repeats,

'To thee they have in the beginning carried round Sūryā (the Sun-bride) with the bridal procession. Mayst thou give back, Agni, to the husbands the wife together with offspring.'

4. Thus (the same rites are repeated) twice again, beginning from the fried grain.

5. The fourth time she pours the whole fried grain by the neb of a basket (into the fire) with (the words), 'To Bhaga svāhā!'

3. From the moment of their going away a man who holds a water-pot on his shoulder, stands silent to the south of the fire;

5. From that (pot) he sprinkles her (with water) on her head (with the formula),

' The blessed, the most blessed waters, the peaceful ones, the most peaceful ones, may they give medicine to thee'—

12. For it is said, ‘At weddings and funerals he shall enter the village;’

13. (And) because the Sruti says, ‘Therefore on these two occasions authority rests with the village.’

14. To the teacher (who helps at the wedding ceremonies) he gives an optional gift.

15. A cow is the optional gift to be given by a Brāhmaṇa,

16. A village by a Rāganya,

17. A horse by a Vaisya.

18. A hundred (cows) with a chariot (he gives to a father) who has only daughters.

19. After sunset he shows her the firm star (i.e. the polar-star) with (the words), ‘Firm art thou; I see thee, the firm one. Firm be thou with me, O thriving one!

12. I have ventured, differing from Professor Stenzler (‘Bei der Hochzeit und auf der Leichenstätte richtete er sich nach dem Dorfe’), to translate praviṣatāt according to its original meaning. Could this possibly be a rule for Vānaprasthas who live in the forest and enter the village only on exceptional occasions?

18. Sāṅkhāyana I, 14, 16. Comp. the note there.

19. In the text the word ‘firm’ (dhruva) is neuter in the two first instances, and refers to the ‘firm star;’ the third time it is feminine, referring to the bride. Pāraskara has the vocative poshye for the nominative poshyā of Sāṅkhāyana I, 17, 3; comp. above, §1 sakhe for sakhā.
‘To me Brihaspati has given thee; obtaining offspring through me, thy husband, live with me a hundred autumns.’

21. Sāṅkhāyana I, 17, 5, 6; Āśvalāyana I, 8, 10, 11.

9, 1. The expression which I have translated ‘beginning from the wedding’ is upayamanaprabhṛti. The Indian commentators and Professor Stenzler explain the term upayamana as implying a reference to the Sūtra I, 1, 4, upayamanān kuśān ādāya (‘having taken up the Kusa blades with which he is to take hold of the lower surface of the Āgya pot’). ‘The worshipping of the domestic fire,’ says Stenzler, following the native authorities, ‘consists in the rites which have been prescribed above (I, 1, 4), beginning from the word upayamana, i.e. in the taking up of the Kusa blades, the putting of wood on the fire, the sprinkling and sacrificing. As the rites preceding that word, such as the preparation of the sacrificial spoon (I, 1, 3), are hereby excluded, the oblations are offered with the hand.’ It would be easy to show that the upayamanāh kuśāh have nothing at all to do with the regular morning and evening oblations of which these Sūtras treat. The comparison of Āśvalāyana-Grīhya I, 9, 1 (see also Manu III, 67, &c.) leaves no doubt that upayamana is to be understood here as derived from upayakkhati in its very frequent meaning of marrying. I have translated the Sūtra accordingly.

be worshipped) with (oblations of) curds, (rice) grains, or fried grains.

3. (He sacrifices) in the evening with (the formulas), ‘To Agni svāhā! To Pragāpati svāhā!’

4. In the morning with (the formulas), ‘To Sūrya svāhā! To Pragāpati svāhā!’

5. ‘Men are both Mitra and Varuna; men are both the Āsvins; men are Indra and Sūrya. May a man be born in me! Again svāhā!’—with (this verse) a wife who desires to conceive, (should offer) the first (oblation).

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. If (in the chariot) of a king the axle breaks, or something that is bound loosens itself, or the chariot is overturned, or if another accident happens, or (if one of these same things occurs) when a bride is carried home, he establishes the same fire, prepares Āgya, and sacrifices (two Āgya oblations) separately with the two Mantras, ‘Here is joy’ (Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51 a).

2. Having got ready another chariot, he (i.e. the Purohita or the bridegroom) should make the king or the woman sit down thereon with (the formula), ‘In royal power’ down to the word, ‘in sacrifice’

5. Comp. Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhya I, 17, 9, where the reading and the construction slightly differ. The words punah svāhā at the end of the Mantra seem to be corrupt; the frequent repetition of pumāmsam and pumān through the whole verse suggests the correction pumse svāhā, or pumbhyah svāhā, ‘to the man svāhā!’ or ‘to the men svāhā!’

10. 1. ‘The same fire’ is the senāgni (the fire belonging to the army) in the case of the king, the nuptial fire in the second case. The two Mantras are the two parts of Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51 a.
(Vâg. Samh. XX, 10), and with the (verse), 'I have seized thee' (ibid. XII, 11).

3. The two beasts that draw the chariot, constitute the sacrificial fee.
4. (This is) the penance.
5. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KANDIKÂ 11.

1. In the fourth night (after the wedding), towards morning, (the husband) establishes the fire within (the house), assigns his seat, to the south (of it), to the Brahma, places a pot of water to the north, cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices the two Âgya portions, and makes (other) Âgya oblations with (the following Mantras):

2. 'Agni! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhma, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to her husband, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Vâyu! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhma, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to her children, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Sûrya! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhma, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings death to cattle, that extirpate in her. Svâhâ!

'Kândra! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhma, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings destruction to the house, that extirpate in her. Svâhā!

‘Gandharva! Expiation! Thou art the expiation of the gods. I, the Brâhmaṇa, entreat thee, desirous of protection. The substance which dwells in her that brings destruction to fame, that extirpate in her. Svâhā!’

3. He sacrifices of the mess of cooked food with (the words), ‘To Pragâpati svâhā!’

4. Each time after he has sacrificed, he pours the remainder of the oblations into the water-pot, and out of that (pot) he besprinkles her on her head with (the words), ‘The evil substance which dwells in thee that brings death to thy husband, death to thy children, death to cattle, destruction to the house, destruction to fame, that I change into one that brings death to thy paramour. Thus live with me to old age, N.N.!’

5. He then makes her eat the mess of cooked food with (the words), ‘I add breath to thy breath, bones to thy bones, flesh to thy flesh, skin to thy skin.’

6. Therefore one should not wish for sport with the wife of a Śrotṛiya who knows this; for the other one is a person who knows this (and is thereby enabled to destroy a lover of his wife).

1. At the beginning of each half-month he cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices to the deities of the festivals of the new and full moon (as stated in the Śrauta ritual), and then sacrifices to the following deities: to Brahman, to Pragāpati, to the Visve devās, and to Heaven and Earth.

2. To the Visve devās a Bali is offered, to the domestic deities, and to Ākāsa (i.e. the Ether).

3. From the Vaisvadeva food he makes oblations in the fire with (the formulas), 'To Agni svāhā! To Pragāpati svāhā! To the Visve devās svāhā! To Agni Svishṭakrit svāhā!'

1. If she does not conceive, he should, after having fasted, under (the Nakshatra) Pushya, lay down (in his house) the root of a white-blooming Simhit plant, and on the fourth day, after (his wife) has bathed, he should in the night-time crush it in water and insert it into her right nostril with (the verse), 'This herb is protecting, overcoming, and powerful. May I, the son of this great (mother), obtain the name of a father!'

3. On a day on which the moon stands in conjunction with a Nakshatra (that has a name) of masculine gender, on that day, after having caused (his wife) to fast, to bathe, and to put on two garments which have not yet been washed, and after having in the night-time crushed in water descending roots and shoots of a Nyagrodha tree, he inserts (that into her right nostril) as above, with the two (verses), 13, 1. I have translated according to the reading of a similar Mantra found in the Atharva-veda (VIII, 2, 6), which no doubt is correct, sahasvâtî instead of sarasvâtî.

14, 3. The words 'as above' refer to chap. 13, 1.
'The gold-child' (Vâg. Samh. XIII, 4) and 'Formed of water' (ibid. XXXI, 17);

5. And he puts gall of a tortoise on her lap.
   If he desires, 'May (the son) become valiant,' he recites over him (i.e. over the embryo), modifying the rite (?), 'The Suparna art thou' (Vâg. Samh. XII, 4), (the Yagus) before (the formulas called) 'steps of Vishnu.'

KANDIKÂ 15.

1. Now the Simantonnayana (or parting of the pregnant wife's hair).
2. (It is performed) like the Pumsavana;
3. In her first pregnancy, in the sixth or eighth month.
4. After he has cooked a mess of sacrificial food, containing sesamum and Mudga beans, and has sacrificed to Pragâpati, he parts for the wife, who is seated to the west of the fire on a soft chair, her hair upwards (i.e. beginning from the front) with a bunch containing an even number of unripe Udumbara

5. The commentators state that kûrmapitta (gall of tortoise) means 'a dish with water.' I place no confidence in this statement, though I cannot show at present what its origin is. I am not sure about the translation of vikrîtyâ (or vikrîtya?). But it seems impossible to me that it should be the name of the metre Vikrīti. 'Steps of Vishnu' is a name for the Yagus following in the Samhitâ on the one prescribed in this Sûtra. It begins, 'Vishnu's step art thou, &c.' (Vâg. Samh. XII, 5).

As thou, Agni, art the preserver of the treasure of sacrifice for the gods, thus may I become the preserver of the treasure of the Veda for men.'

3. Having sprinkled (water) round the fire from left to right, he stands up and puts a piece of wood on (the fire) with (the texts),

'To Agni I have brought a piece of wood, to the great Gātavedas. As thou, Agni, art inflamed by wood, thus I am inflamed by life, insight, vigour, offspring, cattle, holy lustre.

'May my teacher be the father of living sons; may I be full of insight, not forgetful (of what I have learned); may I become full of glory, of splendour, of holy lustre, an enjoyer of food. Svâhā!'
4. In the same way (he puts on) a second (piece of wood); and thus a third.

5. Or (each piece) with (the verse), 'Thine is this' (Vâg. Samh. II, 14).

6. Or (he uses) both (this verse and the formulas given in Sûtra 3).

7. The wiping and sprinkling (of water) round (the fire are repeated) as above.

8. Having warmed his two hands, he wipes his mouth with (the formulas):

   'Agni, thou art the protector of bodies. Protect my body. Agni, thou art the giver of life. Give me life. Agni, thou art the giver of vigour. Give me vigour.
   'Agni, what is deficient in my body, that restore to fulness.

30. If (the teacher calls him) while he is lying down, (he should answer) sitting; if sitting, standing; if standing, walking up (to the teacher); if walking up, running up.
31. If he behaves thus, his fame when he has become a Snâtaka (i.e. when he has taken the bath at the end of his studentship) will be (such that people will say of him), ‘To-day he stays there; to-day he stays there.’
32. There are three (kinds of) Snâtakas: a Vidyâsnâtaka (i.e. a Snâtaka by knowledge), a Vrata-snātaka (i.e. a Snātaka by the completion of his vows), and a Vidyā-vrata-snātaka (i.e. a Snātaka both by knowledge and by the completion of his vows).

33. He who performs the Samāvartana ceremony, after having finished the study of the Veda, but before the time of his vows has expired, is a Vidyā-snātaka.

