

- [4] One is confident when teaching Dharma in the assembly.
- [5] One is confident when entering into the midst of the Sangha.
- [6] One is confident when approaching his teacher and preceptor.
- [7] One is confident when teaching his students with loving-kindness.
- [8] One is confident when making use of the requisites of robes, alms food, dwellings and medicine for support when sick.
- [9] One's speech is readily accepted.

These are the ten confidences.

The Discourse on the Analysis of Deeds is Complete