34. He who performs the Samāvartana, after his vows have expired, but before he has finished the study of the Veda, is a Vrata-snātaka.

35. He who performs the Samāvartana, after having finished both, is a Vidyā-vrata-snātaka.

36. Until the sixteenth year the time (for being initiated) has not passed for a Brāhmaṇa,

37. Until the twenty-second for a Rāganya,
38. Until the twenty-fourth for a Vaisya.

39. After that (time has passed), they become patitasāvitrīka (or persons who have lost the right of learning the Sāvitrī).

40. No one should initiate such men, nor teach them, nor perform sacrifices for them, nor have intercourse with them.

36-40. Āsvalāyana-Grihya I, 19, 5 seqq. &c.

41. The general rule here alluded to is, according to the commentators, that given by Kātyāyana, Srauta-sūtra XXV, 1, 12. 13. There it is stated which expiatory oblations have to precede, when a rite that has not been performed, or that has been incorrectly performed, is to be performed for good.

42. Those who have not been initiated in due time, may act as from the sacrament (of initiation) and from being taught the Veda.

43. Of such persons those who desire to receive the sacrament, may perform the sacrifice of Vṛātyastoma and then study the Veda, if they like. For (of persons who have done that) it is said, 'Intercourse with them is permitted.'

KANDIKĀ 6.

1. When he has finished the Veda, he should take the bath (by which he becomes a Snātaka);
2. Or when (he has gone through) a studentship of forty-eight years;
3. Or also after (a studentship) of twelve years, according to some (teachers).
4. (Let him take the bath only) if his Guru has given his permission.
5. Rules (regarding the performance of sacrifices), (texts) to be used (at the sacrifices according to those rules), and reasoning (on the meaning of the rites and texts): that is the Veda.
6. Some say (that the Veda should be studied) with its six Āṅgas; stated in Śūtra 41. But if the omission has been perpetuated through three generations, the descendant of such persons is subject to the rules stated in Śūtras 42 and 43.

43. Kātyāyana, after having given the rules on the Vṛātyastoma sacrifice (see Weber, Indische Literaturgeschichte, 2nd edition, pp. 73 seq.), says: 'Intercourse with them (who have performed that sacrifice) is permitted' (Sraut. XXII, 4, 28).

3. See chap. 5, 14.
5. The expressions of the text for the three categories are, vidhi, vidheya, tarka.

7. Not so that he only knows the ceremonial.
8. But optionally by one who knows the sacrifices (the bath may be taken).
9. (The student) after having embraced (the feet of) his teacher, and put the pieces of wood on the fire, places himself northwards of an enclosure, on eastward-pointed Kusa grass, to the east of eight vessels with water.
10. 'The fires that dwell in the waters; the fire which must be hidden, the fire which must be covered, the ray of light, the fire which kills the mind, the unwavering one, the pain-causing one, the destroyer of the body, the fire which kills the organs —those I leave behind. The shining one, that I seize here' —with (this formula) he draws water out of one (of the eight vessels);
11. With that he besprinkles himself with (the words), 'Therewith I besprinkle myself for the sake of prosperity, of glory, of holiness, of holy lustre.'
12. (A second time he draws water out of a second of the eight vessels with the formula given in Sūtra 10, putting instead of the words, 'The shining one, &c.,' the verse): 'By which you have created prosperity, by which you have touched surā, with which you have anointed the eyes, which is your glory, O Aśvins.'

12. The reading of the Mantra seems to be corrupt. Compare the form in which it is given by Bhavadeva, quoted in Professor Stenzler's note on this Sūtra. Instead of sriyam we have probably to read, as Bhavadeva has, striyam; instead of aksḥyaḥ, aksḥān. Professor Stenzler very pertinently compares Atharva-veda XIV, 1, 35, 36. Comp. also Mantrabrāhmaṇa I, 7, 5.
13. (And he draws water out of three other vessels) with (the three verses), ‘Ye waters are’ (Vâg. Samh. XI, 50–52), verse by verse.

14. With (water drawn out of) the three other (vessels he besprinkles himself) silently.

15. Having loosened his girdle with (the verse), ‘The highest band’ (Vâg. Samh. XII, 12), having put it down, having put on another garment, he worships the sun—

16. With (the formulas), ‘Rising, bearing a shining spear, Indra stands with the Maruts; he stands with the gods who walk in the morning. Thou art a tenfold winner; make me a tenfold winner. Make me attain to renown.

‘Rising, bearing a shining spear, Indra stands with the Maruts; he stands with the gods who walk in day-time. Thou art a hundredfold winner; make me a hundredfold winner. Make me attain to renown.

‘Rising, bearing a shining spear, Indra stands with the Maruts; he stands with the gods who walk in the evening. Thou art a thousandfold winner; make me a thousandfold winner. Make me attain to renown.’

17. Having eaten curds or sesamum seeds, and having had his matted hair, the hair of his body, and his nails cut, he should cleanse his teeth with an Udumbara branch with (the verse), ‘Array yourselves for the enjoyment of food. Here has come king Soma: he will purify my mouth with glory and fortune.’

16. In the Mantra the Pâraskara MSS. give bhrâgabhrishnuḥ and bhrâgabhrishāḥ, and the Gobhila MSS. (Grīhya III, 4) bhrâga-bhrîshābhîḥ. Possibly the instrumental case is right. Böhtlingk and Roth propose to read bhrâgaḍrîshīḥ.
18. Having anointed himself and bathed again, he takes up the salve for nose and mouth with (the words), 'Satiate my up-breathing and down-breathing; satiate my eye; satiate my ear!'

19. Having poured out to the south the water with which he has washed his hands, with (the words), 'Ye fathers, become pure,' he should salve himself and murmur, 'May I become well-looking with my eyes, well-shining with my face, well-hearing with my ears.'

20. He then should put on a garment which has not yet been washed, or not been soaked in lie, with (the formula), 'For the sake of putting on, of bringing fame, of long life I shall reach old age. I live a hundred long autumns. For the sake of the increase of wealth I will clothe myself.'

21. Then the upper garment with (the verse), 'With glory (come) to me, Heaven and Earth. With glory, Indra and Brīhaspati! May glory and fortune come to me! may glory be my lot!'

24. He then ties them (to his head) with (the verse), 'The high, wide glory, which Indra has created for the Apsarases, the flowers bound up with that, I tie on to me, to bring me glory!'

25. He binds a turban to his head with (the verse), 'A youth, well attired.'

26. (He puts on) the two ear-rings with (the words), 'An ornament art thou; may more ornaments be mine.'

27. He salves his two eyes with (the formula), 'Vṛitra's' (Vâg. Samh. IV, 3 b).

28. With (the words), 'Brilliant art thou,' he looks at his image in a mirror.

29. He takes a parasol with (the words), 'Thou art Bṛihaspati's covering. Shelter me from evil. Do not shelter me from splendour and glory.'

30. With (the words), 'You are supports; protect me from all sides,' he puts on the two shoes.

31. With (the words), 'From all powers of destruction protect me on all sides,' he takes a bamboo staff.

32. (For) the tooth-cleaner, &c. (the Mantras stated above are to be used) in every case; (for) the garment, the parasol, and the shoes, the Mantra (should only be recited) if they have not been used before.

Kandikā 7.

1. We shall state the rules of conduct for a Snâtaka.

2. Another (may observe those rules) optionally.

3. Dancing, singing, and playing musical instruments, let him neither perform himself nor go (to see or hear it).

4. Sing, however, he may at his pleasure, for there is another saying, 'He sings either or he rejoices in (other people's) singing.'

5. If everything goes well, he shall not go by night to another village, and shall not run.

6. He shall avoid looking into a well, climbing up a tree, gathering fruits, crawling through narrow openings, bathing naked, jumping over uneven ground, using harsh language, looking at the sun while it is rising or setting, and begging. For there is a Sruti: 'After he has bathed, he should not beg. For he who bathes, drives away from himself begging.'

7. If it rains, he shall go without an upper garment, and shall say, 'May this, my thunderbolt, drive away evil.'

8. He shall not look at himself in water.

5. He shall not void urine or excrements, or spit out in the sun-shine, and shall not cover himself against the sun.

6. He shall take warm water for (the rites) in which water is wanted.

7. At night he shall eat by the light (of a lamp or a fire-brand).

8. Or only speaking the truth (suffices instead of the other observances).

9. Also a person who has received the dîkshâ (or inauguration for a Soma sacrifice), should observe these rules beginning from (that which regards) the sun-shine (Sûtra 5), if he performs the Pravargya ceremony.

11. Taking the Brāhmaṇa’s portion (of the food which he is going to distribute), he should give it to a Brāhmaṇa, after he has made him wash himself, with (the words), ‘Well! (this) to thee!’

12. To (religious) mendicants and to guests they should apportion (food) as due to them.

13. The persons belonging to the house, the young and the old, should eat what is due to them;

14. Afterwards the householder and his wife.

15. Or the householder (should eat) first, because

11. What I have translated ‘the Brāhmaṇa’s portion’ is agra. See on this word the remark of Nilakantha quoted by Böhltingk-Roth s.v. agrahāra: agram brāhmaṇabhoganaṁ, tadartham hi riyante rāgadhanāt prāhakkriyante te-grahārab kshetradayaḥ. According to different commentators and lexicographers one Agra is equal to four or to sixteen mouthfuls of food.

15. I cannot indicate any more than Professor Stenzler could, where the passage here quoted occurs in a Brāhmaṇa.
the Sruti says, 'Therefore the householder should eat the sweetest food before his guests.'

16. Every day he should sacrifice with the word svâhâ. If he has no food (to offer, he should make his offering) with something else, be it even a piece of wood (only), to the gods, or be it (only) a water-pot, to the Fathers and to men.

12. All should repeat (that verse after him).

13. After each oblation they should each time put on the fire three pieces of Udumbara wood, fresh branches with leaves, anointed with ghee, reciting the Sâvitri.

14. And the students (should put wood on the fire) in the manner stated above.

15. With (the verse), 'Luck may bring us' (Vâg. Samh. IX, 16) they should eat the fried grains without chewing them.

16. With the verse, 'Of Dadhikrâvan' (Vâg. Samh. XXIII, 32) they should eat curds.

18. The following Sûtras clearly show that this rule is intended for students of the Yagur-veda only.
19. The beginnings of the sections belonging to the (different) Ṛishis, if they are Bahvrikas (i.e. if they study the Rig-veda),
20. The Parvans, if they are Khandogas (i.e. if they study the Sāma-veda),
21. The Sūktas, if they are Atharvans.
22. All murmur: ‘May it be ours in common; may it bless us in common; may this Brahman be powerful with us together. Indra knows that through which, and in which way, no hatred may spring up amongst us.’
23. Through a period of three nights they should not study (the Veda).
24. And they should not cut the hair of their bodies and their nails.
25. Some say (that this should not be done) till the Utsarga (i.e. the concluding ceremony of the annual course of study).

KANDIKĀ 11.

1. If (a strong) wind is blowing, and on the new-moon day there is an entire interruption of study.
2. If one has partaken of a Srāddha dinner, if a meteor falls, or distant thundering is heard, or if the earth quakes, or if fiery apparitions are seen, and when a new season begins, (the study shall be interrupted) until the same time next day.
3. If the Utsarga ceremony has been performed,

11, 1. ‘Entire interruption’ means, according to the commentators, that not only the study of the Veda itself, but also that of the Vedāṅgas, or even all sorts of worldly instruction are forbidden.
3. I have left the words sarvarūpe k a untranslated. Evidently if clouds appear, . . . . , (it shall be interrupted) through a period of three nights or till twilight has thrice passed.

4. After he has eaten, until he has (washed and) dried his hands; while being in water; at nighttime; at the time of the morning and evening twilight; while a dead body or a Kandala is in the village.

5. While running, while seeing a person of bad fame or who has lost his caste, if a miraculous or happy event happens, as long as (that which occasions the interruption of study) endures.

6. If hoar-frost (lies on the ground), if a musical instrument is heard, or the cry of a person in pain, at the border of the village, in a burial ground, or if a dog, an ass, an owl, a jackal, or a Sâman song is heard, or if a learned person approaches, as long as (that occasion) endures.

7. If his Guru has died, let him go down into water (for offering water-oblations) and interrupt (the study) for ten nights.

8. If one who has performed with him the Tânunaptra ceremony, or a fellow-pupil (has died), for three nights.

9. If one who is not his fellow-pupil, (has died,) for one night.

sarvarupa is identical with the doubtful word savarupa which twice occurs in the Sânkhyâyana-Grihya. See the discussion on that word in the note on Sânkhyâyana II, 12, 10.

8. The Tânunaptra is an invocation directed to Tanunaptri (i.e. the wind) by which the officiating priests and the Yagamâna at a Soma sacrifice pledge their faith to do no harm to each other. See Indische Studien, X, 362.
10. After having studied five months and a half, they should celebrate the Utsarga,

11. Or six months and a half.

12. They then mutter this Ṛik: 'Ye two young sages! The relation which has expired among us, the friendship we dissolve, (turning away) from the condition of friendship.'

13. After having remained together through a period of three nights, they separate.

KANDIKĀ 12.

1. In (the month) Pausha, under (the Nakshatra) Rohiṇī, or at the middle Ashṭakā, let them celebrate the conclusion of the study (of the Veda).

2. Let them go to the brink of water and make water oblations to the gods, the metres, the Vedas, the Ṛishis, the ancient teachers, the Gandharvas, the other teachers, the year with its divisions, and to their own ancestors and teachers.

3. After having four times quickly recited the Sāvitrī, they should say, 'We have finished.'

4. Interruption (of the study) and (continuation of the) teaching as stated above.

12. The reading of the Mantra is doubtful. I think it should stand as Professor Stenzler has printed it, except that I should propose to correct yuvā into yuvānā (comp. Āśvalāyana-Srauta VI, 12, 12). It is probable that the gods addressed are the two Arvins, who are called kavī and yuvānā in several passages of the Vedas.

12, 1. See Āśvalāyana-Gṛihya III, 5, 20; Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya IV, 6. On the three Ashākās, see below, III, 3, 1.

4. Sāṅkhāyana-Gṛihya IV, 5, 17, where the same expression kshapana for interruptions of the study is used. The words 'as above' refer to chap. 10, 23, 24.
KANDIKĀ 13.

1. On an auspicious day the harnessing to the plough. Or under (the Nakshatra) Gyeṣṭhā, (because that rite is) sacred to Indra.

2. To Indra, Parganya, the two Aśvins, the Maruts, Udalākāṣyapa, Svātikārī, Śītā, and Anumati, he offers curds, rice grains, perfumes, and fried grains, and then makes the bullocks eat honey and ghee.

3. He should put them to the plough with (the verse), 'They harness to the ploughs' (Vāg. Samh. XII, 67).

4. With (the verse), 'For luck may us the plough-shares' (Vāg. Samh. XII, 69) let him plough or touch the plough-share.

5. Or (he may) not (do so), because (that verse) has been prescribed for (the erection of) the Agni (-altar), and the act of sowing stands in connection (with it).

6. After the front-bullock has been sprinkled (with water), they then should plough unploughed ground.

18. 1. Indra is the presiding deity over the constellation Gyeṣṭhā; see Sāṅkhāyana-Grihya I, 26, 16, &c.

2. The names of the genius Udalākāṣyapa and of the female genius Svātikārī occur, as far as I know, only here. Böhtlingk-Roth propose to read Sphāṭimkārī ('the goddess who gives abundance').

5. At the Agni-kayana ceremony furrows are drawn with the plough on the Agni-kshetra with the verses Vāg. Samh. XII, 69–72. Afterwards grains of different kinds are sown. See Kātyāyana XVII, 2, 12; 3, 8; Indische Studien, XIII, 244 seq. Thus in the Srauta ritual the verse Vāg. Samh. XII, 69 stands in a connection which does not conform to the occasion for which it would be used here.
7. He should make oblations of cooked sacrificial food to the same deities as above, when sowing both rice and barley, and at the sacrifice to Sītā.

8. Then (follows) feeding of the Brāhmanas.

KANDIKĀ 14.

1. Now (follows) the Sravanā ceremony,

2. On the full-moon day of the Srāvana month.

3. He cooks a mess of sacrificial food, fried grains, and a cake in one dish, pounds the greater part of the grains, sacrifices the two Āgya portions, and two (other) Āgya oblations (with the following verses):

4. ‘Beat away, O white one, with thy foot, with the fore-foot and with the hind-foot, these seven [children] of Varuṇa and all (daughters) of the king’s tribe. Svāhā!

5. ‘Within the dominion of the white one, the Serpent has seen nobody. To the white one, the son of Vidarva, adoration! Svāhā!’

6. He makes oblations of the mess of cooked sacrificial food to Vishnu, to Sravana, to the full moon of Srāvana, and to the rainy season,

7. (And oblations) of the grains with (the verse), ‘Accompanied with grains’ (Vâg. Samh. XX, 29).

4. Āṣvalâyana II, 3, 3; Sāṅkhâyana IV, 18, 1. For Vârunāiḥ and rāgabāndhavaiḥ I read Vârunīḥ, rāgabāndhavīḥ. Pragāḥ is an interpolation.

5. Āṣvalâyana, loc. cit. One is rather tempted to correct ahir dadaṃsa kaññana, but Râmâkandra’s Paddhati on Sāṅkhâyana gives the reading dadarṣa, as the Pâraskara MSS. do.
8. He sacrifices flour, over which ghee has been poured, to the serpents (with the following Mantras):

9. 'To the lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, svāhā!
   'To the lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, svāhā!
   'To the lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, svāhā!'

10. The (cake) in one dish he offers entirely (without leaving a remainder for the sacrificer) with (the formula), 'To the firm one, the son of the Earth, svāhā!'

11. After he has eaten (of the sacrificial food), he throws a portion of the flour into a basket, goes out, besmears an elevated spot outside the hall (with cowdung), says, while a fire-brand is held (before him), 'Do not step between (myself and the fire), and without speaking (anything except the Mantras), he causes the serpents to wash themselves, (pouring out water for them, with the formulas):

   'Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vāyu, of the aerial ones, wash thyself!
   'Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sūrya, of the celestial ones, wash thyself!'

13. Each time after the washing has been done, he offers to the serpents a Bali of flour, picking out

11. The ceremony with the fire-brand seems to stand in connection with the rule given by Āśvalāyana, II, 1, 13, that before the sacrificer has 'given himself in charge' to the serpents, nobody is allowed to step between him and the Bali destined for the serpents. Comp. also below, Sūtra 23.

‘Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vâyu, of the aerial ones, this is thy Bali!

‘Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sûrya, of the celestial ones, this is thy Bali!’

15. After he has made them wash themselves as above, he combs them with combs (with the formulas):

16. ‘Lord of the serpents belonging to Agni, of the yellowish, terrestrial ones, comb thyself!

‘Lord of the white serpents belonging to Vâyu, of the aerial ones, comb thyself!

‘Lord of the overpowering serpents belonging to Sûrya, of the celestial ones, comb thyself!’

technical meaning of the term, which implies the omission of the upastarana and abhighârana, see Bloomfield’s note on Grihya-samgraha I, 111 (Zeitschrift der deutschen Morgenländischen Gesellschaft, XXXV, 568).

15. The words ‘as above’ refer to Sûtra 11. Pralikhati, which I have translated ‘he combs them,’ is the same act for which Sâṅkhâyana (IV, 15, 7) says, phanena kesh/âyati. I think Professor Stenzler is wrong in translating: Er scharrt (das Mehil) mit Kämmen zusammen. Gayarâma says: pralekhanam ka kramena pratiman-tram balikanâśyanam kaîkataih. tâni ka vaikaṅkatiyâni prâderamâtrâṇy ekatodontâni kâsh/Sâṇi bhavanti.
serpents with the three (verses), ‘Adoration be to the serpents’ (Vâg. Samh. XIII, 6 seqq.).

19. At that distance in which he wishes the serpents not to approach (the house), he should three times walk round the house, sprinkling an uninterrupted stream of water round it, with the two (verses), ‘Beat away, O white one, with thy foot’ (Sûtras 4 and 5).

20. He gives away the (spoon called) Darvî (Sûtra 13) and the basket (Sûtra 11), having washed and warmed them.

21. Near the door (of the house) they clean themselves with the three (verses), ‘O waters, ye are’ (Vâg. Samh. XI, 50 seqq.).

22. Having put away that remainder of flour in a hidden place, he should from that time daily till the Āgrahâyâni, after sunset, when he has performed the service to the fire, offer to the serpents a Bali of flour, picking out (portions of it) with the Darvî (spoon).

23. When he is offering (the Bali), let no one step between (the sacrificer and the Bali).

24. With the Darvî (spoon) he rinses his mouth. Having washed it, he puts it away.

20. According to the commentators he gives these things to the man who holds the fire-brand (Sûtra 11).

22. The Āgrahâyâni is the full-moon day of Mârgasîrsha, on which the Pratyavarohana ceremony is celebrated. See below, III, 2; Weber, die vedischen Nachrichten von den Naxatra, II, 332. The expression darvyaopaghâtam is the same that has occurred above in Sûtra 13.

23. Comp. Ásvalâyana-Grihyâ II, 1, 13, and see above, Sûtra 11.

24. Prakshâlya seems to me to refer to the Darvî; see Sûtra 20.

26. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brāhmanas.

KANDIKĀ 15.

1. On the full-moon day of Prausṭhapada the sacrifice to Indra.

2. Having cooked milk-rice for Indra and cakes, and having put cakes round (the fire), he sacrifices the two Āgya portions and Āgya oblations to Indra, to Indrāni, to Aga Ekapad, to Ahi Budhnya, and to the Proshṭhapadās.

3. After he has eaten (his portion of the sacrifice food), he offers a Bali to the Maruts. For the Śruti says, ‘The Maruts eat what is not-sacrificed.’

4. (This Bali he offers) in Asvatsattha leaves, because it is said, ‘The Maruts stood in the Asvatsattha tree.’

15. 2. After these Āgya oblations follows the chief oblation of the whole sacrifice, the oblation of milk-rice to Indra. In one of Professor Stenzler’s MSS. there is a special Sūtra inserted after Sūtra 2, ‘Of the cooked food he makes an oblation with (the formula), “To Indra svāhā.”’ I do not, however, think it right to receive this Sūtra into the text, as the other MSS. do not support it, and the commentators did not find it in the text which they read.

3. Professor Stenzler’s translation, ‘Die Maruts essen kein Opfer,’ seems to me not quite exact. I should prefer to say, ‘Die Maruts essen Nicht-Opfer.’ This passage, taken from Satapatha Brāhmaṇa IV, 5, 2, 16, is quoted as supporting the rule that a Bali offering should be made to the Maruts; for in the technical language the term ahotā is applied to Bali offerings (Sāṅkhāyana-Grīhya I, 10, 7, huto-sānihotrahomena, ahotā balikarmaṇā).

4. When Indra called them to his help against Vṛtra. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa IV, 3, 3, 6.
5. (He offers it) with (the texts), ‘Brilliantly resplendent’ (Vâg. Samh. XVII, 80–85), Mantra by Mantra,
6. And with the (Mantra called) Vimukha.
7. (This Mantra he repeats only) in his mind.
8. For the Sruti says, ‘These are their names.’
10. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brâhmânas.

KANDIKÂ 16.

1. On the full-moon day of Âsvayuga the (offerings of) Prishâtakas (are made).
2. Having cooked milk-rice for Indra he sacrifices it, mixed with curds, honey, and ghee, to Indra, Indrâni, the two Asvins, the full moon of Âsvayuga, and to the autumn.
3. After he has eaten (his portion of the sacrificial food), he sacrifices with his joined hands a Prishâtaka prepared with curds, with the words, ‘May what is deficient be made full to me; may what is full not decay to me. Svâhå!’
4. The inmates of the house look at the mixture of curds, honey, and ghee, with the Anuvâka,

6. This is the first part of Vâg. Samh. XVII, 86.
8. Satapatha Brâhmaṇa IX, 3, 1, 26. There it is said that sukrgyotis (‘brilliantly resplendent’) &c. (the words used in Vâg. Samh. XVII, 80) are names of the Maruts.
9. This Sûtra is identical with Kâty. XVIII, 4, 25.

KÂNDIKÂ 17.

1. Now (follows) the sacrifice to Sîtâ.

2. Wherever he sacrifices, be it (on a field) of rice or of barley, of that grain he should prepare a mess of cooked food.

3. One who has sacrificed may, if he likes, prepare elsewhere also a mess of cooked food, either of rice or of barley.

4. (There should be) no doubt (as to whether rice or barley is to be taken), as a rule thereon has been stated above.

5. If it is impossible (to take one of the two species of corn), (that) is excluded.

6. To the east or to the north of the field, on a 17, 1. The goddess Sîtâ is, as her name indicates, the rustic deity of the furrow.

3. Perhaps the meaning is that a person who has already once performed the Sîtâ-yagña on the field, is allowed, when repeating the sacrifice another time, to celebrate it elsewhere, and to choose at his will between rice and barley.

4. A rule has been given in the Srauta-sûtra (Kâty. I, 9, 1: ‘Rice or barley, if a Havis [is prescribed]’) which shows that it is indifferent whether rice or barley is taken. Thus the sacrificer is free to elect the one or the other. At least this is the traditional meaning of this Sûtra. But possibly we had better understand it otherwise. The sacrificer should offer, according to Sûtra 3, rice or barley. Whether he has to take the one or the other, there can be no doubt, as the rule given above (Sûtra 2) shows that rice should be cooked, if the ceremony is performed for a rice-field, and barley, if for a barley-field.
clean spot that has been ploughed, so that the crop be not damaged,

7. Or in the village, because (there) both (rice and barley) are united, and because no obstacle is there.

8. Where he intends to cook (the sacrificial food), he establishes the fire on a place that has been smeared (with cowdung), which is elevated, and which has been sprinkled (with water), strews (round the fire) Darbha grass mixed with (stalks of) that (sort of corn to which the sacrifice refers), sacrifices the two Âgya portions and Âgya oblations (with the following Mantras):

9. 'For whom earth and heaven, the intermediate points and the chief points (of the horizon) are veiled with light, that Indra I invoke here. May his weapons be friendly towards us. Svâhâ!

'Whatsoever it be that I wish for at this sacrifice, O killer of Vrîtra, may all that be fulfilled to me, and may I live a hundred autumns. Svâhâ!

'May success, prosperity, earth, rain, eminence, excellence, luck here protect the creatures. Svâhâ!

'In whose substance dwells the prosperity of all Vedic and worldly works, Indra's wife Sitâ I invoke. May she not abandon me in whatever work I do. Svâhâ!

'Her, who rich in horses, rich in cows, rich in delight indefatigably supports living beings, Urvarâ (i.e. the field) who is wreathed with threshing-floors, I invoke at this sacrifice, the firm One. May she not abandon me. Svâhâ!'

10. He makes oblations of the cooked sacrificial food to Sitâ, Yagâ (the goddess of sacrifice), Samâ (the goddess of zealous devotion), Bhûti (the goddess of welfare).
II KÂNDA, 17 KANDIKÂ, 16. 335

11. Some say that the giving (of the sacrificial food to the deities) accompanies the Mantras.

12. But this is excluded, as the Sruti says, 'The giving (of the oblation to the deity) accompanies the word Svâhâ.'

13. On the Kusa grass which is left over from the strewing (of grass round the fire), he offers a Bali to the protecting demons of the furrow with (the Mantra), 'They who are sitting towards the east with strong bows and quivers, may they protect thee from the east, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

14. Then to the south with (the Mantra), 'They who are sitting towards the south, not winking the eyes, wearing armour, may they protect thee from the south, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

15. Then to the west with (the Mantra), 'The powerful ones, the excellent ones, prosperity, earth, Pârshni, Sunamkuri, may they protect thee from the west, and be vigilant and not abandon thee. To them I bring adoration, and I offer this Bali to them.'

16. Then to the north with (the Mantra), 'The fearful ones, like to Vâyu in speed, may they protect

12. The quotation has not been as yet identified in the Sruti itself, but the words quoted are found in Kâty.-Sraut. I, 2, 7.

14. Some words in the beginning of the Mantra are lost. We should probably write: atha dakshinatah, ye dakshinato-nimishâh ... varmina âsate, &c. Of course it is impossible to say which is the word that is wanting before (or perhaps after) varminâh.

15. Pârshni, which means 'heel,' stands here, of course, as the name of a protecting demon.

Kânda III, Kandikâ 1.

1. (Now shall be explained) the partaking of the first-fruits (of the harvest), of a person who has not set up the (sacred Srauta) fires.

2. He cooks a mess of fresh sacrificial food, sacrifices the two Âgya portions, and two Âgya oblations, (with the formulas),

'To the hundredfold armed, hundredfold valiant, hundredfold blissful one, the vanquisher of enemies—he who may create a hundred autumns for us, Indra,—may he lead us across (the gulf of) misfortune. Svâhâ!

'The four paths that go between heaven and earth, trodden by the gods—of these (paths) lead us to that which may bring us freedom from decay and decline, O all ye gods. Svâhâ!'

3. Having made oblations of the mess of cooked food to the Âgrayana deities, he makes another oblation to (Agni) Svîṣṭakrīt with (the verse), 'Agni, make this (sacrifice) full, that it may be well offered. And may the god destroy all hostile powers. Come hither, showing us a good path. Bestow on us long life, full of splendour and free from decay. Svâhâ!'

4. He then eats (of the fresh fruits with the

6. For barley, however, (he uses the Mantra), ‘This barley, mixed with honey, they have ploughed through Sarasvatt under Manu. Indra was lord of the plough, the hundredfold wise one; ploughers were the Maruts, the exuberant givers.’

7. Then (follows) the feeding of the Brâhmanas.

K âNDIKÄ 2.

1. On the full-moon day of Mârgastrsha the Âgrahâyanî ceremony (is performed).

2. He cooks a mess of sacrificial food, sacrifices two Âgya oblations as at the Sravânâ sacrifice, and other oblations with (the following verses):

‘The night whom men welcome like a cow that comes to them, (the night) which is the consort of the year, may that (night) be auspicious to us. Svâhå!

6. Comp. manâv adhi, Rig-veda VIII, 72, 2.

2. The two oblations belonging to the Sravanâ ceremony are those stated above, II, 14, 4. 5.

The night which is the image of the year, that we worship. May I reach old age, imparting strength to my offspring. Svâhâ!

To the Samvatsara, to the Parivatsara, to the Idâvatsara, to the Idvatsara, to the Vatsara bring ye great adoration. May we, undecayed, unbeaten, long enjoy the favour of these (years) which are worthy of sacrifices. Svâhâ!

May summer, winter and spring, the rains be friendly, and may autumn be free of danger to us. In the safe protection of these seasons may we dwell, (and) may (they) last (to us) through a hundred years. Svâhâ!

3. He makes oblations of the cooked food to Soma, to (the Nakshatra) Mrîgasîras, to the full moon of Mârgasîrsha, and to the winter.

4. After he has eaten (of the sacrificial food), he throws the remainder of the flour into a basket, (and then follow the same rites that have been stated above) from (the sacrificer's) going out down to their cleaning themselves.

5. After the cleaning he says, ‘The Bali offering is finished.’

6. After they have spread out to the west of the fire a layer (of straw) and a garment that has not yet been washed, they 'descend,' having bathed, wearing garments which have not yet been washed: the master (of the house) southward, his wife to the north (of her husband, and then the other persons belonging to the house) so that each younger one lies more to the north.

7. Having caused the Brahman to sit down southward, and having placed to the north a water-pot, a Saṃī branch, an earth-clod taken out of a furrow, and a stone, he murmurs, looking at the fire: 'This Agni is most valiant, he is most blessed, the best giver of a thousand boons, highly powerful. May he establish us both in the highest place.'

8. To the west of the fire he joins his hands (and holds them) towards the east.

9. With the three (verses), 'The divine ship' (Vāg. Samh. XXI, 6–8) they ascend the layer (of straw).

10. He addresses the Brahman: 'Brahman, we will descend.'

11. The Brahman having given his permission, they descend with (the words), 'Life, fame, glory, strength, enjoyment of food, offspring!'

12. Those who have received the initiation murmur, 'May a good winter, a good spring, a good summer be bestowed on us. Blessed may be to us the rains; may the autumns be blessed to us.'

13. With (the verse), 'Be soft to us, O earth' (Vāg. Samh. XXXV, 21), they lie down on their right sides, their heads turned towards the east.

15. This (they repeat) two other times, with the Brahman’s permission.

16. Let them sleep on the ground four months (after the Pratyavavaroohana), or as long as they like.

KANDIKĀ 3.

1. After the Āgраhāyaṇā (full moon follow) the three Ashṭakās.

2. (The Ashṭakā is) sacred to Indra, to the Viśve devās, to Pragāpati, and to the Fathers.

3. (The oblations are made) with cakes, flesh, and vegetables, according to the order (of the three Ashṭakās).

4. The first Ashṭakā (is celebrated) on the eighth day of the fortnight.

5. Having cooked a mess of sacrificial food and having sacrificed the two Āgya portions, he sacrifices Āgya oblations with (the texts):
   (a) ‘Thirty sisters go to the appointed place,

3. 1. On the Ashṭakās, celebrated on the eighth days of the three dark fortnights following after the Āgраhāyaṇā full moon, see Sāṅkhāyana III, 12 seqq.; Ārvalāyana II, 4; Gobhila III, 10.

2. As there are four deities named, I think it probable that they are referred to all Ashṭakās indiscriminately; comp. Ārvalāyana II, 4, 12. Thus in the Mantras prescribed for the first Ashṭakā (Sūtras 5 and 6), Indra, the Viśve devās, and Pragāpati are named; to the Fathers belongs the Anvashṭakāya ceremony.

3. With regard to the order of these substances the Grīhya texts differ.

   (a) The thirty sisters seem to be the days of the month. As to putting on the same badge. They spread out the seasons, the knowing sages; having the metres in their midst they walk around, the brilliant ones. Svāhā!

(b) ‘The shining one clothes herself with clouds, with the ways of the sun, the divine night: manifold animals which are born, look about in this mother’s lap. Svāhā!

(c) ‘The Ekāshākā, devoting herself to austerities, has given birth to a child, to the majesty of Indra. Through him the gods have conquered the hostile tribes; he became the killer of the Asuras through his (divine) powers. Svāhā!

(d) ‘You have made me who am not the younger (sister), the younger; speaking the truth I desire this: may I be in his (i.e. the sacrificer’s?) favour, as you are; may none of you supplant the other in her work.

(e) ‘In my favour dwelt the omniscient one; he has found a firm standing; he has got a footing. May I be in his (i.e. the sacrificer’s?) favour, as you are; may none of you supplant the other in her work.

(f) ‘On the five dawns follows the fivefold milking; on the cow with the five names, the five seasons. The five regions (of the sky) are estab-

(d) Probably one Ashākā addresses the others, her sisters, as Gayarāma explains this verse.

(f) The explanation by which the ‘fivefold milking’ is referred to what is called in Taitt. Brāhmaṇa II, 2, 9, ‘the milkings of Pragāpati,’ seems to me more than doubtful, for ‘the milkings lished through the fifteenfold (Stoma); with one common face (they look over) the one world. Svâhâ!

(g) 'She who shone forth as the first, is the child of truth. One (of them) bears the majesty of the waters; one wanders in the courses of the sun; one (in those) of the heat; Savitri shall govern one. Svâhâ!

(i) 'She, the owner of bright bulls, has come to us with clouds and with light, she who has all shapes, the motley one, whose banner is fire. Carrying on the common work, leading us to old age, come to us thou who art exempt from old age, Ushas! Svâhâ!

(k) 'The consort of the seasons, the first one has come to us, the leader of days, the producer of offspring. Being one, thou shinest manifold, Ushas. Being free from old age, thou leadest to old age everything else. Svâhâ!'

6. He makes offerings of the mess of cooked food with (the verses):

'May the earth be peaceful, the air friendly to us;

of Pragâpati' are only four: viz. the dark night, the moonlight, the twilight, and the day.

(i) Sukra-rishabhâ cannot be translated, as Professor Stenzler does, 'die schönste unter den Lichtern' (Mâdava: sukresu nakshatrâdishu sreshtha), for this meaning of rishabhâ occurs only in later texts. The word is a Bahuvarîhi compound, as the Petersburg Dictionary explains it.

6. In the first verse I have omitted vyasnavai, which impedes the construction and violates the metre. The word has found its way into the text, no doubt, in consequence of the phrase dirgham âyur vyasnavai occurring in chap. 2, 2. In the second verse may the heavens give us bliss and safety. May the points (of the horizon), the intermediate points, the upper points give us bliss, and may day and night create long life for us. Svâhâ!

‘May the waters, the rays protect us from all sides; may the creator, may the ocean turn away evil. The present and the future, may all be safe for me. Protected by Brahman, may I be well guarded. Svâhâ!

‘May all Âdityas and the divine Vasus, may the Rudras and Maruts be our protectors. May Prâgâ- pati, the highest lord, bestow on us vigour, offspring, immortality, long life. Svâhâ!’

7. And with (the formula), ‘To the Ashtakâ Svâhâ!’

8. The middle Ashtakâ (is celebrated) with (the sacrifice of) a cow.

9. He sacrifices the omentum of that (cow) with (the verse), ‘Carry the omentum, O Gâtavedas, to the fathers’ (Vâg. Samh. XXXV, 20).

10. On the day following each (Ashâkâ), the Anvashâkâ day, (he brings a sacrifice) with the left ribs and the left thigh, in an enclosure, according to (the ritual of) the Pindapitriyagña.

11. Also to the female (ancestors he makes Pinda offerings) and pours (for them) strong liquor and water oblations into pits, and (offers) collyrium, salves, and garlands.

   'This navel of the world I set up, a stream of wealth, promoting wealth. Here I erect a firm house; may it stand in peace, dropping ghee.
   'Rich in horses and cows, rich in delight be set up, for the sake of great happiness. To thee may the young calf cry, to thee the lowing cows, the milk-cows.
   'To thee (may) the young child (go), to thee the calf with its companions, to thee the cup of Parisrut, to thee (may they go) with pots of curds.

13. I have stated in the note on Såńkhåyana III, 13, 1 my reasons for believing that the true reading of this Såtra is not madhyå-varshe (in the middle of the rainy season), but måţhyåvarshe (the festival celebrated during the rainy season under the Nakshatra Maghås). There are no express rules given with regard to the third Ashåkå, but I think we should understand this Såtra as involving a statement on that Ashåkå: (The third Ashåkå) and the fourth, on the Måţhyåvarsha day, are Såkåśåkås (Ashåkås on which vegetables are offered). Såńkhåyana (Grîhya III, 13, 1) declares that the ritual of the fourth Ashåkå is identical with that of the second.

'The consort of Peace, the great one, beautifully attired—bestow on us, O blessed one, wealth and manly power, which may be rich in horses and cows, full of sap like a tree's leaf. May our wealth increase here, clothing itself with prospering’—with (these four Mantras) he approaches the four (posts).

5. Having established the fire inside (the house), having made the Brahman sit down towards the south, having placed a water-pot to the north, and cooked a mess of sacrificial food, he goes out (of the house), and standing near the door, he addresses the Brahman, ‘Brahman, I enter (the house)!

6. When the Brahman has given his consent, he enters with (the formula), ‘To right I advance, to luck I advance!’

7. Having prepared Ågya and sacrificed two Ågya oblations with (the two parts of the Mantra), ‘Here is joy’ (Vâg. Samh. VIII, 51 1a), he sacrifices other oblations with (the verses):

(a) ‘Vâstoshpati! Receive us (into thy protection); give us good entering and drive away from us evil. For what we ask thee, with that favour us: be a saviour to us, to men and animals. Svâhâ!

(b) ‘Vâstoshpati! Be our furtherer; make our wealth increase in cows and horses, O Indu (i.e. Soma). Free from decay may we dwell in thy friendship; give us thy favour, as a father to his sons. Svâhâ!

(c) ‘Vâstoshpati! Let us be in a fellowship with thee, which may be valiant, joyful, and well proceeding. Protect our wishes when we rest and when we do our work. Protect us always, ye (gods), and give us welfare. Svāhā!

(d) 'Driving away calamity, Vāstoshspati, assuming all shapes, be a kind friend to us. Svāhā!'

8. He makes offerings of the mess of cooked food (with the following Mantras):

(a) 'Agni, Indra, Brīhaspati, the Visve devās I invoke, Sarasvatī and Vāgī. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(b) 'To all the divine hosts of serpents, to the Himavat, the Sudarsana (mountain), and the Vasus, Rudras, Ādityas, Īsāna with his companions, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(c) 'To forenoon and afternoon both together with noon, to evening and midnight, to the goddess of dawn with her wide path, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(d) 'To the Creator and the Changer, to Visvakarman, to the herbs and trees, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(e) 'To Dhātri and Vidhātri, and to the Lord of treasures together with them, to all these I apply. Give me a dwelling-place, ye vigorous ones. Svāhā!

(f) 'As a lucky, a happy (place), give me this dwelling-place, Brahman and Pragāpati, and all deities. Svāhā!'

9. After he has partaken (of the sacrificial food), let him put into a brass vessel the different things which he has brought together, Udumbara leaves with strong liquor, green turf, cowdung, curds, honey, ghee, Kusa grass, and barley, and let him besprinkle the seats and shrines (for the images of the gods).

10. He touches (the wall and the posts) at their eastern juncture with (the words), ‘May luck and glory protect thee at thy eastern juncture.’

11. He touches (them) at their southern juncture with (the words), ‘May sacrifice and sacrificial fee protect thee at thy southern juncture.’

12. He touches (them) at their western juncture with (the words), ‘May food and the Brâhmana protect thee at thy western juncture.’

13. He touches (them) at their northern juncture with (the words), ‘May vigour and delight protect thee at thy northern juncture.’

14. He then goes out (of the house) and worships the quarters (of the horizon, the east) with (the formulas), ‘May Ketâ (i.e. will?) and Suketâ (i.e. good-will?) protect me from the east.

‘Agni is Ketâ; the Sun is Suketâ: to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the east.’

15. Then to the south: ‘May that which protects and that which guards, protect me from the south.

‘The Day is that which protects; the Night is that which guards; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the south.’

16. Then to the west: ‘May the shining one and the waking one protect me from the west.

‘Food is the shining one; Breath is the waking one; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the west.’

17. Then to the north: ‘May the sleepless one and the not-slumbering one protect me from the north.'
'The Moon is the sleepless one; the Wind is the not-slumbering one; to them I apply; to them be adoration; may they protect me from the north.'

18. When (the house) is finished, he enters it with (the formulas),

'Law, the chief post! Fortune, the pinnacle! Day and night, the two door-boards!

'Indra's house is wealthy, protecting; that I enter with my children, with my cattle, with everything that is mine.

'Hither is called the whole number (of relatives), the friends whose coming is good. Thus (I enter) thee, O house. May our dwellings be full of inviolable heroes from all sides!'

19. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KANDIKÅ 5.

1. Now (follows) the putting up of the water-barrel.

2. To the north-east he digs a pit like (the pit for) a sacrificial post, strews into it Kusa grass, fried grains, fruits of the soap-tree, and other auspicious things, and therein he establishes the water-barrel with (the words), 'The sea art thou.'

3. He pours water into it with (the verse), 'Ye

18. Comp. Sânkhâyana-Grihya III, 3, 7 seq.; chap. 4, 10. The comparison of Sânkhâyana shows that we have to divide saha praçayå parubhih, saha yan me kiñcid asty, upahûtah, &c. Sâdhusamvrîtah (if the reading is correct) seems to me to be the nom. plur. of sâdhusamvrît. I understand this to be a Bahuvsrîhi compound, in which samvrît means 'the approaching.' In Atharva-veda VII, 60, 4 we have sakhâyå svâdusammuça. After såle a verb meaning 'I enter,' or something like that, has been lost.

4. And with the three (verses), 'O waters, ye are' (Vâg. Samhitâ XI, 50 seqq.).

5. Then (follows) feeding of the Brâhmanas.

KANDIKÂ 6.

1. Now the cure for headache.

2. Having moistened his hands, he passes them over his eye-brows with (the verse), 'From the eyes, from the ears, from the whiskers, from the chin, from the forehead, I drive away this disease of the head.'

3. If (only) one side (of the head aches, he recites the verse), 'Cleaver! Thou with the disfigured eyes! White-wing! Renowned one! And thou with the various-coloured wing! Let his head not ache.'

4. Then it will get better.

KANDIKÂ 7.

1. (Now will be declared) the making water round about a servant who is disposed to run away.

2. While (the servant) is sleeping, he should discharge his urine into the horn of a living animal, and should three times walk round him, turning his left side towards him, and sprinkle (the urine) round him, with (the verse), 'From the mountain (on which thou art born), from thy mother, from thy sister, from thy parents and thy brothers, from thy friends I sever thee.

'Run-away servant, I have made water round thee.
Having been watered round, where wilt thou go?'

3. Should he run away (nevertheless, his master) should establish a fire that has been taken from a wood that is on fire, and should sacrifice (in that fire) Kusa plates (used for protecting the hands when holding a hot sacrificial pan) that have been anointed with ghee, with (the formula), 'May the stumbler stumble round thee, ... may he tie thee with Indra's fetter, loosen thee for me, and may he lead another one up (to me).'

4. Then he will quietly remain (in his master's house).

KANDIKÂ 8.

1. The spit-ox (sacrificed to Rudra).

2. It procures (to the sacrificer) heavenly rewards, cattle, sons, wealth, renown, long life.

3. Having taken the sacred domestic fire to the of nivrîtta, a second member which is doubtful, and vîrudh (the plant). The meaning may have been 'giving it up to consume the plants.'

forest, and having performed the ‘outspreading,’ he should sacrifice the animal to Rudra.

4. One that is not gelded.

5. Or (it may be) a cow, on account of the designation.

6. Having cooked the omentum, a mess of sacrificial food, and the portions cut off (of the victim), he sacrifices the omentum to Rudra, the fat to the Air, and the cut-off portions together with the mess of cooked food to Agni, Rudra, Sarva, Pasupati, Ugra, Asani, Bhava, Mahâdeva, Ísána.

7. (Then follows a sacrifice to) Vanaspati.

8. (To Agni) Svishãkritz at the end.

9. Then (follows) the sprinkling round to the different quarters (of the horizon).

10. After the sprinkling has been performed, they sacrifice the Patni-samyâga offerings to Indrânti, Rudrânti, Sarvânti, Bhavânti, and Agni Grijapati.

11. The blood he offers in leaves, on (grass-) bunches, as a Bali to Rudra and to his hosts, with (the Mantras),

‘The hosts, Rudra, which thou hast to the east, to them this Bali (is given). To them and to thee be adoration!

downwards, to them this Bali (is given). To them and to thee be adoration!'

12. The contents of the stomach and of the entrails, besmeared with blood, he throws into the fire or buries them in the earth.

13. Having placed the animal so that the wind blows from himself to it, he approaches it with the Rudra hymns, or with the first and last Anuvâka.

14. They do not take anything of that animal to the village.

15. Thereby (also) the cow-sacrifice has been declared.

16. (It is combined) with (the offering of) milk-rice; (the rites) not corresponding (to that special occasion) are omitted.

17. The sacrificial fee at that (sacrifice) is a cow of the same age (as the victim).

KANDIKÂ 9.

1. Now the letting loose of the bull.

2. (The ceremony) has been declared in the cow-sacrifice.

cows, and having prepared Âgya, he sacrifices six (oblations) with (the Mantras), ‘Here is delight’ (Vâg. Samh. VIII, 51).

5. With (the verses), ‘May Pûshan go after our cows; may Pûshan watch over our horses; may Pûshan give us strength’—he sacrifices of (the sacrificial food) destined for Pûshan.

6. After murmuring the Rudra hymns they adorn a one-coloured or a two-coloured (bull) who protects the herd or whom the herd protects. Or it should be red, deficient in no limb, the calf of a cow that has living calves and is a milk-giver; and it should be the finest (bull) in the herd. And besides they should adorn the best four young cows of the herd and let them loose with this (verse), ‘This young (bull) I give you as your husband; run about sporting with him, your lover. Do not bring down a curse upon us, by nature blessed ones. May we rejoice in increase of wealth and in comfort.’

7. When (the bull) stands in the midst of the cows, he recites over it (the texts beginning with) ‘Bringing refreshment,’ down to the end of the Anuvâka (Vâg. Samh. XVIII, 45-50).

8. With the milk of all (the cows) he should cook milk-rice and give it to the Brâhmaṇas to eat.

6. Śâṅkhâyana, §§ 6-14. On the Rudra hymns, see above, chap. 8, § 13. Perhaps the words mā naḥ sāpta are corrupt; the correct reading may possibly be, mā vaṣṭâta.

There is no Mantra in the Vâgasaneya Samhitâ beginning with the word mayobhûḥ, but this word occurs in the middle of XVIII, 45 a; the texts which he recites begin at that word and extend down to the end of the Anuvâka. It is clear that mayobhûḥ was intended in the original text, from which both Śâṅkhâyana and Pâraskara have taken this Sûtra, as the Rîk-Pratika, Rig-veda X, 169, 1.
9. Some also sacrifice an animal.
10. The ritual thereof has been declared by the (ritual for the) spit-ox.

KANDIKĀ 10.

1. Now the water libations (which are performed for deceased persons).
2. When (a child) that has not reached the age of two years dies, his father and mother become impure.
3. The other (relations) remain pure.
4. (The impurity lasts) through one night or three nights.
5. They bury the body without burning it.
6. If (a child dies) during the impurity of his mother (caused by the child’s birth), the impurity lasts till the (mother’s) getting up (from child-bed), in the same way as the impurity caused by a child’s birth.
7. In this case (of the child being younger than two years) no water libations (are performed).
8. If a child of more than two years dies, all his relations should follow (the corpse) to the cemetery—

11. They burn him with his (sacred) domestic fire, if he has kept that;

12. Silently, with a common fire, other persons.

13. They should ask one who is related (to the deceased person) by blood or by marriage, for (his permission to perform) the water-libation, in the words, 'We shall perform the libation.'

14. (He replies), 'Do so now and never again,' if the deceased person was not a hundred years old.

15. (He says) only, 'Do so,' if he was.

16. All relations (of the deceased), to the seventh or to the tenth degree, descend into water.

17. If dwelling in the same village, (all) as far as they can trace their relationship.

18. They wear (only) one garment, and have the sacred cord suspended over the right shoulder.

19. With the fourth finger of the left hand they spirit away (the water) with (the words), 'May he drive evil away from us with his splendour' (Vāg. Samh. XXXV, 6).

20. Facing the south, they plunge (into the water).

21. They pour out with joined hands one libation of water to the deceased person with (the words), 'N. N. ! This water to thee!'

have sat down on a pure spot that is covered with grass, (those who are versed in ancient tales) should entertain them (by telling such tales).

23. They return to the village without looking back, in one row, the youngest walking in front.

24. In the doors of their houses they chew leaves of the Piśumanda (or Nimba) tree, sip water, touch water, fire, cowdung, white mustard seeds, and oil, tread upon a stone, and then they enter.

25. Through a period of three nights they should remain chaste, sleep on the ground, do no work and charge nobody (to do it for them).

26. Let them eat food which they have bought or received (from others); (they should eat it) only in the day-time, (and should eat) no meat.

27. Having offered to the deceased person the Pinda, naming his name at the washing, at the offering (of the Pinda), and at the second washing—

28. They should that night put milk and water in an earthen vessel into the open air with (the words), 'Deceased one, bathe here!'

29. The impurity caused by death lasts through three nights;

30. Through ten nights, according to some (teachers).

31. (During that period they) should not perform Svādhyāya (or study the Vedic texts for themselves).

KANDIKÂ 11.

1. If an animal (is to be sacrificed), let him wash it, if it is not a cow; let him walk round the fires and drive in front (of them) a Palâsa branch into the ground.

2. The winding (of a Kusa rope) round (that branch), the touching (of the animal with the grass-blade), the binding (of it to the branch), and the sprinkling (of the animal with water) should be performed in the way prescribed (in the Srauta-sûtra), and whatever else (is to be done).

3. After he has sacrificed the two oblations before and after the killing of the animal, (he) silently (sacrifices) five other (oblations, directed to Pragàpati).

4. And the omentum is taken out (of the killed animal). He should besprinkle it (with water) and name the deity (to whom the sacrifice is directed).

KANDIKÂ 12.

1. Now (follows) the penance for a student who has broken the vow of chastity.
2. On a new-moon day he shall sacrifice an ass on a cross-road (to the goddess Nirriti).
3. (And) he shall offer a mess of cooked food to Nirriti.
4. The Avadâna portions are sacrificed into water (and not into fire).

7. The complete number of the Avadânas (i.e. the portions of the killed animal which have to be cut off, such as the heart, the tongue, &c.) is eleven; see Kâty.-Sraut. VI, 7, 6; Âsvâlayana-Grîhya I, 11, 12.

5. The Purodāsa (or sacrificial cake), which belongs to the animal sacrifice, is cooked on the ground (and not in the Kapālas).

6. (The guilty person) should put on the skin (of the ass),

7. With the tail turned upwards, according to some (teachers).

8. He should through one year go about for alms, proclaiming his deed.

9. After that time he sacrifices two Āgya oblations with (the formulas), 'O Lust, I have broken my vow of chastity. I have broken my vow of chastity, O Lust. To Lust svāhā!'—'O Lust, I have done evil. I have done evil, O Lust. To Lust svāhā!'

10. He then approaches (the fire) with (the verse), 'May the Maruts besprinkle me, may Indra, may Br̥haspati, may this Agni besprinkle me with offspring and with wealth.'

11. This is the penance.

KANDIKĀ 13.

1. Now the entering of a court of justice.

2. He approaches the court with (the words), 'Court! Thou that belongest to the Aṅgiras! Trouble art thou by name; vehemence art thou by name. Thus be adoration to thee!'

3. He then enters (the court) with (the words), '(May) the court and the assembly, the two unani-

5. This Śūtra is identical with Kātyāyana I, 1, 15.

13, 2. The regular Sandhi would be sabha (for sabhe) aṅgirasī, instead of which the text has sabhāṅgirasī. 3. In Sanskrit the words sabhā (court) and samiti (assembly) are of feminine gender. I have translated upa mā sa tishhet in the sense indicated by Pāṇini I, 4, 87.
mous daughters of Pragâpati (protect me). May one who does not know me, be below me. May (all) people be considerate in what they say.'

4. When he has arrived at the assembly, he should murmur, 'Superior (to my adversaries) I have come hither, brilliant, not to be contradicted. The lord of this assembly is a man insuperable in his power.'

5. Should he think, 'This person is angry with me,' he addresses him with (the verses), 'The destroying power of wrath and anger that dwells here on thy forehead, that the chaste, wise gods may take away.

'Heaven am I and I am Earth; we both take away thy anger; the she-mule cannot bring forth offspring; N. N.!'

6. But if he should think, 'This person will do evil to me,' he addresses him with (the words), 'I take away the speech in thy mouth, I take away (the speech) in thy heart. Wheresoever thy speech dwells, thence I take it away. What I say, is true. Fall down, inferior to me.'

7. The same is the way to make (a person) subject (to one's self).

KANDIKÂ 14.

1. Now the mounting of a chariot (is declared).

2. After he has given the order, 'Put the horses to it,' and it has been announced, 'They are,' he goes to (the chariot, saying), 'This is the Virâg,' and touches the two wheels,

5. Perhaps we should read garbhaṃsvataryâḥ saha: we take away thy anger together with the offspring of the she-mule (that cannot foal). Comp. Kullavagga VII, 2, 5; S. B. E., XX, 238.

6. It is impossible to give a sure restoration of this corrupt Mantra. Perhaps we should read something like this: ā te vâlam āsya ā te hridaya ādade. Comp. Hirany.-Grîhya I, 4, 15, 6.
3. The right (wheel) with (the words), 'The Rathantara art thou'—
4. The left with (the words), 'The Brīhat art thou'—
5. The pole with (the words), 'The Vāmadevya art thou.'
6. He touches the interior of the chariot with his hand (saying), 'The two Aṅkas, the two Nyaṅkas which are on both sides of the chariot, which move forward with the rushing wind, the far-darting one with keen senses, the winged one, may these fires, the promoters, promote us.'
7. With (the words), 'Adoration to Māṇikara,' he drives on the beast on the right side.
8. (If going in his chariot) toward (images of) gods, let him descend (from the chariot) before he has reached them; if toward Brāhmaṇas, just before (reaching them); if toward cows, when amid them; if toward fathers, when he has reached them.
9. A woman or a Vedic student shall not be charioteers.

14, 6. The meaning of aṅkau and nyaṅkau cannot be determined, as far as I can see. The commentators explain the words as the two wheels and the two sides of the chariot, or as the two right wheels and the two left wheels of a four-wheeled chariot. Professor Zimmer (Altindisches Leben, pp. 251 seq.) compares aṅka with अंकु, and says, 'Mit aṅkau (resp. aṅkū) wäre daher die obere Einfassung des Wagenkastens (kora, vandhura) bezeichnet, mit nyaṅkau (resp. nyaṅkū) ein zu grösserer Befestigung etwas weiter unten (ni) herumlaufender Stab.' To me it seems that aṅkau and nyaṅkau are to be understood both as designations of certain parts of the chariot and as names of different forms of Agni dwelling in the chariot.—Comp. Taittiriya Samhitā I, 7, 7, 2; Paṅka-vimśa Brāhmaṇa I, 7, 5.

7. The name of the demon Māṇikara occurs, as far as I know, only here.
10. Having driven a moment beyond (the point to which he intends to go) he should murmur, 'Here is rest, rest here' (Vāg. Samh. VIII, 51).

11. Some add (the words), 'Here shall be no rest.'

12. If the chariot is weak, he should murmur, after he has mounted it, 'May this your chariot, O Aśvins, suffer no damage on bad ways or by being overthrown.'

13. If the horses run away with the chariot, he should touch the post (?) or the earth and should murmur, 'May this your chariot, O Aśvins, suffer no damage on bad ways or by being overthrown.'

14. Thus he will suffer no harm and no damage.

15. When he has finished his way, and has unyoked the horses, let him have grass and water given to them. 'For thus satisfaction is given to the beast that draws (the cart) '--says the Sruti.

KANDIKĀ 15.

1. Now how he should mount an elephant.

2. He goes to the elephant and touches it (saying), 'The elephants' glory art thou. The elephants' honour art thou.'

3. He then mounts it with (the words), 'With Indra's thunder-bolt I bestride thee. Make me arrive safely.'

4. Thereby it has also been declared how he should mount a horse.

11. If the reading of the text is correct, the meaning would seem to be: We will rest here for a while, but then we will go further.

13. I cannot say what 'the post' (stambha) here means; it may be a part of the chariot. Gayarāma has dhvagastambha, i.e. the staff of a flag, which we are to suppose was carried on the chariot. This may be the right explanation.

15. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa I, 8, 2, 9.
5. When he is going to mount a camel, he addresses it: 'Thou art the son of Tvashtri; Tvashtri is thy deity. Make me arrive safely.'

6. When he is going to mount a he-ass, he addresses it: 'A Sūdra art thou, a Sūdra by birth. To Agni thou belongest, with twofold sperm. Make me arrive safely.'

7. A path he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells on the paths. Make me arrive safely.'

8. A cross-road he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells at the cross-roads. Make me arrive safely.'

9. When he intends to swim across a river, he addresses it: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells in the waters. Make me arrive safely.'

10. When going on board a ship, he addresses her: 'The good ship' (Vāg. Samh. XXI, 7).

11. When going to cross (the river), he addresses (the ship): 'The well-protecting' (Vāg. Samh. XXI, 6).

12. A forest (through which he is wandering) he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells in the forests. Make me arrive safely.'

13. A mountain (which he is going to cross) he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells on the mountains. Make me arrive safely.'

14. A burial-ground he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells among the Fathers. Make me arrive safely.'

15. A cow-stable he addresses: 'Adoration to Rudra who dwells among the dung-heaps. Make me arrive safely.'

6. The he-ass has twofold sperm, because he begets both asses and mules. Taittirīya Samhitā VII, 1, 1, 2.
16. And wheresoever else it be, let him always say, 'Adoration to Rudra.' For the Sruti says, 'Rudra is this universe.'

17. If the skirt (of his garment) is blown upon him (by the wind), he addresses (that skirt): 'A skirt art thou. Thou art not a thunder-bolt. Adoration be to thee. Do no harm to me!'

18. The thunder he addresses: 'May the rains be friendly to us; may (Indra's) darts be friendly to us—may they be friendly to us which thou throwest, O killer of Vṛitra.'

19. A howling jackal he addresses: 'Friendly by name' (Vāg. Samh. III, 63).

20. A shrieking bird he addresses: 'Golden-winged bird who goest where the gods send thee! Messenger of Yama, adoration be to thee! What has the Kārkāriṇa told thee?'

21. A tree that serves as a mark (of a boundary, &c.), he addresses: 'May neither the flash of lightning (destroy thee), nor axe nor wind nor punishment which the king sends. May thy shoots grow up; may rain fall on thee, in safety from the wind. May fire not destroy thy root. Blessing on thee, O lord of the forest! Blessing on me, O lord of the forest!'

22. If he receives something (given to him), he accepts it with (the formula), 'May Heaven give thee; may the Earth accept thee.' Thus (the thing given) does not decrease to him who gives it, and what he receives increases.

19. The play on words is untranslatable; 'jackal' is sivā, 'friendly,' sivāḥ.

20. I do not know the meaning of kārkāriṇaḥ. Gayārāma takes it for a genitive standing instead of an accusative, and explains it by asmadbādhakam.
23. If boiled rice is given to him, he accepts it with (the formula), ‘May Heaven, &c.,’ and he partakes thereof twice with (the formulas), ‘May Brahman eat thee!’—‘May Brahman partake of thee!’

24. If gruel is given to him, (as above) . . . . three times with (the formulas), ‘May Brahman eat thee!’—‘May Brahman partake of thee!’—‘May Brahman drink thee!’

KANDIKĀ 16.

1. Now each time after a lesson (of the Veda) is finished, in order to prevent his forgetting (the texts he has studied, the following prayer should be recited):

‘May my mouth be skilful; my tongue be honey-sweet speech. With my ears I have heard much; do not take away that which I have heard, which dwells in me.

‘The Brahman’s word art thou; the Brahman’s stand art thou; the Brahman’s store-house art thou. Fulfilment art thou; peace art thou; unforgetfulness art thou; enter into my store-house of the Brahman. With the voice I cover thee! With the voice I cover thee! May I be able to form the vowels, to produce, to hold fast and to utter the guttural, pectoral, dental, and labial sounds. May my limbs grow strong, my voice, breath, eye, ear, honour, and power. What I have heard and studied, may that be fixed in my mind; may that be fixed in my mind.’

End of the Third Kāṇḍa.

End of Pāraskara’s Grihya-sūtra.

KHĀDIRA-GRHYA-SŪTRA.
INTRODUCTION

TO THE

KHÂDIRA-GRIHYA-SÛTRA.

Among the Grantha MSS. collected by the late Dr. Burnell and now belonging to the India Office Library, there are some MSS. (numbers CLXXII and following of the Catalogue) of a Grîhya-sûtra hitherto unpublished, which is ascribed to Khâdirâkârya. It belongs to the Drâhyâyâna school of the Sâma-veda, which prevails in the south of the Indian peninsula 1, and it is based on the Gobhlîiya-sûtra, from which it has taken the greater number of its aphorisms, just as the Drâhyâyâna-Srauta-sûtra, as far as we can judge at present, is nothing but a slightly altered redaction of Lâryâyâna 2. Like the Gobhila-Grîhya it very seldom gives the Mantras in their full extent, but quotes them only with their Pratìkas, and it is easy to identify these quotations in the Mantrabrâhma (published at Calcutta, 1873), which contains the texts prescribed by Gobhila for the Grîhya ceremonies.

The Khâdira-Grîhya has evidently been composed with the intention of abridging Gobhila’s very detailed and somewhat lengthy treatise on the domestic rites. Digressions, such as, for instance, that introduced by the words tatra ihad âhuḥ, Gobhila I, 2, 10–27, or such as Gobhila’s explication of the terms paurnamâsi and amâvâsyâ, I, 5, 7 seqq., or most of the regulations concerning the Sakvâryas, III, 3, or the Slokas, IV, 7, are invariably left

1 See Dr. Burnell’s Catalogue, p. 56.
2 Weber, Vorlesungen über indische Literaturgeschichte (2nd edition), p. 87: ‘Almost the entire difference between this Sûtra and that of Lâryâyâna lies in the arrangement of the matter treated of, which is in itself very nearly the same in both texts, and is expressed in the same words.’ Comp. Ânandâkandra Vedântavâgîra’s Introduction to his edition of Lâryâyâna (in the Bibliotheca Indica), pp. 2, 3, and his statements on Drâhyâyâna in the notes of that edition.
out, and in the descriptions of the single ceremonies throughout the principal points only are given, with the omission of all words and of all matter that it seemed possible to dispense with. On the other hand, the arrangement of the Sūtras has undergone frequent changes, in which the compiler clearly shows his intention of grouping together, more carefully than was done in the original text, the Sūtras which naturally belong to each other. Of the Sūtras of the Khādira-Grīhya which cannot be identified in Gobhila, several are to be traced back to Ṭāṭyāyana, or we should perhaps rather say, to Drāhyāyana. Thus Khād. I, 1, 14 mantrāntam avyaktam parasyādigraha-\textit{nena} vidyāt evidently corresponds to Ṭāṭyāyana I, 1, 3, uttarādīh pūrvāntalakshanam, and Khād. I, 1, 24 avyāvrittim \textit{yagūṅgair} avyavāyam \textit{kekhet} is identical with Ṭāty. I, 2, 15, avyavāyo-avyāvrittis \textit{ka} \textit{yagūṅgaih}.

Upon the whole, though certainly the Khādira-Grīhya does not contain much matter which is not known to us from other sources, it notwithstanding possesses a certain interest, since it shows by a very clear example how a Sūtrakāra of the later time would remodel the work of a more ancient author, trying to surpass him by a more correct arrangement, and especially by what became more and more appreciated as the chief accomplishment of Sūtra composition, the greatest possible succinctness and economising of words. To an interpreter of Gobhila the comparison of the Khādira-Grīhya no doubt will suggest in many instances a more correct understanding of his text than he would have been likely to arrive at without that aid, and perhaps even readings of Gobhila which seemed hitherto subject to no doubt, will have to give way to readings supplied by the Grantha MSS. of the Khādira-Grīhya. Thus, Gobhila III, 8, 16, I do not hesitate to correct asa\textit{m}svād\textit{am}, on the authority of Khād. III, 3, 13, into asa\textit{mkhād\textit{am}} or asa\textit{mkhā\textit{dan}}\textsuperscript{1}.

\textsuperscript{1} Comp. Pāraskara II, 10, 15, and the quotations given by Böhtlingk-Roth s. v. sa\textit{m}-khād. Forms derived from the two roots, khād and svad, are frequently interchanged in the MSS.; see the two articles in the Dictionary.
As the text of the Khâdira-Grîhya is very short and has not yet been published, it has been printed at the foot of the page, together with references to the parallel passages of Gobhila. For further explanations of the single Sûtras, I refer to my translation of Gobhila which will form part of the second volume of the Grîhya-sûtras, where I shall also hope to give some extracts from Rudraskanda’s commentary on the Khâdira-Grîhya.

PÂTALA I, KHÂNDA 1.

1. Now henceforth the domestic sacrifices (will be explained).

2. During the northern course of the sun, at the time of the increasing moon, on auspicious days, before noon: this is the time at which the constellations are lucky, unless a special statement is given.

3. At the end (of the ceremonies) he should give to the Brâhmaṇas to eat according to his ability.

4. The sacrificial cord is made of a string or [of Kusa grass.

5. If he suspends it round his neck and raises the right arm (so as to wear the cord on his left shoulder), he becomes yagṛṇopavitin.

6. (If he raises) the left (arm and wears the cord on his right shoulder, he becomes) prâñânavitin.

7. After having sipped water three times, let him wipe off the water twice.

8. Having besprinkled his feet (with water), let him besprinkle his head.

9. Let him touch the organs of his senses (i.e. his eyes, his nose, and his ears) with water (i.e. with a wet hand).

10. When he has finally touched (water) again, he becomes pure.

11. (If) sitting, standing, or lying down (is prescribed), he should understand (that it is to be done) on northward-pointed Darbha grass, with the face turned to the east, to the west of the fire with which the sacrifice is performed.

12. If the word Snāna (or bathing) is used, (this refers to the whole body) with the head.

13. (The different ceremonies are) performed with the right hand, if no special rule is given.

14. If it is not clear where a Mantra ends, one should discern it by (adverting to) the beginning of the next Mantra.

15. The Mantras have the word svāhā at their end, when offerings are made.

16. The term Pākayagñāna is used of every sacrifice that is performed with one fire.

17. There the Brahman is (present as) officiating priest, with the exception of the morning and evening oblations.

11–14 desunt. 15 = I, 9, 25. 16 deest. 17, 18 = I. 9, 8. 9.
18. The Hotṛ’s place is filled by (the sacrificer) himself.

19. To the south of the fire the Brahman sits facing the north, silently, until the oblation has been performed, on eastward-pointed (Darbha grass).

20. But if he likes, he may speak of what refers to the sacrifice.

21. Or if he has spoken (words) which are unworthy of the sacrifice, let him murmur the Mahāvyāhṛṣṭis,

22. Or (the verse), ‘Thus has Vishnu’ (Sv. I, 222).

23. If he does himself the work both of the Brahman and of the Hotṛ, let him sit down on the Brahman’s seat, and (leave that seat) placing a parasol on it, or an outer garment, or a water-pot, and then let him perform his other duties.

24. Let him take care not to turn his back to, or become separated (by any person or thing interposed) from what belongs to the sacrifice.

3. From the beginning of that line (he should draw a line) from south to north; from the end (of the last-mentioned line) one from west to east; between (the first and the third line) three (lines) from west to east.

4. He besprinkles that (place) with water,

5. Establishes the fire (thereon),

6. Wipes along around (the fire) with the three verses, ‘This praise’ (MB. II, 4, 2–4).

7. To the west of the fire he touches the earth with his two hands turned downwards, with (the verse), ‘We partake of the earth’s’ (MB. II, 4, 1).

8. In night-time (he pronounces that Mantra so that it ends with the word) ‘goods’ (vasu).

9. Having strewn Darbha grass to the west (of the fire), let him draw (some grass) from the south-end and from the north-end (of what he has strewn), in an eastern direction.

10. Or let him omit this drawing (of Darbha grass to the east),

12. Sitting down he cuts off two span-long Darbha points, not with his nail, with (the words), 'Purifiers are ye, sacred to Vishnu.'

13. He wipes them with water, with (the words), 'By Vishnu's mind are ye purified.'

14. Holding them with his two thumbs and fourth fingers so that their points are turned to the north, he three times purifies the Âgya (with them), with (the words), 'May the god Savitri purify thee with this uninjured purifier, with the rays of the good sun.'

15. Having sprinkled them (with water) he should throw them into the fire.

16. Having put the Âgya on the fire he should take it (from the fire) towards the north.

17. Bending his right knee he should pour out to the south of the fire his joined hands full of water with (the words), 'Aditi! Give thy consent!'

18. To the west with (the words), 'Anumati! Give thy consent!'

19. To the north with (the words), 'Sarasvati! Give thy consent!'

20. With (the words), 'God Savitri! Give thy impulse!' (MB. I, 1, 1) he should sprinkle (water) round the fire so as to keep his right side turned towards it, encompassing what he is going to offer (with the water).

21. (This he does) once or thrice.

22. He puts a piece of wood on (the fire).

23. He should murmur the Prapada formula (MB. II, 4, 5), hold his breath, fix his thoughts on something good, and should emit his breath when beginning the Virūpāksha formula (MB. II, 4, 6).

24. At ceremonies for the attainment of special wishes (he should do so) for each of the objects (which he wishes to attain).

25. He should do so always at sacrifices.

KHANDA 3.

1. A student after he has studied the Veda and has offered a present to his teacher, should, with permission (of his parents), take a wife.

2. And (he should take) the bath (which signifies the end of studentship).

4. As, however, in the (collection of) Mantras marriage is treated of (first), it is explained (here) before (the bath).

5. A Brāhmaṇa with a water-pot, wrapped in his robe, keeping silence, should step in front of the fire and should station himself (to the south of it) with his face to the north.

6. After (the bride) has taken a bath, (the bridegroom) should dress her in a garment that has not yet been washed, with (the verse), ‘They who spun’ (MB. I, i, 5). While she is led up (to him), the bridegroom should murmur (the verse), ‘Soma gave her’ (l. i. 7).

7. To the south of the bridegroom he (who has led her to him) should make her sit down.

8. While she touches him, (the bridegroom) should make oblations of Āgya with the Sruva, picking out (portions of it [comp. Pāraskara II, 14, 13]), with the Mahāvyāhṛitis.

9. A fourth (oblation) with (the three Mahāvyāhṛitis) together.

12. At Āgya oblations, unless a special rule is given, the two Āgya portions and the Svishṭakṛīt oblation (are) not (offered).

13. After (the chief oblations he should) always (make oblations) with the Mahāvyāhṛītis,

14. And with the (verse) sacred to Pragāpati.

15. He should make an expiatory oblation.

16. After the sacrifice they both arise.

17. (The bridegroom) should pass behind (the bride's) back, station himself to the south, and seize the bride's hand.

18. Her mother who has, towards the east, put fried grain mixed with Samī leaves into a basket,

19. Should make the bride tread with the tip of her right foot on an upper mill-stone, to the west of the fire, with (the verse which the bridegroom repeats), 'On this stone' (MB. I, 2, 1).

6. The service (at that sacred domestic fire) begins with an evening oblation.

7. After (the fire) has been set in a blaze before sunset or sunrise—

8. The sacrifice (is performed) after sunset;

9. (And) after sunrise or before sunrise.

10. He should with his hand make oblations of food which is fit for sacrifice, having washed it, if it is raw.

11. If it consists in curds or milk, with a brazen bowl,

12. Or with the pot in which the oblations of cooked rice are prepared.

13. (In the evening the first oblation with the formula), ‘To Agni Svâhâ!’ in the middle (of the sacred fire);

14. The second (oblation) silently in the north-eastern part (of the fire).

15. In the morning the first (oblation with the formula), ‘To Sûrya (Svâhâ)!’

16. The wiping round the fire and the similar acts, with the exception of the sprinkling (of water) round (the fire), are omitted here.

17. Some (teachers say) that his wife may offer these oblations, for the wife is (as it were) the house, and that fire is the domestic fire.

10–19 = I, 3, 6–18 (16 deest).
18. When (the meal) is ready, in the evening and in the morning, (the wife) should say, 'It is ready!' and (the husband) with loud voice, 'Om!'
19. Then in a low voice: 'May it not fail! Adoration to thee!'
20. Of food which is fit for sacrifice he should make oblations to Pragâpati and to (Agni) Svishṭâkrit.
21. Then he should make the Bali offerings.
22. He should put down (a Bali) at four places, inside or outside (the Agnyagâra);
23. (Another Bali) near the water-barrel;
24. (Another) at the middle door;
25. (Another) in the bed,
26. Or in the privy;
27. Another on the heap of sweepings.
28. He should sprinkle each (Bali with water) before and afterwards.
29. The remnants he should pour out together with water towards the south.
30. Of chaff, of water, and of the scum of boiled rice (he should offer a Bali) when a donation has been made.

20. One who takes five cut-off portions (see Sūtra 17), also from the western side.

21. After he has sprinkled (Âgya) on (the cut-off portions), he anoints the places from which he has cut them off, (with Âgya).

22. (This anointing) is omitted at the Svishtakrīt oblation.

23. He should sacrifice with (the formula), 'To N. N. Svāhā!'—according to the god to whom the oblation belongs.

24. At the Svishtakrīt oblation he 'spreads under' once—twice if he is a Bhrīgu—, (cuts off) once (a portion) of the Havis, sprinkles (Âgya) on it twice, and sacrifices it in a north-eastern direction with (the formula), 'To Agni Svishtakrīt Svāhā!'

25. Having put a piece of wood (on the fire),

26. He should dip Darbha-blades (of the sacrificial grass strewn round the fire) three times, the points, the middle, and the roots, into the Âgya or into the Havis with (the words), 'May the birds come, licking what has been anointed.' Then, after having sprinkled (those Darbha-blades with water), he should throw them into the fire, with (the verse), 'Thou who art the lord of cattle, Rudra, who walkest with the lines (of cattle), the manly one: do no harm to our cattle; let this be offered to thee. Svāhā!'
27. This (ceremony is called) Yagñavástu.
28. He should perform it at all (sacrifices).
29. The remnants of the Havis he should take away in a northern direction, and should give them to the Brahman.
30. A full vessel constitutes the fee for the sacrifice;
31. Or as much as he can afford.

KHANDA 2.

1. By one who has not set up the sacred fires, a mess of cooked food, sacred to Agni, is offered at the festivals of the full and new moon;
2. By one who has set them up, one sacred to Agni and Soma at the full moon;
3. One sacred to Indra, or to Mahendra, or to Indra and Agni, at the new moon;
4. Or as (the sacrifice is performed) by one who has not set up the sacred fires.
5. The time at which the morning oblation may be offered, is the whole day;
6. For the evening oblation the night;
